Relief Fund Is Fixed at 1½ Billion By President

Drops 'Layman's Balance' in Figures to Be Given Today.

Parley Is Held At White House

See "About to Be News!" a cartoon on Page 8.

By Robert C. Albright.

Abandoning plans for a "layman's balance" of the budget in 1938, President Roosevelt today will send revised budget estimates to Congress providing approximately $1,500,000,000 for relief in the next fiscal year.

The President advised Congressional leaders of his intention last night at a two-hour White House budget conference. If Administration estimates are followed, it was indicated, no new tax bill will be offered this session.

"Indications are that if the estimates are conformed to in the appropriations, the budget will be out of balance for the next fiscal year," Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson told reporters.

"But it is thought that ways may be found, without increasing taxes, to limit the deficit to a very narrow margin."

The President agreed with leaders that every effort must be made to effect economies and hold down appropriations, it was said.

Congress Leaders Called.

The $1,500,000,000 proposed for relief is approximately the figure mentioned by the President in his January budget message. Budget balancing plans suggested in the January message are understood to have been discarded after Treasury revenue receipts dropped sharply under January estimates—approximating $500,000,000 under what was expected for this fiscal year.

Eight Congressional leaders had been summoned to the White House, together with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Acting Budget Director Daniel W. Bell, to discuss budget prospects.

They entered the White House at 6 o'clock and left at 8:15. Senator Robinson was designated spokesman for the group.

"The President is expecting to send a message to the Congress tomorrow," the Senate leader told newsmen.

"In all probability it will discuss budgetary considerations, particularly relating to relief. It is probable the recommendation will be for $1,500,000,000. Some members of the conference thought this might be reduced to $1,000,000,000.

"The feeling of all of us is that every practical effort should be made to limit appropriations, so as to close as soon as possible the gap between income and outgo.

"The reduced receipts from income taxes have accentuated, in my judgment, the importance of limiting in every reasonable way the appropriations to be made in the present session of Congress."

Relief Fight Possible.

In another quarter it was learned there was a difference of opinion between the President and some of those present on his proposal to place the relief figure as high as $1,500,000,000.

After revenue estimates seriously dropped it was widely reported that the President would scale down his relief estimates to at least partially make up for the tax loss.

When a $1,000,000,000 figure was suggested at last night's conference, one of the conferees disclosed the President said he wanted to be entirely "frank" with the country. The President said he felt $1,500,000,000 more truly reflected the country's relief needs; and that if he recommended a lower figure, he would have to explain it was less than the amount actually needed, this informant said.

When the President's 1938 budget estimates were submitted in Janu-

Kidnaper Returns Boy, 5, to Parents To Ease Anguish

Hayward, Calif., April 19 (U.P.).—A kidnaper tonight restored a 5-year-old boy to his parents with a note saying that he would "rather starve than make the child's parents suffer."

The boy, William Grinell Blodgett, 5, walked into a service station at 5 p. m. and gave the note to an attendant. The note said:

"I was going to hold this boy for ransom but decided to go straight. Please get him to his parents in Berkeley. I am in great need but would rather starve than make his parents suffer.

"If they want to contact me, let them address me as 'Chuck' in Wednesday's Oakland Tribune."

The child was unharmed and apparently had enjoyed the adventure. He said that his abductor had stopped a car in front of the boy's Oakland home this morning.

"The man said that he would give me some candy if I would go for a ride with him, but he didn't buy me any," the boy said.

Parents of the boy had instituted a frantic search for him when he disappeared this morning.

Hitler Pledges Reich to Attend Trade Parleys

Announces Germany Will Join Conference Called by Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, April 19.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler assured the world today that Germany will attend willingly any international economic conference convoked by President Roosevelt or some other leader of a great nation.

The Fuehrer made his announcement a prelude to elaborate ceremonies in observance of his forty-eighth birthday anniversary tomorrow. The ceremonies began tonight with dedication of 90 new flags and standards for the third army corps which lined the huge square before the Reich chancellory.

Hitler had conferred earlier with George Lansbury, British Laborite member of Parliament, and an official transcript of his remarks stated:

"Germany would be very willing to attend a conference and partake of a united effort to establish economic co-operation and mutual understanding between the nations of the world if President Roosevelt or the head of some other great country would take the lead in calling such a conference."

Premier van Zeeland, of Belgium, is to consult with President Roosevelt in June on methods by which trade barriers may be removed to foster peace, his visit backed by British and French urgings. There have been recent reports that President Roosevelt was considering the chances of an economic conference at some unspecified date in the not too distant future, but Mr. Roosevelt has denied that the United States intended to take the initiative in any such move.

Official interpreted today's statement as a reiteration of Germany's oft-heard plea for lowering of trade barriers so that she may sell her goods if she is to buy those of other nations. The German plan for self-sufficiency, one spokesman said, is a direct consequence of tariff barriers which hamper the flow of her commerce.

Landon Attacks Wheeler Film Ban

Topeka, Kans., April 19 (U.P.).—Alf M. Landon, former Kansas Governor and Republican Presidential candidate, tonight demanded that Gov. Walter Huxman "correct the foolish act of the Kansas Censor Board" in banning part of a news reel on the Supreme Court controversy.

Landon asserted the Governor had the right to overrule Miss Mae Clausen, chairman of the Board of Review, which ordered elimination of remarks of Senator Burton K. Wheeler from the feature "March of Time."

Executive Sees First Washington Defeat Since He Entered White House; Philadelphia Wins Victory in 10th With 2-Base Hit by Rookie.

Pictures on Pages 16 and 17.

By Shirley Povich.

By another one of those close decisions, 4 to 3, President Roosevelt saw another one of his pet projects, the Washington ball club, lose yesterday. The Nats were constitutional enough, but they simply didn't have it and the young, spryish Philadelphia Athletics made away with the ball game in the tenth inning on the wings of a two-base hit that rocketed off the bat of a rookie catcher.

Thirty-two thousand other folks, besides the President were there at Griffith Stadium, a gay mob come to greet the opening of another big league season, but for Mr. Roosevelt the result was the end of his charm over invading clubs.

For the Presidential eyes were beholding yesterday for the first time since he has been in the White House a Washington defeat on opening day. Good naturedly he had admitted that he was the good luck talisman of the Nats who had never failed to win a ball game when blessed with the Presidential presence.

President Part of Game.

Avidly intent on the ball game from his banner-bedecked box adjacent the Washington dug-out, a scoreboard in his lap and cigarette with holder in his fingers, the President was, in fact, part of the ball game for a brief moment.

Off the bat of Walter Millies, Washington catcher, rolled a high pop foul in the tenth inning and 32,000 stood as a man as the ball described a high arc toward the President's box.

Properly received by Clark Griffith, and his entrance applauded vociferously as he took his seat across the aisle from Vice President Garner, Mr. Roosevelt warmly greeted Managers Connie Mack and Bucky Harris, then posed for minutes on end for the cameramen before making the first pitch.

The Presidential toss was a change of pace, a knuckle ball, or something, on a high trajectory and forthwith, in the scramble among Washington players to get it, Buck Newsom made the first muff of the season, dropping the throw which he had intercepted with the help of his long reach. Young Buddy Lewis dove into the dirt to come up with the much-prized memento.

That Tenth Inning.

But, to get back to the ball game, we must back into it to get it properly. We must tell about that tenth inning when the Athletics won it after watching the Nats wipe out a pair of early inning leads.

Joe Cascarella, who had been pitching eight-hit ball in a duel with a pair of Philadelphia rookies, Edgar Smith and Almon Williams, succumbed finally to his day-long wildness. A walk to Bob Johnson, the sixth he had issued, paved the way for Cascarella's downfall, after the teams had entered the tenth, tied at 3-3.

With one out, Earl Averill, an acquisition from the Coast League who is doing Connie Mack's catching this season, brought his bat around on a Cascarella fast ball and walloped a tremendous two-base hit over Ben Chapman's head against the tin wall in centerfield. Johnson galloped all the way from

'Don't Pack Court,' Reads Plea in Sky

A flying lobbyist sought to take Roosevelt's mind off the ball game at Griffith Stadium yesterday. Time after time he soared over the stadium, towing a chain of huge letters which spelled out this admonition:

"Play the game. Don't pack the court."

Not only President Roosevelt, but several New Dealers who have been fighting for a rejuvenated Supreme Court saw the message in the sky. Attorney General Homer Cummings was one of them. J. Edgar Hoover called Cummings' attention to the spectacle.

Who sponsored the stunt, hiring the plane at the rate of $1 a minute, could not be immediately determined. William L. Burrall, president of Sky Ad, the Baltimore concern which sent the plane aloft, would only say that a "group of men" with headquarters in Washington had paid the bill.

Tidal Basin Parks Will Have 1,500 New Cherry Trees

Planting of 1,500 Japanese cherry trees of the Yoshino single-blossom variety was started yesterday in East and West Potomac parks, Supt. C. Marshall Finnan announced.

Two hundred of the specimens will be planted in the parks nurseries and the remainder will be set out as replacements and additions at the Tidal Basin and along Washington and Georgetown channels, Finnan said.

The saplings will be planted at the rate of about 250 a day, so that the restocking program will be completed by the end of this week, he asserted. A large number of the cider trees were damaged or killed by the floods of March, 1936, and August, 1933.

Work also will begin this week, he revealed, on an azalea display in the 1400 block of Massachusetts avenue.

Girl Bride Weeps When Mother Jails Only Son as Thief

Accused of housebreaking with her husband, 22-year-old Isabelle Mounts nearly collapsed yesterday when her bridegroom of three months was remanded to jail in default of $1,000 bail.

Judge John P. McMahon ordered the husband, Michael, 22, of the 3500 block Warder street northwest, held, but dismissed the charge against the wife.

When the verdict was given on a charge preferred by Mounts' mother, Mrs. George W. Ridgeway, Mrs. Mounts burst into tears. She flung her arms around her husband's neck as a bailiff led him away.

Mrs. Ridgeway said her son had eloped January 19 and that on March 21 her home was broken into and $8.30 taken from her pocketbook. Detective Sergt. Van Doren Hughes arrested the young couple when Mrs. Ridgeway said she suspected her son.

"I didn't want to have him sent to jail," Mrs. Ridgeway said after the hearing. "I only wanted to frighten him. He is my only child."

Oslo Fears War as Battleships Meet in Norwegian Waters

By the Associated Press.

Oslo, Norway, April 19.—Foreign airplanes, warships and submarines reported hovering mysteriously about the Scandinavian countries brought a war scare to Oslo tonight.

Officials professed alarm over the frequently recurring reports, and Gen. Carl Erichsen, chief of Norway's defense in the north, urged the government to speed up defense measures.

The mysterious planes and ships of war have been reported along the entire coast of Norway. Military authorities have been unable to establish the identity of any of the craft.

The newspaper Tidens Tegen said: "The North Atlantic has become the central scene of the next war, and Russia now is maneuvering for experience," intimating the mystery planes and ships were Russian.

The newspaper Aftenpost of Oslo has openly declared Germany last fall sent warships to look for possible bases for air and naval operations in the Arctic.

Military experts assert Germany, in the event of war with Russia, would seek first to bottle up the Russian fleet in the Baltic by getting control of the narrow waterways around Denmark.

So grave was the situation considered that Parliament's foreign relations committee doubted the advisability of a cabinet proposal to send a warship to protect shipping in Spanish waters.

Woods Fires Injure Score, Burn Homes

Nearby Maryland and Virginia Sections Suffer Heavily.

Thousands of acres of woodland, many dwellings and farm buildings were destroyed in Maryland and Virginia yesterday by forest fires.

In nearby Fairfax County, Va., two blazes burned over a thousand acres, destroyed two homes and injured a score of firefighters.

The two fires, largest of more than a dozen which broke out in the county yesterday and Sunday, were near Vale, Va., and at Ravensworth, ancestral estate of the late Lee family.

All five Fairfax fire companies were kept busy answering alarms for brush fires at Merrifield, Springfield, Pender, Fairfax, Floris, Navy, Vienna, McLean, Annandale and near Falls Church.

The fire near Vale, in the Sunset Hills section, raged over more than 800 acres of timberland, destroyed an abandoned farmhouse known as "the old Thompson place" and threatened several other homes before companies from Herndon, Vienna and McLean managed to get the blaze under control. Another abandoned house in the vicinity also was burned.

Approximately 50 men, directed by County Fire Warden Joseph L. Money, set backfires to combat the blaze.

The fire at Ravensworth, along Accotink Run, burned over 120 acres of land but did not threaten the historic house, built in the eighteenth century by Fitzhugh Lee.

In both cases, firefighters were handicapped by brisk winds and lack of water. The wind whirled dense clouds of smoke in to the faces of the firemen and sent crackling columns of fire towering 60 feet into the air. The smoke was visible 20 miles away.

Caused by Weed Fires.

Most of the fires were started when residents attempted to burn over land to destroy weeds. In many cases, gusty winds quickly fanned the small blazes beyond control. The county fire warden yesterday sent out warnings to residents not to set further fires during the dry weather.

Although no serious injuries were reported, nearly a score of firemen suffered minor burns on the face and hands.

Besides the property damage, as yet unestimated, countless numbers of quail, rabbits and other small game were killed by smoke and flames, A. W. Mills, county game warden, said a re-stocking of the area would be necessary.

A woods fire blazed across two square miles of Howard County, Md., south of Elkridge. The flames threatened 100 homes in the communities of Harwood and Hanover.

Two hundred residents were joined by 50 firemen from seven county fire departments in battling the blaze, which broke out along the Washington-Baltimore boulevard 2 miles below Elkridge and spread rapidly through a wooded hollow between Harwood and Hanover.

Departments from Ellicott City, Jessups, Linthicum Heights, Halethorpe, Odenton, Glen Burnie and Violetville answered the alarm. With the aid of residents, the firemen poured chemicals onto the blazing trees and underbrush, and beating crews, armed with shovels, brooms and bunches of brush, sought to stamp out the fire.

Fears Serious Fire.

As this Maryland fire raged, W. J. Quick, assistant State forester, predicted that the most severe woods fire of the season may occur during the early part of this week.

"The woods are drying out rapidly," the Associated Press at Baltimore quoted him as saying "and there is little prospect of rain before the end of the week. If there is a wind, we will have a hard time controlling any fire which might get started in the woods."

A total of 2,000 acres of Virginia timberland was burned over, State Forester F. C. Pederson told the Associated Press at Charlottsville.

Pedersen said a fire which spread over 75 acres destroyed timber on the property of Mrs. L. J. Kinney, of Guthrie Hall, near Esmont, yesterday before being brought under control by CCC workers and fire wardens. It also burned close to other well-known Albemarle estates but was beaten back from homes and brought under control yesterday afternoon.

High winds fanned the flames and impeded efforts to bring them under control.

Orchids and Smiles at D. A. R. Opening

Yesterday was the 162d anniversary of the "shot heard round the world"—the Battle of Lexington—presaging freedom of the American Colonies from King George III. Yesterday Mrs. William A. Becker, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, orchid-corsaged, exchanged smiles with Sir Ronald Lindsay, Ambassador of King George VI. Sir Ronald was a D. A. Oshawa Mayor Weeps as Mass Meeting Spurns Truce.

Wage Raise, Slash In Hours Refused

Workers Hold Recognition First and Boo Plea for Settlement.

On the Labor Front.

Canadian General Motors strikers rejected a plan for settlement of their walkout, previously approved by the company and the United Automobile Workers.

The American Federation of Labor moved into battle against John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization for control of the Georgia State Federation of Labor.

Officials of the Lewis-affiliated United Automobile Workers rushed plans to file charges against the Ford Motor Co. with the National Labor Relations Board, alleging discrimination.

Truce Spurned.

By the Associated Press.

Oshawa, Ontario, April 19.—General Motors strikers tonight rejected a peace proposal previously approved by the company and the United Automobile Workers of America.

The rejection was unanimous.

(New walkouts in United States plants of General Motors have been threatened if Canadian peace negotiations fail.)

"You are being duped, you're being fooled, you're being hoodwinked," Alex Hall, dapper little Mayor of Oshawa, shouted at the strikers at an uproarious mass meeting after they had refused a pay raise and cut in working hours if only they gave up their demand for union recognition.

Union Head Determined.

"Sooner or later you're going to know I'm right and I'm going to help you then," the mayor added, tears in his eyes and his voice quavering.

Hugh Thompson, U. A. W. A. organizer in charge of the strike, congratulated the men for holding out.

"You still are solid with one thing in mind—to get the things you went out after—and as long as you keep that spirit nothing can beat you," he said.

"This strike will only be settled when General Motors sits down and talks to your committee.

"No matter who sticks his finger in the pie, this strike will not be settled until the company does just that."

The mayor had acted as go-between in arranging the settlement that both Thompson and J. B. Highfield, plant manager for General Motors, approved.

With newspapermen present, Hall started the mass meeting in the local high school auditorium by explaining the settlement's terms:

1. A cut in the work week to 44 hours.
2. An increase of from 5 to 7 cents in hourly pay rates.
3. No discrimination against strikers.
4. A formula regarding union recognition to be announced by Thompson at his discretion.

Then reporters were herded into a classroom during the two-hour debate and the rejection vote.

Hissed by Strikers.

Thompson, whom Premier Mitchell Hepburn repeatedly has called one of John L. Lewis' "paid hirelings" and a "foreign agitator," explained for the benefit of the strikers what had happened.

Then Hall, trembling, took the platform.

"Words cannot tell you how sorry I was to hear your decision tonight," he began.

Then he recalled how Homer Martin, U. A. W. A. president, on the same platform had told the strikers more than a week ago that General Motors would not make cars in the United States unless they made cars in Canada under union conditions.

"What one promise was made to you that has been kept?" he asked.

His every sentence was punctuated with boos and hisses.

He said the union was only faintly interested in Canada. The workers in the United States, he said,

Booking Agent Held as Slayer Of Entertainer

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 19.—After reporting a "vague confession" from Mischa Ross, 30, Inspector Michael McDermott charged the Broadway booking agent today with homicide in the hammer slaying of Julia Nussenbaum, pretty night club musician.

Less than 24 hours after another entertainer stumbled over Miss Nussenbaum's battered form in a sound-proof rehearsal studio off Times Square, the inspector announced his prisoner had admitted an altercation with the talented violinist, but declared he didn't remember hitting 'er—"I was drunk."

Ross, estranged from his wife, was found at the Mountaindale N. Y., home of his father-in-law, early today. Still in a drunken stupor, he was hurried back to New York for questioning.

Jealousy and a dispute over Ross' attention to Miss Nussenbaum, who used the professional name of Tania Lee Lova, the police inspector said, were causes of the quarrel climaxed when the 25-year-old entertainer was fatally bludgeoned with a hammer.

Ross' story, as quoted by McDermott, was:

"I had been drinking heavily. I remember going into the room and Julia was there. We had some words. We had been arguing for several days because I wanted to go back to my wife and she didn't want me to.

"She hit me first with something—I don't know what it was. I must have grabbed the object out of her hand and hit her with it, but I don't remember. I don't remember anything until I woke up in jail in Monticello."

Then, McDermott said, the trembling booking agent was told that the girl was dead.

"He became hysterical," said Assistant District Attorney Saul Price. "He put his head down in his hands and cried:

"'I wouldn't do that to Julia. She was always so good to me.'"

Pomp and pageantry resolved into a spotlight on youth last night as the colorful opening of the forty-sixth annual congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution got under way at Constitution Hall.

A ripple of applause became a resounding ovation as youthful pages, gowned in white and bearing flags of the States, moved down the aisles and toward the stage, preceding the president general, Mrs. William A. Becker, and the other national officers. The Stars and Stripes floated above the audience as the procession filed onto the stage, keeping step to the music of the United States Marine Band.

Bearing an eight-orchid bouquet that blended with her pink crystal-encrusted gown, the president general sounded the keynote of youth in her word of greeting to the assembly and later accented it further in her address on "Living for the Ages" and in her presentation to the congress of the 48 high school girls who won the D. A. R. good citizenship pilgrimage. For the eighteenth consecutive time, William Tyler Page, author of "The American Creed," last night led a D. A. R. congress in the recital of the passage familiar to every boy and girl in this country.

Greetings to the assembly were voiced by the Ambassador of Great Britain, Sir Ronald Lindsay; the Ambassador of France, M. Georges Bonnet; the president of the D. C. Board of Commissioners, Melvin C. Hazen; the president general of the Sons of the Revolution, Messmore Kendall, and the national president of the Children of the American Revolution, Mrs. C. A. Swann Sinclair.

Youth completely stole the show when two children, Sally McAllis-

Bench Still Lacks Judges of Self-Restraint, Cummings Declares in Plea for Reform Plan

By Sidney Olson.

Attorney General Homer Cummings, discussing last night the recent Government victories in the Supreme Court by 5-to-4 decisions, stated flatly that "the bench still lacks a sufficient number of judges whose self-restraint is predictable, judges who are willing to see the facts as they are and to decide under the Constitution and not over it."

Cummings, speaking in a Nation-wide broadcast under the auspices of Labor's Nonpartisan League, said:

"The enlightened judgment, which has given us these recent decisions by the narrowest of margins may be eclipsed tomorrow by a return to abstract theories and mistaken assumptions.

"The statutes recently validated may be whittled away in their application bit by bit until nothing remains but an empty victory. Surely this is an unhealthy condition."

Cummings, Maj. George L. Berry, president of the league, and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, spoke in Washington, while at 25 mass meetings and numerous smaller gatherings throughout the country, thousands of other citizens joined in sessions supporting the President's plan for reform of the judiciary.

Berry, vigorously outspoken in favor of the court plan, briefly reviewed the possibility that more careful draftsmanship of New Deal legislation might have resulted in more favorable verdicts, then said:

"But the Administration is unwilling to take the chance involved, for fear of losing the greatest opportunity of our times to go forward toward security, stability and prosperity."

Smashing at the idea that there are "any sacred aspects of the court and its findings," he continued:

"There comes a time when shattered precedent is a good thing for democracy. Let us shatter them all if it becomes necessary in order to give the control of national af-

A. F. of L. Aide Sent to Take State Helm; U. A. W. Maps Ford Charges.

By William V. Nessly.

The American Federation of Labor yesterday moved into battle against John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization for control of the Georgia State Federation of Labor.

At the same time officials of the Lewis-affiliated United Automobile Workers speeded plans here to file charges against the Ford Motor Company with the National Labor Relations Board, alleging discrimination.

They did not announce any decision on the proposal to call a strike in General Motors plants in this country in sympathy with the strike against General Motors of Canada, and will continue deliberations today.

The executive council of the federation yesterday ordered to Atlanta Frank Dillon, general organizer of the A. F. of L., to "take charge of the Georgia federation" in place of Stephen Nance, State president, who "must get out," President William Green, of the A. F. of L. told reporters.

Expulsion Issue Waits.

The council, however, in its special meeting here opening yesterday did not reach the proposal to expel the C. I. O. unions, now under suspension by the federation.

President Green said that Nance had accepted appointment as a salaried organizing official for the C. I. O., while still serving as president of the State federation.

"He can't serve both," Green declared. "It's all right if he wants to go with the C. I. O., but he can't continue as head of our Georgia federation. That is dual unionism, forbidden by the federation."

The Georgia federation's State convention opens in Atlanta tomorrow, and Nance has been quoted as saying he will preside. Green said that Dillon would take charge. To reports that Dillon seemed to have a majority of the delegates with him, Green replied that "if necessary we will reorganize the State federation." He said it was up to the delegates to decide the action, but added that if necessary, the loyal A. F. of L. delegates "will just hold another meeting and reorganize."

"It's Our Baby."

"They can't take the Georgia federation away from us," he declared. "It was chartered by the A. F. of L., and it's our baby."

Other action taken yesterday by the federation council was the granting of a charter, as a federal union, to some 8,000 rock miners at Galena, Kans., most of them already members of the Tri-State Metal, Mine and Smelter Workers Union, which has been under fire of the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union, now a C. I. O. affiliate, as a company union.

The tri-State union was formed after a strike of members of the International union, in the course of which Gov. Alf M. Landon sent State troops to the scene.

This is the first time, so far as Green could recall, that the federation has invaded the jurisdiction of one of its former associate unions.

"Ordinarily we wouldn't issue a charter in such a case," he said, "but the C. I. O. has been raiding our unions. They haven't hesitated to take in company union men." He denied, however, that the A. F. of L. action could be called a "raiding party."

"Our object is to organize men who want to join the A. F. of L.," he said. "We won the men over and we told them they would have to keep A. F. of L. standards."

The union president declined to say how many organizers the union has at work enrolling Ford workers and said he did not have late figures on the number who have joined the union.

In Detroit, Ford Co. officials said they were "not worried" about any charges the union may file with the Labor Relations Board.

"A Lot of Hot Air."

Harry M. Bennett, Ford personnel director, told the Associated Press the charges "are a lot of hot air," and added:

"The Ford Motor Co. has never treated its employes unfairly and the union officials know it."

Another development yesterday was a visit to Chairman J. Warren Madden, of the Labor Relations Board, by Sidney Hillman, head of the committee, directing the textile organizing campaign for the C. I. O. Hillman was said to have filed several cases of alleged violations of the Wagner-Connery labor act by textile operators, and to have asked quick action by the board.

While the auto union heads and the A. F. of L. continue their meetings today, another one important in labor-industrial circles will be put under way by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Legislation for 40-Hour Week in All U. S. Industries Appears as Distinct Possibility.

By Franklyn Waltman

The distinct possibility that legislation for a universal 40-hour working week for American industry may in the near future be proposed by the White House gives a timely interest to some data regarding such an undertaking in the manufacture of American textiles, which was brought to light last week by the World Textile Conference, meeting here under auspices of the International Labor Organization.

WALTMAN.

Introduced to the 40-hour week by the NRA, American textile manufacturers maintained that standard after the Supreme Court shot down the Blue Eagle, so that today virtually the entire textile industry in this country is a 40-hour week. What is surprising is that these employers like the shortened work week so well that they undertook to sell the idea to foreign manufacturers during the textile conference.

In doing so they laid before the conference some data about the results of the 40-hour week during the last three years which surprised even those Government labor experts who regard the 40-hour week as both practical and feasible. The result attained in the textile industry may be impossible in other industries, but those results are worthy of careful study in any consideration of a 40-hour week.

They indicate how the workers in an industry—frequently termed one of the most backward from a social viewpoint—can share in the benefits of modern technological advances without impairing the interests of the owner nor imposing a burden on consumers.

So striking were the detailed statistical analyses submitted by the American delegates that the World Textile Conference included a rather elaborate summary of them in its report on the social problems of the textile industry. One statement concerned costs in a typical textile establishment during a six-year period in which working hours totaled 55 a week and during the last three years since hours were reduced to 40 a week.

One result of this reduction in working hours was to facilitate a change-over from a single to a two-shift system of working, the latter having become general throughout the United States.

"The change in the working week and the introduction of the two-shift sytem," the Textile Conference reported, "resulted in an immediate increase in manufacturing costs, but the increase in production was slightly in excess of the increase in the cost of production.

"It has been anticipated that the increase in labor costs would be 37½ per cent, but in actual fact the increase was only 12 per cent, though weekly wages were not lowered and hourly rates increased. This result was obtained by the utilization of improved machinery, a better arrangement of processes, application of skilled labor, a more adequate scheduling of the flow of production and a better selection of raw materials. The change from 55-hour to the 40-hour week thus demonstrated the necessity and possibility of improved technology.

"As for the effect of the change on the employer's interests, the statement showed that the dividends paid to investors during the 40-hour-week period averaged approximately the same as those paid during the 55-hour period. The amount available for expenditure on planned improvements with the shorter working week was approximately 70 per cent in excess of that available with the longer week, and the net working capital available was approximately 50 per cent in excess. The interests of the owners of the business, therefore, did not suffer by reason of the change.

"These results were typical of the experience of the cotton textile industry of the United States as a whole and served to indicate why the cotton textile manufacturers of that country considered the 40-hour working week as a practicable and desirable basis for operation of their industry, provided that the management has the continued opportunity to utilize the best available manufacturing technique."

"The Textile Conference found from the statements of the American delegates that "despite the stimulus to improved management due to the wage increases accompanying the shorter working week, United States cotton mills have not yet fully utilized the possibilities of installing modern equipment.

"Between 1923 and 1936 labor productivity," the report continued, "had increased very substantially (by more than 20 per cent in 12 out of 13 mills examined, and by as much as 55 per cent in one mill), and the change to a 40-hour week was essentially a delayed recognition of the technological progress that had been achieved over the preceding decade or was within the reach of the management.

"In spite of increased productivity, over the period from 1923 to 1929, the workers had secured almost no gains in earnings, nor could they have secured any gains except by collective agreement or legislation to bring about some equalization of wage rates in the several regions of the United States. The tendency of the wide divergencies in rates of pay until then has been to intensify competition, to sharpen the drive for technical progress, and, at the same time, to depress labor standards."

Although the workers' representatives attending the Textile Conference hailed the American experience as confirmation of their view that a reduction of the working week was both practicable and desirable, spokesmen for employers in other countries refused to accept the results of the United States experiment as conclusive.

Their principal argument was that what was practical here was not necessarily so elsewhere, because the American textile industry enjoys a large domestic market and is not subject to the foreign competition which the industry in other countries must meet. In this connection, much was made of the 8½ to 10 hours daily worked by Japanese textile industries with only two rest days a month and the 66-hour week in vogue in China.

The British employer spokesman laid stress on the connection between hours of work and wages and contended that since international regulation of wages was impossible it would likewise be impossible to establish an effective international regulation of hours. These were the reasons that the conference passed the buck regarding an international 40-hour week in textiles to the International Labor Conference which meets at Geneva in June.

At least it is very pleasant to have America leading the world—in a least one industry—in reducing working hours, especially since we have been reminded with such frequency lately that we are socially backward. And who would have believed that the textile industry would be the shining example!

4 Are Named As New Envoys By Roosevelt

Mrs. Harriman Is Among Group Nominated for Senate Approval.

By the Associated Press.

The new maritime commission filled several key positions yesterday in the organization it is setting up to administer the ship subsidy act.

In his first press conference since he became commission chairman, Joseph P. Kennedy announced that Max O'Rell Truitt, of St. Louis, Mo., would be general counsel. Truitt, he recalled, formerly was solicitor of the reconstruction corporation.

The commission also named John J. Burns, of Boston, former general counsel of the securities commission, special counsel; and John Carson, of Indianapolis, former secretary of the late Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, secretary.

Grady, who succeeds the late Thomas W. Page, of Virginia, is dean of the college of commerce of the University of California.

He has been identified with the Federal Government in many capacities, his most recent assignment being that of chief of the trade agreements division of the State Department.

As Minister to Bolivia, Caldwell will succeed R. Henry Norweb, of Ohio, recently transferred to the Dominican Republic.

Klossner was selected for the vacancy on the RFC created by the resignation of Charles T. Fisher, Detroit automobile executive.

About the time the nominations were submitted, the Senate confirmed a number of diplomatic appointments, including:

Lawrence A. Steinhardt, of New York, as Ambassador to Peru; Fred Morris Dearing, of Missouri, as Minister to Sweden; Edward Albright, of Tennessee, as Minister to Costa Rica; H. F. Arthur Schoenfeld, of Washington, as Minister to Finland; R. Henry Norweb, of Ohio, as Minister to the Dominican Republic; Eric C. Wendelin, of Massachusetts, as consul.

Wendelin, young recruit in the Foreign Service, was in charge of the American Embassy at Madrid during the early month of the Spanish civil war.

Fire Damages Car Near White House

Someone pulled a fire box at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania shortly before 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and a battalion chief, a fire truck, several pumpers and the radio scout responded.

After swerving through the mealtime traffic to the box the fire fighters saw a policeman pointing to smoke curling behind the White House.

$1,500,000,000 Relief Estimate To Be Submitted by President

ary, Mr. Roosevelt indicated a "layman's balance" could be brought about if relief spending was held within $1,537,000,000. Actually, the budget under this plan would have been out of balance by $400,000,000 paid into the sinking fund.

Proceeding with approximately the same relief figure, it now appears the 1938 budget may be out of balance by the $400,000,000, plus the sum by which tax receipts drop below estimates, plus any additional spending programs approved by Congress.

Sitting in at last night's conference with the President and Treasury officials were Senator Robinson, Vice President Garner, Speaker Bankhead, Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee; Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina; House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn; Chairman Edward T. Taylor, of the House Appropriations Committee, and Chairman Robert L. Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Senator Byrnes recently has been making a survey to determine if States could carry a larger portion of the relief burden, and Senator Harrison is said to feel that relief could be trimmed to provide funds needed for other measures pending in Congress.

It was learned further that Senator Harrison plans to push forward tomorrow with his bill to provide Federal education subsidies to the States. The measure, sponsored jointly with Senator Hugo Black (Democrat), Alabama, would authorize $100,000,000 the first year, and $1,000,000,000 over a period of five years. It has been informally but staunchly opposed by the Administration leadership.

Other measures which immediately threaten to force the budget further out of line are the farm tenancy measure, appropriating $135,000,000 the first year, and the Wagner housing bill, proposing $50,000,000 the first year of operation.

In addition, blocs are forming in Congress to increase the relief figures, and much local pressure is being exerted for more said.

The United States Conference of Mayors has urged $2,200,000,000 as a minimum for relief. In addition, Governors of the States almost unanimously are demanding that Government relief proceed at the present $2,000,000,000 a year rate.

A national survey by the Associated Press showed an almost solid gubernatorial front against reduction of the Federal program, if it means placing a greater burden on the States. Associated Press found only two Governors—a Democrat and a Republican—favored State assumption of the Federal relief burden.

Some liberals in Congress, led by Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr. (Progressive), Wisconsin, have been favoring new tax legislation to finance continued relief spending.

La Follette has suggested a three-point revenue program that would include both low and high income groups. The Wisconsin Progressive would lower exemptions from $2,500 to $2,000 for married persons, and $1,000 to $800 for single; increase the normal income tax rate from 4 to 6 per cent, and increase surtax rates on a graduated scale ranging from 4 per cent on incomes over $3,000 to 75 per cent on incomes over $5,000,000.

La Follette estimates his program would put 400,000 new taxpayers on a revenue-paying basis. He estimates the lower bracket rates would yield about $40,000,000 in new revenue, and the surtax increase approximately $175,000,000.

As against these drives for new spending programs and even more taxes, some economy-minded members of House and Senate have been appealing for budget-balancing and avoidance of new levies.

Yesterday in the House, Representative Arthur P. Lamneck (Democrat), Ohio, warned that continued spending is endangering Government credit, and said unless appropriations are checked there will be a more serious repetition of the 1929 collapse.

Lamneck said appropriations measures before Congress, including the regular departmental bills and those sponsored by individuals, total $16,200,000,000. Lamneck declared the Government is paying out half of its revenue receipts in grants, while tax receipts constitute only half of the expenditures.

The Lamneck speech was one of a series of economy appeals in House and Senate. Last week, Representative Clarence Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, chairman of the Agriculture appropriations subcommittee, said if all of the appropriations asked of his committee by members had been granted, the Government would have to sell "the site of the Treasury itself."

This Man knows how to Grow Hair

HE IS a trained Thomas scalp specialist. He knows the symptoms of the fourteen external causes of baldness and he knows specifically how each should be treated. He knows exactly how to end the various forms of dandruff; how to stop falling hair; and how to rejuvenate your scalp to a normal healthy condition conducive to the growth of strong new hair.

Your particular scalp disorder should be treated by this trained Thomas specialist who does nothing but examine and treat the various forms of hair and scalp troubles. In growing hair and preventing baldness he replaces guesswork and general "cure-all" remedies with scientific treatment designed to meet YOUR OWN particular needs.

Eighteen years ago Paul A. Thomas discovered the proper method of stimulating the dormant sources of hair growth. His method has been improved each year and today is as near perfect as any scalp treatment can be. First, Thomas treatment overcomes all local scalp infections, stops scalp itch and abnormal hair fall. It then stimulates the tiny glands in the scalp which nourish the hair. Thus, "sleeping hair" obtains sufficient strength to grow again and become visible on the scalp.

You, Too, Can Have a Good Head of Hair

Last year The Thomas' SUCCESSFULLY administered 344,183 treatments in their forty-five offices throughout the United States and Canada. This treatment grows hair, stops falling hair, ends dandruff, and makes the scalp healthy. What The Thomas' have done for others with their eighteen-year proved treatment they can do for YOU. Call for a complete examination by a Thomas specialist—there is no charge or obligation.

Sullen Gunmen Deny Guilt in G-Man Murder

Plead Not Guilty as U. S. Seeks Death Penalty in Shooting.

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, Kans., April 19.—Two sullen New York gangsters muttered pleas of innocence to murder charges today as Attorney General Cummings moved to hasten their trial for killing Federal Agent Wimberly W. Baker in a Topeka, Kans., gunfight.

"I find you both probably guilty of the offense charged," U. S. Commissioner Patrick W. Croker told the two, Robert Suhay and Albert Power, in formal court language as he held both without bail.

U. S. Attorney S. S. Alexander said he would demand the death penalty for the two men.

Before the brief arraignment had been completed the Attorney General in Washington said he had instructed Alexander to request the impaneling at Topeka of a special grand jury to hear the case. The regular grand jury does not meet until June.

Returned to Jail.

Suhay and Power, asserted principals in an $18,000 robbery of a Katonah, N. Y., bank, were captured by a country sheriff in Nebraska after they had blasted their way through a Government agent trap in the Topeka postoffice Friday. Baker was fatally shot as the men fled.

After the arraignment the men were hurried out of court and taken in separate cars to the Wyandotte County Jail.

Federal agents at Washington sent a fund of $7,156 to H. H. Baker, Yuma, Ariz., father of the slain officer. Baker's body was en route to Yuma today from Topeka. The 27-year-old agent, shot four times, died yesterday after an emergency operation and several transfusions.

Attorney General Cummings sent condolences to the Baker family for "the death of your courageous son who gave his life in the loyal performance of duty."

Meanwhile, Frank Stone, sr., chief of Topeka police, in a statement criticized methods of the Federal agents in the attempted capture which resulted in Baker's death.

"The G-men should have set their trap better and have taken us into their confidence," Stone said.

"If our own men had been on the scene they wouldn't have known whom to have fired upon."

Dwight Brantly, special agent in charge of the Kansas City Federal Bureau of Investigation office, said both Suhay and Power were paroled convicts and commented:

Paper Criticizes F. B. I.

By the United Press.

Topeka, Kans., April 19.—The Capital, owned by Senator Arthur Capper, today criticized J. Edgar Hoover's F. B. I. agents for the manner in which they handled the attempt to arrest two bank robbers here, in which one of the agents was fatally wounded.

"It is not unreasonable to believe that the New York gunmen could have been captured without bloodshed had the sheriff and Topeka police been called into co-operation," the editorial said. "Local officers may lack the finesse of the highly trained G-men, but they often capture their quarry without shooting up the town."

Stock Gifts Bared In SEC's Report

By the Associated Press.

Newton A. Tracy, of Toledo, Ohio, reported to the Securities Commission yesterday that he gave away 1,300 shares of stock in Airway Electric Appliance Co. on March 16. He is a director.

The commission summary of changes in holdings of officers and directors in their own companies reported gifts of 1,000 shares of Masonite Corporation by Charles J. Winton, jr., of Minneapolis; 800 shares of Abbott Laboratories by Ernest H. Volwiler, of North Chicago, Ill.; 500 shares of Libby, Owens, Ford Glass by Joseph B. Graham, of Detroit, and 1,500 shares of Gannett Company, Incorporated, by Frank E. Gannett, of Rochester, N. Y.

White House Rum No Peril, Is Reply Of Mrs. Roosevelt

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt doesn't know Capt. Edward Page Gaston, founder of the World Prohibition Foundation, but she sharply denied yesterday his forecast to Sunday school children that White House guests are, or would be befuddled by liquor.

Gaston told his listeners that liquor is flowing freely at the White House these days and, because several cases of potent Virgin Islands rum made by a Government-owned company are being presented to the President, persons may be expected to leave official functions even more befuddled than ever.

Who, asked Mrs. Roosevelt at her press conference yesterday, is Capt. Gaston?

"I doubt if anyone could arrive home in a befuddled condition from what he drinks at the White House," said the First Lady.

Social guests, she added, are served wine—and in moderation.

River Yields Body of Clerk Gone 2 Weeks

Veterans' Office Attache's Widow Tells of Debts; Waiter Ends Life.

The mystery back of a Veterans' Administration clerk's sudden disappearance two weeks ago was solved a few hours prior to discovery of the body of a veteran Mayflower Hotel waiter in the gas-filled kitchen of his home. Both were suicides.

The body of Forrest R. McClintic, missing Government clerk, was recovered by harbor police from the Anacostia River. He was 37, and lived at 1533 Pennsylvania avenue southeast. The body, apparently in the water a week or more, was discovered about 50 yards above the Anacostia Bridge by a colored PWA worker, Charles Dennis, 320 Second street southwest.

Frank Forde, 63, the waiter, was found dead in the kitchen of his home, 2136 O street northwest, by Malachy Clavin, a friend. Clavin, who stayed with him overnight, was himself almost overcome by the fumes.

All Gas Jets Open.

He awakened to find all jets of a gas stove open. Police found a typewritten letter addressed to Frank J. Kelly, believed to be a nephew, expressing "appreciation for the many kindnesses you have done me," and directing disposal of Forde's estate.

Identification of McClintic's body was made by his mother, Mrs. Lilly B. McMillan, 906 Virginia avenue southwest. His wife, Mrs. Mary Louise McClintic, also survives.

Illness and worry over debts caused McClintic to attempt a previous suicide, his wife told police at the time of his disappearance.

Shortly after her husband left home April 5, Mrs. McClintic found a note in which he told vaguely of debts he could not meet, she said.

Arlington Burial Asked.

In the note he asked for burial in the Arlington Cemetery and funeral services in the Fort Myer Chapel.

A Municipal Court summons was found in his pocket.

McClintic, according to the Veterans' Administration, had been employed there since 1934. He enlisted in the Army in October, 1918, and was discharged December of the same year.

He was married five years. His wife has three children by a former marriage.

House Unit Agrees On War Profit Bill

By the United Press.

The House Military Affairs Committee yesterday agreed tentatively on a war profits bill giving the President power to fix prices in war time and to mobilize industry.

At a secret session the committee approved the Hill-Shepherd measure designed to take the prtfits out of war and sent it back to a sub-committee for minor changes. Formal approval is expected later this week.

As originally introduced the bill fixed an excess-profits tax of 95 per cent on war profits above the level prevailing for the three years prior to the outbreak of the war.

Chairman David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, introduced a bill to authorize construction of six auxiliary vessels for the United States Navy.

fairs back into the hands of all the people."

In the Senate's brief session yesterday before the legislators adjourned by an understood unanimous consent to attend the opening baseball game of the season, Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, the minority leader, blocked Senate confirmation of 68-year-old Robert Lee Williams, nominated by the President for a seat on the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals.

McNary said he understood Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), California, wanted to express himself on Williams' confirmation. The jurist is one who wrote a letter to the Justice Department signifying his willingness to retire in two years, at the age of 70, in line with the President's plan.

In the Senate Judiciary Committee's morning session Alan M. Linburg, New York stock broker and a nephew of Gov. Herbert Lehman of New York, said the President's court bill "was a great blunder."

Senator George W. Norris (Independent Republican), Nebraska, introduced a constitutional amendment proposing to simplify the method of amending the Constitution by permitting a popular vote with ratification by two-thirds of the States, instead of the present three-fourths required.

Senator Carl A. Hatch (Democrat), New Mexico, introduced two amendments to the court bill, to provide for not more than one additional justice a year, in order to keep the court at nine.

Senator Guffey Speaks.

In the wide-flung range of speeches during the evening favoring the President's measure, talks were given by Senators Joseph F. Guffey, Democrat, Pennsylvania; Robert M. La Follette, Progressive, Wisconsin; Lewis Schwellenbach, Democrat, Washington; M. M. Logan, Democrat, Kentucky; Truman, Democrat, Missouri; Elbert D. Thomas, Democrat, Utah, and Governors Leche, Louisiana; Benson, Minnesota; Earle of Pennsylvania, Browning of Tennessee and Chandler of Kentucky.

LaFollette criticized the switch of Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts from the conservative to the liberal side as "the flying trapeze act."

Guffey said: "The court reform is the weapon to reduce the last great citadel of concentrated wealth and special privilege."

The Judiciary Committee hearings, now scheduled to continue to April 28, may yet terminate sooner, as both sides have found some difficulty in obtaining important witnesses to appear, it was learned yesterday.

$500,000 Asked of U. S. For Rogers Memorial

By the Associated Press.

Senators Thomas and Lee, Oklahoma Democrats, asked Congress yesterday for a $500,000 appropriation for construction of a memorial to the late Will Rogers.

They offered a bill providing for a Will Rogers memorial commission to be appointed by the President. This board would co-operate with the State of Oklahoma Will Rogers Memorial Commission in constructing a memorial on a site to be donated by Mrs. Will Rogers.

The $500,000 would be expended only if an equal amount was provided by other public and private donors. Plans would be subject to Mrs. Rogers' approval.

Pennsylvania's D. A. R. Honors National Chiefs

500 Attend Luncheon at Shoreham; Mrs. Becker Presented Gifts.

One of the biggest luncheons this week for national officers and State regents of the Daughters of the American Revolution was given yesterday at the Shoreham Hotel with Pennsylvania members as hostesses.

Approximately 500 women found their places at small tables in the gold ballroom. At a long table on a platform and another on the level with other tables were the guests of honor—national officers and State regents.

Mrs. Harry K. Daugherty, national chairman of radio, was toastmistress and introduced Mrs. H. D. Sheppard, State regent of Pennsylvania, who presented two gifts to the president general, Mrs. William A. Becker. The first of these was a blue leather purse, in which there was a sum of British money that Mrs. Becker may find useful when she takes her trip to England after the close of the D. A. R. Congress. The other gift was a small sewing bag made from remnants of silk from which the new D. A. R. flag, to be placed in the Valley Forge museum, was made.

The program continued with the singing of a group of songs by five pupils of the D. A. R. school in South Carolina. Brief speeches were made by Pennsylvania D. A. R. officers and Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of the Senator from Pennsylvania, and the following national officers: Mrs. Becker, Mrs. William H. Alexander, vice president general; Mrs. E. T. Boyd, chaplain general; Mrs. H. M. Robert, jr., treasurer general; Mrs. C. B. Keesee, corresponding secretary general; Mrs. L. R. Spencer, registrar general; Mrs. Julian G. Goodhue, historian general; Mrs. L. E. Tomm, librarian general, and Mrs. Robert J. Reed, curator general.

Among other prominent persons at the luncheon were Mrs. Russell William Magna, former president general; Mrs. Ira R. Springer, State vice regent of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Robert S. Birch, recording secretary, Mrs. Charles P. Wiles, chaplain; Mrs. Sue Reynolds, registrar general; Mrs. Robert S. Motter, State director; Mrs. Horace M. Jones, State treasurer; Mrs. C. Guiles Flower, State registrar; Mrs. W. W. Blake, State director; Mrs. H. R. Hawkey, State historian; Mrs. Michael W. Good, Mrs. H. C. McEldowney and Mrs. J. B. Heron.

Lieut. Col. Bowman Is Dead at Denver

Lieut. Col. Paul N. Bowman, Medical Corps, United States Army, died Sunday at Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver, Colo., where he had been stationed, the War Department announced yesterday. He was 51 years old. Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

Col. Bowman had several tours of duty in Washington. In 1922, he was detailed at Walter Reed Hospital from January to November. From 1923 to 1925 he was at the Soldiers' Home here, and the following year he again was stationed at Walter Reed.

A native of Reading, Pa., he was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1913, commissioned a first lieutenant in the Medical Reserve Corps three years later and called to active duty shortly afterward. He was successively promoted to major in the Reserves, vacating this assignment in 1920 to accept a commission in the Regular Army as captain, Medical Corps. He was promoted to major in 1929 and to lieutenant colonel two weeks ago. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ruth C. Bowman, of Denver.

Wife Shot in 'Triangle' Mistake by Mate Dies

Santa Cruz, Calif., April 19 (AP).—Mrs. Sally Boggs died today from bullet wounds police said were inflicted by her husband, Allen D. Boggs, early Saturday when he assertedly mistook her 12-year-old son for "another man" in her bedroom.

District Attorney Benjamin Knight immediately announced the State would bring a first-degree murder charge against Boggs, 53, an Army officer during the World War.

School Plans Approved.

Richmond, Va., April 19 (AP).—The Public Works Administration approved today the executed contract documents between the Augusta County school board and J. C. Senter, of Roanoke, covering general construction of the new $245,000 Waynesboro high school.

C. A. R. Session To Weigh New D. A. R. Tie-up

Closer Co-operation Goal With Convention Slated to Open Today.

Activities of the past year, plans for the future and means of improving co-operation with the D. A. R. were discussed yesterday by the national board of management, Children of the American Revolution.

A get-together luncheon at the Roosevelt Hotel for national officers, State directors, presidents and organizing presidents followed the national board meeting.

Mrs. James Henry Harper is State director of the District of Columbia C. A. R., which has 15 societies. Delegates to the forty-second annual convention are Nathan Heady, Betty Earll, Gail Coss, Mary Louise Forbes, Ruth Wilt, Albert Bowker, Robert DeShazo, Olive J. Digges, Edward William Digges, Robert Davidson, Bill Bennington, William Howard, Lee Nettleton, Gloria Riser, William Linton, Adeline McAllister and Virginia Scott.

Mary Elizabeth Robey and Bowker will be color bearers. Jean Marie Thomas will be one of two flower pages at the White House reception today. Also named as pages are Sally and Addams Stratton McAllister.

Mrs. C. A. Swann Sinclair will call the C. A. R. conclave to order at 10 a. m. following a concert by the Marine Band Orchestra.

Capt. Grigsby's Funeral Is Set For Tomorrow

Reserve Officer, 44, Dies in Brooklyn; Native of Capital.

Funeral services for Capt. Walter B. Grigsby, Officers' Reserve Corps, 44, who died Sunday at his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., will be held tomorrow at 160 North Carolina avenue southeast, at 1:30 p. m. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery at 2:30 p. m.

A native of Washington, he was educated at McKinley Manual Training School and at Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., from where he was graduated in 1916. His military training began at the Engineers' Training School at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., in 1917, and shortly afterward he saw service in the Mexican Punitive Expedition.

Following his honorable discharge in 1919, he was out of the service for five years. He became a captain in the Officers' Reserve Corps in 1924, assigned to the Sixty-first Cavalry, and later the Fourteenth Infantry with the New York National Guard, becoming assistant regimental plans training officer. He was a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Society of Refrigerating Engineers, and the Society of American Military Engineers.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Brenuinger Grigsby, and a daughter, Dorothy B. Grigsby, of Brooklyn; his mother, Mrs. Fannie M. Grigsby, and a sister, Mrs. Lucille Grigsby Gossage, both of Washington.

Bay State Society Will Dance Tonight

The Massachusetts Society of Washington will hold its annual Patriots Day dance tonight in the Wardman Park Hotel, at which time the guest speaker will be Senator Henry Cabot Lodge jr., of Massachusetts, who will speak on Lexington and Concord.

Robert Sheehan, another native son, now a student at the Georgetown School for Foreign Service, will entertain with a program of barytone solos. The State Regent of the D. A. R., Mrs. Frank L. Nason and her staff of officers also will be present.

General's Trial Is Today.

New Castle, Ky., April 19 (AP).—With two routine theft cases cleared from the docket, preliminaries ended late today for the trial of Brig. Gen. Henry H. Denhardt, charged with the murder of his attractive fiancee, Verna Garr Taylor, which opens tomorrow morning.

Olympic Champ Is Japanese Hero

Tokyo (Tuesday), April 20 (AP).—How a famous Olympic horseman led his cavalry command to victory in his first action against Manchurian bandits was described in dispatches today from Tsitsihar, Manchukuo.

Capt. Baron Takeichi Nishi, who won for Japan the Prix des Nations, outstanding award for equestrian skill, at the Los Angeles Olympic games in 1932, was the hero of a successful expedition Monday against a powerful outlaw band.

At the head of his troop he attaked the stronghold of 500 bandits in a dense forest in southwestern Heiho province, north of Tsitsihar, killed 31 of the enemy, scattered the rest and captured a large store of ammunition.

Mine Explosion Traps Inspector

Bellingham, Wash., April 19 (AP).—Rescue crews wearing gas masks worked tonight to reach Fred Lancaster, trapped 900 feet below the surface of the Bellingham coal mine by an explosion just before 140 miners were to enter the shaft.

Percy Lucas, mine president, said he believed a gas explosion occurred. Rescue crews said Lancaster might still be alive.

"Age Without Fear" is Mr. Coyle's explanation of the old age features of the Social Security Act, going on to show how the plan can be changed to avoid bureaucracy and confusion, and to make the pension a real guarantee of security. The result of discussions with recognized American authorities, put into simple words and combined with the practical philosophy of "Brass Tacks."

The publishing of these beautiful, well-printed books at 15c and 25c a volume is truly remarkable. These are all unabridged, unexpurgated editions, printed so that you may have them in your home. Not publishers' remainders, but new books issued on a co-operative basis and selected by an advisory board consisting of sixty of the most distinguished authors, scientists and educators in the United States, to bring literature into the home.

Tax Proposals To Be Discussed In House Today

Proceedings on D. C. Hearing in Sub-committee Will Be Broadcast.

Before microphones which will carry their testimony over Station WMAL, the District Commissioners this morning will discuss tax proposals before the special sub-committee of the House District Committee, headed by Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland.

The hearing will be held in the District Committee room on the third floor of the House Office Building. It is scheduled to begin at 10 a. m.

Auditor Daniel J. Donovan was expected to be the principal witness, but the latest reports were that he still is at home ill.

If the District heads are equipped with sufficient information, the hearing will run all day. Otherwise there will be only a morning session.

Following the District Commissioners spokesmen for civic and trade organizations will be given an opportunity to testify regarding the various tax proposals.

Kennedy yesterday advised all who have not made reservations to call the clerk of the House District Committee in the office of Chairman Mary T. Norton.

Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, scheduled the hearings for last week and then again to start yesterday, but each time he was compelled to postpone the time because of the necessity of having the auditor present.

Youth Is Theme Of Speakers at D. A. R. Session

ter, 2, and Stratton McAllister, 4, costumed as a Colonial dame and gentleman, appeared on the stage as representatives of the C. A. R.

Senator A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, one of the three speakers of the evening, urged D. A. R. members to carry on their work of perpetuating "the great tradition of American democracy by aiding the Nation's youth and warning them against false prophets."

Delivering the keynote address of the congress, Senator Moore described youth's stake in the modern world and stressed the duty of adults in bending the twigs the way the trees should be inclined.

Stresses Youth's Importance.

"I believe in the importance and significance of youth," the speaker declared. "It is a noble thing to perpetuate the traditions and the deeds of those who have gone before. It is a nobler thing to train and inspire the youth of America in the faith of their fathers, that they may carry high the banners of liberty for which their fathers died."

Pointing out that he believed in youth but not in a youth movement "that seeks to separate the problems of youth and regiment and delude and betray youth itself," he urged members of the D. A. R. to make the youth problem "your personal problem, and it will be solved."

Youth has done and will do the work of the world, he continued. "It is youth's country. It is youth's hands into which we deliver our country's future. We received the torch of liberty in our youth from those who went before. We deliver it, dimmed in these recent days to be sure, to the youth whose eager hands await."

Declaring that "we have a rendezvous, not with death but with life; not with the old, but with the young," Senator Moore closed his address by emphasizing that men and women today must fight the foes that "threaten disaster to our social and economic and political institutions. It is our supreme obligation to transmit to our children and our children's children that philosophy, that faith, that progress and that freedom which we have enjoyed," he said.

Mrs. Becker Speaks.

Mrs. William A. Becker, president general of the D. A. R., also stressed the adult's duty toward youth in her speech on "Living for the Ages." Education in citizenship is the purpose which runs through the plans and programs of the D. A. R., the forming of responsible men and women, for history reminds us that democracies do not continue to live when their citizens become lazy and indifferent, she averred.

"To youth let us turn, for in our hands we hold their fate," she went on. "In their hands lies the destiny of state. There is nothing that surpasses in importance the training we give to youth, helping boys and girls to useful lives, creating faith and confidence and developing the tools necessary for good living—spiritual and moral training, health protection, education according to each one's needs and space to grow—for they are the builders of the future."

The accent on youth, which characterized the program as a whole, was lifted for the period in which Sumner Welles, Assistant Secretary of State, delivered his address on "The Peace Policy of Our Government."

Discussing the means whereby this country can be safeguarded from being plunged into a war "not of our making," the speaker called attention to measures the Government has taken not only to preserve peace for the United States, but for the whole world.

The salient gains of the Inter-American Conference in Buenos Aires last December were two-fold, according to Welles. "First, the affirmation of the principles of democracy as a prime factor in assuring peace between the American Republics; and second, the contractual obligation entered into by the American nations to consult together whenever the peace of our continent is jeopardized."

Through consultation when their joint interests are affected, through continuous enlightment of their peoples as to the dangers which may arise, and as to the pacific methods for their solution, democratic governments, by the demand of the people, can and will keep peace, Welles continued.

No Peace Through Force.

"It may be that thinking men and women everywhere are coming to the conclusion, as a result of the experience of the 19 years which have elapsed since the termination of the World War, that peace under present conditions cannot in practice be achieved through the exercise of force," he said. "For a variety of causes, they have seen provisions for the employment of economic and military sanctions, and for the utilization of an international peace force, fail at least in part in giving rise to a peace-minded world."

When the devotion and untiring efforts of peace-loving men and women in all parts of the world are exerted in behalf of the creation of those conditions which alone can engender peace—the removal of rankling injustices; a common council table at which representatives of the world may sit and agree upon problems of commercial intercourse; a means whereby all people have means to test misinformation and appeals to prejudice—world peace will be a reality instead of a dream, said the speaker.

Following the calling of the Congress to order by the president general, the invocation was delivered by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington.

The pledge of allegiance to the flag, the singing of the National Anthem and the recital of the American Creed were followed by the presentation to the assembly of greetings from the Ambassador of Great Britain, Sir Ronald Lindsay; the Ambassador of France, M. Georges Bonnet; the president of the District of Columbia Board of Commissioners, Melvin C. Hazen; the national president of the Children of the American Revolution, Mrs. C. A. Swann Sinclair; the president general of the Sons of the American Revolution, Messmore Kendall.

Musical numbers for the program were given by Mario Chamlee, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Co., accompanied by Harvey Brown.

Special musical numbers for the program were given by Grace Adams East, trumpeter, and Mario Chamlee, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who was accompanied by Harvey Brown, pianist.

Preparedness Vital to Nation, D. A. R. Is Told

Dr. Healy Warns Rally of Insidious Attack on U. S. Defense.

Proper neutrality policies and preparedness will keep America out of war, Dr. Thomas Healy, dean of the school of foreign service, Georgetown University, told 2,000 Daughters of the American Revolution attending a national defense meeting yesterday afternoon at the Mayflower Hotel.

"Probably the strongest and most insidious attack now going on against national defense is based on a complete misconception of civic and religious rights and obligations," Dr. Healy declared. "Because of such misconceptions, millions of Americans are pledging themselves to refuse to participate in the defense of the United States."

Developing the latter point, the speaker pointed out that "Religious teachings of all ages and all countries show conclusively that military defense of one's country is a primary obligation imposed by the law of God."

Carlton Smith Speaks.

Peace problems from the point of view of European countries were discussed by Carleton Smith, traveler and news commentator, in a talk on "Impressions of Europe." Terming the conflict in Spain as "a dress rehearsal" for international war, Smith declared that "European nations from England to Soviet Russia are preparing for war.

"The people of these countries do not want it, and their dictators do not want it; but the things they are trying to get can be had only by war. When the struggle will come no one knows, but that it will come everybody knows."

The problem of "Immigration and the Alien" was discussed in detail by Theodore G. Holcombe, of the Immigration Restriction League of Boston. Prophesying that "we can look ahead to a live immigration problem for many years," Holcombe stressed that it will continue so long as the United States progresses "and our standard of living is higher than in other parts of the world."

Urging members of the D. A. R. to continue to play a leading part in developing and protecting the present immigration policy, the speaker suggested two ways in which the policy could be strengthened:

By establishing quotas for each of the countries on the basis of the number of visas issued to their natives in 1930; and by providing for reciprocal agreements with the countries, whereby we would admit in any year, in excess of the quota, as many of their natives as they admitted of ours in the preceeding year.

"Young America Speaks" was the subject of a talk given by Robert M. Calland, a student of Ohio University, who won the 1937 Pershing rifle award.

"Youth the Forgotten Man."

"Youth is the forgotten man, except by the radicals," he declared as a preface to his outline of organizations now seeking to regiment youth for anti-American purposes.

In charge of the meeting was Mrs. Vinton Earl Sisson, chairman of the committee for national defense through patriotic education. After each address she conducted a question period in which more than a score of women participated. Making a brief appearance at most of the meetings held in connection with the D. A. R. congress yesterday, Mrs. William A. Becker, president general of the society, was present at this meeting for a few minutes and spoke briefly on the aims and achievements of the national defense committee as they have been evidenced under the aegis of Mrs. Sisson.

Mrs. Nellie Cannon To Be Buried Today

Surviving are three daughters, May L. Cannon, Elsie Cannon and Mrs. Bertha Fers, and a son, Fred Cannon. All live in Washington.

40 Jews Are Seized By Nazi Secret Police

Berlin, April 19 (AP).—German secret police arrested approximately 40 members of the Jewish B'Nai B'rith Lodge in early morning raids on the homes of many members today. Officials refused to give any reason for the raids. At least one woman was reported among those taken into custody. The B'Nai Brith, unlike some lodges, has never been dissolved officially.

Jewish circles, commenting on the raids, said they believed a new wave of official anti-Semitism was under way.

Ban Public Ox Roasts, Hindus Urge Britain

Lahore, India, April 19 (AP).—Hindu leaders asked the British government today to cancel public ox-roasting ceremonies planned in various parts of the empire to coincide with the May 12 coronation.

A message from the leading Hindu orthodox body in India addressed to Lord Zetland, secretary of state for India, said the roastings would injure the feelings of King George's Hindu subjects, to whom the ox is sacred.

be sure of yourself with a clear SKIN from WITHIN

A SKIN that glows naturally bespeaks radiant health beneath... it is alive... stays fresh! So, be good to your skin from within and it will be good to you.

The reason for this is quite simple... skin tissues must have an abundance of red-blood-cells to aid in making the skin glow... to bring color to your cheeks... to build resistance to germ attacks.

It is so easy for these precious red-blood-cells to lose their vitality. Worry, overwork and undue strain take their toll. Sickness literally burns them up. Improper diet retards the development of new cells. Even a common cold kills them in great numbers.

Science, through S.S.S. Tonic, brings to you the means to regain this blood strength within a short space of time... the action of S.S.S. is cumulative and lasting.

Moreover, S.S.S. Tonic whets the appetite. Foods taste better... natural digestive juices are stimulated and finally the very food you eat is of more value. A very important step back to health.

You, too, will want to take S.S.S. Tonic to regain and to maintain your red-blood-cells... to restore lost weight... to regain energy... to strengthen nerves... and to give to your skin that natural health glow.

Take the S.S.S. Tonic treatment and shortly you should be delighted with the way you feel... and have your friends compliment you on the way you look.

S.S.S Tonic is especially designed to build sturdy health by restoring deficient red-blood-cells and it is time-tried and scientifically proven.

At all drug stores in two convenient sizes. The large size at a saving in price. There is no substitute for this time tested remedy. No ethical druggist will suggest something "just as good."

"I'M GLAD WE GOT OUT OF THE 'ALL THREE' CLASS"

"NOW WE'VE GOT A GREAT BIG NASH—AND IT COST ME ONLY A FEW DOLLARS MORE* THAN ONE OF THOSE SMALLER CARS!"

"I had an idea a Nash was about $200 out of my reach," said Mr. Schlanser. "When I checked on delivered prices... found the 117-inch wheelbase Nash sedan delivered for only a few dollars more than the same model of one of the 'All Three' small cars, I could hardly believe my eyes."

Yes, people are astonished when they check up on DELIVERED prices. The Nash LaFayette-"400"—much bigger than any of the "all three" small cars—DELIVERS for just a FEW dollars more.

You get a more powerful six cylinder motor, much larger hydraulic brakes, stronger steel body, wider seats, more headroom and legroom. A really big car. A car anybody can be PROUD of. And the difference in price? Just a few dollars—that's all.

$25 A MONTH! Ask about the convenient terms and low rates available through the Nash C. I. T. Budget plan. In most places, you can pay as little as $25 a month on your time payments. Automatic Cruising Gear now available on all Nash Models at slight extra cost.

Actual photograph of Nash LaFayette-"400" 4-Door Sedan with trunk

*FOR AS LITTLE AS $1 OR $2 A MONTH EXTRA YOU CAN GET OUT OF THE "ALL THREE" CLASS. A check-up recently made in ten representative cities shows that the Nash LaFayette-"400" 4-Door Sedan with trunk DELIVERS for just a FEW dollars more than the similarly equipped 4-door sedans of the "All Three" small cars. In many places, the SLIGHT difference in price amounts to just $1 or $2 a month extra on your time payments.

Fred B. Rhodes Case May Go To Jury Today

Irr Denies Signature as Prosecution Closes in Forgery Trial.

A jury in District Court may pass today on the fate of Fred B. Rhodes, one-time president of the closed Fidelity Building and Loan Association, who is being tried on an indictment charging him with forging the name of Desire A. Irr, a Government Printing Office engraver, to a withdrawal slip for $1,500.

Prosecution was concluded yesterday with the testimony of Irr, who had been pictured as a substantial depositor in the association. Irr denied that the name signed to the slip was in his handwriting and he denied he had authorized the signing of his name. In Rhodes' previous trial on the same charge, the trial was brought to an end when the jury failed to agree. Rhodes admitted signing the slip but claimed he had been given permission to do so by Irr.

Defense Attorneys William E. Leahy and William J. Hughes, jr., last night said they were prepared to begin Rhodes defense on the ground that he had tacit permission from Irr to draw on his account to assist the association over rough spots and also that in the alleged forgery, Rhodes, who had been for many years one of the leading members of the District Bar, had not profited a penny.

Yesterday Irr testified he had been told that money was coming in slowly and that "I have used some of your money—I knew it would be all right with you. The United States Treasury knew all about it and said it was all right."

He said Rhodes was the man who told him that.

"I said it would be all right," Irr said, "but the impression I got was that the money had been restored."

Arthur B. Nichols To Be Buried Today

Funeral services for Arthur Bass Nichols, attorney and long-time Washington resident, will be held at 2 p. m. today at his home, 1440 Kennedy street northwest. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Nichols, who was 70 years old, died at his home Sunday. He had been ill for about eight weeks.

Born in Chelsea, Mass., Mr. Nichols had lived in Washington since he was a child. He specialized in representing persons with claims against the Government.

Surviving are three sisters, Lizzie S. Nichols, Helen G. Nichols and Mrs. Ella M. Pawling, and two brothers, Frederick B. and Harry W. Nichols, all of Washington.

Dr. Bohn to Speak At Temple Forum

Dr. Frank Bohn, specialist in international relations and son-in-law of Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, will be the final speaker of the 1936-37 lecture series of the National Temple Forum of the Washington Hebrew Congregation on Eighth street.

Dr. Bohn will speak Sunday at 8:15 p. m. in the temple proper on the changing international scene, with special reference to Germany and the Jewish problem there. Dr. Bohn first visited Germany in 1915 as a representative of the New York Evening Post. His last visit was in 1933, when he received a first-hand picture of the Reich under the Hitler regime.

Radio Firm Loses FCC Hearing Suit

Suit by the Monocacy Broadcasting Co. to restrain the Federal Communications Commission from holding a public hearing on the granting of a permit for erection of a broadcasting station near Rockville, Md., was lost in the United States Court of Appeals yesterday. It was ruled that the company should have appealed directly to the appellate court instead of seeking an injunction in the District Court.

The company contended its application had been approved tentatively when a belated objection was filed by a local station. It was to bar the hearing of the latter protest that the company sought an injunction.

The court did not pass upon the merits of the question.

Federal, Press Co-operation Is Asked by Roper

Commerce Secretary Talks at News Association Session in N. Y.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 19.—Co-operation between Government and newspaper in behalf of the common good was urged today by Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, in an address before the annual luncheon meeting of the Associated Press.

The men behind the Nation's leading newspapers, after a morning business session, heard the Cabinet officer emphasize that the Nation's two outstanding needs were to awaken people further to their responsibility for law and order and to halt "the deterioration of home life and the common virtues inherent therein."

Frank B. Noyes, publisher of the Washington (D. C.) Star and president of the Associated Press, told the gathering he had no hesitancy in saying that he had "no squawk to make over the decision by the Supreme Court (upholding the Wagner labor act)."

"Be that as it may," said Mr. Noyes, "we of the Associated Press have believed that we had a right to select the employes through whom we must act in collecting the unbiased, uncolored, impartial news report upon which the 1,300 members of the organization insist as the foundation rock of a free press in America."

Secretary Roper noted the development of the Associated Press as "a dramatic story of human progress."

"Current national problems," the Secretary said, "bring a challenge to the press of America as an educational and partriotic agency such as it never before faced.

"The challenge is upon us as a people to realize that laws cannot be wisely construed nor effectively enforced without the assisting understanding, sympathy and co-operation of the people. It is therefore of prime importance that the people should be aroused through thoroughly informed leadership, to study the practice and theory of this Government and their responsibilities thereunder."

The Secretary deplored that "census statistics disclose that those of our people who are best suited to typify character, integrity and intelligence are not on the increase."

He added that those who have contributed leadership in every field of our national life "are failing in the important responsibility of self-production."

Mr. Roper urged that co-operation between Government and newspaper "in behalf of the common good * * * unquestionably should be the chief purpose and ambition of the two outstanding groups which we represent."

The annual Associated Press meeting today opened newspaperdom's big week of the year in New York. Tomorrow at 10 a. m., the American Newspaper Publishers Association opens its golden jubilee convention, which will last through Friday.

An Ounce Of Prevention.

One of the strongest objections raised to Government insurance of bank deposits is that it puts a premium upon unsound and irresponsible banking practices. When depositors are protected against loss they are inclined to become indifferent to the vagaries of management and refrain from "runs" even under provocation.

Of course, one of the great advantages of deposit insurance is the safeguards provided against "panic" runs which may break sound banks in addition to closing insolvent ones. On the other hand, the fear of runs has in the past acted as a salutary check upon banking managements. Under present conditions that check is very slight, and in its absence it is especially important for insured banks to be subjected to rigid official accounting for their acts.

It is reassuring for that reason to learn that the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation has warned a large number of banks that they will forfeit their insurable status if they continue to follow unsound practices. Furthermore, the FDIC has in one case proceeded from warnings to announcement of expulsion. This action serves notice that the FDIC does not propose to be used as a shield behind which bankers may risk depositors' money with impunity. Chairman Crowley is wisely proceeding upon the theory that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Deposit insurance itself is obviously not a remedy for the inherent defects of our banking system as now constituted. It merely provides a certain amount of protection for a limited number of individuals against the inevitable losses of that faulty mechanism. Even that protection will prove inadequate, as Mr. Crowley admits, if any substantial number of banks are permitted to indulge in unsound practices. Warnings and disciplinary action are, therefore, a basic precaution against the recurrence of conditions that have in the past resulted in an epidemic of bank closings.

Until a thoroughgoing reform of our banking system is undertaken, the best insurance that we have against losses to depositors lies in preventive action to forestall closings that would entail drains upon the FDIC's insurance reserves.

Federal Aids To Education.

The President's sudden if belated call for economy is expected to have at least one commendable effect. The bill proposing to distribute to the States $100,000,000 of Federal money this year and ultimately $300,000,000 every year "for the improvement of their public schools" seems almost certain to fail now.

Yet the measure met with so little opposition until recently that the arguments by which it has been advanced may well be examined. The probability is that its sponsors, notably the National Education Association, will not abandon their efforts to promote it if the bill fails of enactment at this session. Some such idea has been laid before Congress regularly since the close of the Civil War. The supporters of Federal subsidies for education are thoroughly hardened to defeat.

The principal recommendation of the current bill is the fact that those States on which the Nation must depend to maintain its urban population are generally the poorest, largely because their wealth is drained away by absentee corporations and stockholders. Under these circumstances, argue proponents of the bill, it behooves the entire Nation through its Federal offices to provide the children of those States with at least average educational opportunities which they now lack.

The objection is that this would plunge public education into national politics. Supporters of the bill reply that it is carefully worded to prevent anything like a "red rider" creeping into appropriation measures for education. The uneasy conviction remains, however, that if, as the bill contemplates, Mississippi should receive 62 per cent of its educational funds from Washington, no amount of careful wording could prevent some Congress from demanding the right to dictate the curricula of Mississippi's schools and all others.

A happier proposal for the expenditure of Federal money in the field of education—if there were any funds available—is to be found in the bill now before a Senate committee calling for an annual appropriation of $11,158,000 to be devoted to the training of handicapped children. There are some 2,000,000 children in the country today with speech deficiencies or eye, ear and other physical afflictions, of these, only 166,000 are receiving schooling. To help the State educational systems reach all children in this category would be a safe and, when finances permit, sensible enterprise for the Federal Government to undertake.

The Next Test.

A question of far-reaching importance awaits decision by the National Labor Relations Board. The recent opinion of the Supreme Court upholding the Wagner act makes it necessary for the board to determine whether employers may invoke the provisions of that law to determine who are the proper representatives of their employes. Will the board interpret the act as liberally as the court has done?

The importance of the decision is pointedly illustrated by the protracted fights between rival factions of organized seamen. For months these disputes have intermittently disrupted the operation of various steamship lines. Ship operators have found it impossible to effect a lasting settlement because the fight is really between opposing labor groups. After weary weeks of trying to adjust differences and prevent further interference with normal shipping operations, the International Mercantile Marine appealed to the board to determine which of the groups should be recognized as the rightful bargaining agency.

In this case two groups of workers also asked the N. L. R. B. to intervene. With these petitions before her, Mrs. Elinore M. Herrick, regional director of the board, settled the latest marine strike on the condition that an election be held to choose employe representatives. But the International Seamen's Union protested against the settlement on the ground that the board is not authorized to entertain complaints from employers.

Explaining that she acted upon the request of the employe groups, Mrs. Herrick said: "The N. L. R. B. does not accept or act upon charges filed by an employer because the act prohibits certain activities by employers and therefore only employers can be accused of violating the act." Presumably the election would not have been called if only the employers had requested it.

Senator Wagner, author of the law, has taken a very different view. In an address immediately following the Supreme Court's decisions of April 12, he said:

> Now that the Supreme Court has sanctioned the National Labor Relations Act and approved the board administering it, let employers and workers come freely before the board with their difficulties.
> Contrary to the propaganda, either side is at liberty to do so.

The law does not specifically instruct the board to act on petitions from employers. Nor does it prohibit such action. Since its central purpose is to encourage collective bargaining, however, the denial of an employer's request for an election to choose employe representatives for bargaining purposes would scarcely be in keeping with the spirit of the act. If the board holds to the policy of liberal interpretation for which the Administration successfully argued before the Supreme Court, both employers and employes will be permitted to call for such elections.

If small groups of employes should be permitted to tie up an industry by strikes and at the same time prevent effective bargaining as contemplated by the Wagner act, an intolerable situation might easily develop. Any objective person will be inclined to agree, therefore, that employers, as well as employes, should be able to carry their grievances before the board. If the N. L. R. B. should find anything in the law to prevent such an impartial policy, an amendment will be necessary. In view of the position he has taken, Senator Wagner might feel obligated to sponsor such a change.

Their Real Grievance.

Still fulminating over Mayor LaGuardia's recent anti-Hitler remarks, the regimented German press is working itself into a new lather over another American "insult." This time the source of provocation is a film, "Christian Martyrs in Contemporary Germany," which consists for the most part of a plea by the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick for aid to German Christian refugees.

Having forced many thousands of German Christians into exile, the Nazi regime is perturbed because co-religionists in the United States are calling attention to the consequences of that persecution and asking succor for Hitler's victims. Not content with its frontal attack on spiritual values, the Third Reich apparently seeks nothing less than the suppression of all facts concerning such destruction.

What irritates the Nazis is only in part such vituperative remarks as those which Mayor LaGuardia made some time ago. Their basic quarrel is with the perpetuation in other lands of that liberty of thought and expression which have so ruthlessly been stamped out in Germany.

As long as Americans are free to speak their minds, and in so doing incidentally, hold the mirror up to Nazi Germany, its devotees cannot feel easy. Their idea of friendly relations between Germany and the United States is therefore based on the presumption that no statement displeasing to the Berlin regime and its rulers should ever be allowed to appear in print or made from the platform in the United States.

That is why even a hundred State Department apologies would never satisfy them. That is why the American people will have to put up with an incessant Nazi vituperation whose vehemence is the product of a guilty conscience.

A Census Of The Unemployed.

Senator Vandenberg's efforts to discredit the employment estimates of the Bureau of Labor Statistics have sadly miscarried. Moreover, his own errors of calculation provide fresh evidence of the relative uselessness of a single enumeration of the unemployed.

The Senator assumes that the registration of persons eligible for old-age insurance benefits indicates with fair accuracy the total numbers employed in insured industries. Hence, he concludes that the Bureau of Labor Statistics has grossly underestimated the total volume of unemployment in both insured and uninsured industries. Experts point out, however, that probably 4,000,000 of the 26,000,000 names registered with the Social Security Board represent duplications, ineligibles and persons who have lost their jobs since registering. If allowance be made for these factors, it appears that the Senator's estimate of the numbers now employed does not diverge widely from official figures.

Eventually the Social Security Board will complete revision of its lists, eliminating ineligibles and erasing duplications. However, its rolls will never be a true reflection of the perpetually changing volume of employment in insured industries. A Nation-wide employment census would, of course, be more comprehensive, covering industries not embraced by the social security act. But it would be an equally misleading gauge of current employment conditions, because it would be out of date before it could be compiled.

Intelligent handling of relief and employment problems requires day to day information showing variations in the numbers of employable men and women willing to work but unable to find jobs. In addition to being behind the times, a census of the idle would certainly be heavily padded with unemployables and malingerers. These groups are speedily segregated when registration is required of those seeking work and opportunity afforded to test a man's willingness to accept suitable employment.

Such segregation is secured under the unemployment insurance provisions of the social security act which requires payment of benefits through public employment offices or approved State agencies. Now that 43 States and the District of Columbia have unemployment insurance laws, the system of registration for insured industries is almost Nation-wide. The legislatures of the remaining States are now in session, moreover, and are expected to take action soon upon unemployment insurance measures.

Thus compulsory registration of insured workers, together with the extension of placement work by public employment offices in non-insured occupations, is being rapidly developed. As it expands, increasingly complete and reliable reports as to the number of unemployables out of work will be available. That is the kind of information needed by our public officials as a guide to policy. It would be worse than a waste of money to try to improve upon this somewhat slow but sure method of approach by taking a hurried census of the unemployed.

Once In A Lifetime.

Lord Marley, a British peer traveling in this country, has advised Americans to stay away from the coronation of George VI. He does not wish to see his friends here "overcharged for accommodations" at a spectacle best characterized in his mind by its "general commercialization." One suspects, too, that perhaps he has another motive and one easily appreciated by Washingtonians after the latest influx of cherry blossom visitors. Perhaps he is secretly fearful of London's streets and buildings becoming so jammed by Americans that many Englishmen will be denied their fun.

Despite his fears, however, the eastward trek across the Atlantic has already begun. For London is agog, even though the ceremonies are not scheduled to begin until May 12. A ship has just docked bearing sultans, maharajahs and other Oriental potentates. The social whirl is rising higher as these and other guests from the Dominions and the whole world arrive. And Sunday's rehearsal of the coronation parade, with all the bands and regiments and horses marching in practice along the processional route, will whet a million appetites for glamour.

Even if Lord Marley had been speaking from some spot nearer London than California, it is highly doubtful whether he could have deterred any planning to attend. For an English King, commanding all the pomp and circumstance that the whole world craves, but which not even Hollywood can simulate, is crowned only once in most men's lives. On such occasions traveling Americans love to be exploited.

An Australian View.

From the Melbourne Argus.

No voice, however emphatic; no roar, however loud, can be properly regarded as having given President Roosevelt anything greater than that with which the Constitution of the United States has endowed the President. The Constitution provides for a Supreme Court, the purpose of which is to safeguard the people against usurpation of power by the President or by Congress consisting of the Senate and the House of Representatives, both of which have been elected by the people. The apparent paradox of the people being protected against themselves disappears in the limitation which has been imposed by the Constitution on the President and Congress. Neither must do more than is authorized by the Constitution. There is a veto by the people on an expansion of authority and the people alone can remove it.

Save The Cherry Trees

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial "No Decent Respect" deserves high commendation, accompanied as it was be the effective cartoon depicting the brainless giant ready to destroy the cherry trees around the Tidal Basin.

I agree with a recent correspondent who suggests a planetarium or a singing tower on some high point, as in keeping with Jefferson's ideals and tastes.

As the Washington and Lincoln memorials now stand, they supplement each other, there is a restful and charming harmony in their positions with respect to each other, and in the general setting. Surrounded as they are by open spaces and Nature's beauty, they seem not so much a structure as the embodiment of the soul they were designed to honor. A third nearby memorial would destroy this artistic effect. It would create a lopsided triangle, with the newcomer apparently trying to outdo the others, bringing a sense of loss of balance and of unseemly rivalry. Would Jefferson approve?

A memorial that shouts "Look at me, I am the finest yet," hardly seems a fitting tribute to the great and democratic Jefferson. But a Jefferson Memorial Planetarium, erected elsewhere, could be made a marvel of beauty as well as a perpetual means of advancing knowledge. Location? Preferably on a hill, but anywhere rather than spoil the effect of those we have erected. There are dozens of eyesores that could be removed and their location beautified.

However that may be, the main thing now is to save the cherry trees. They are a beauty spot famed the world over. It would be a crime to destroy them. This year they are marvelously beautiful. Your correspondent has already walked around under them four different times, and each time they seemed lovelier than before. Their beauty is food to the soul, they are loved by tens of thousands of residents and visitors.

It is not alone the individual beauty of each tree, but the massed effect of the groups and borders around the Tidal Basin, the lacy branches overhanging the water, doubled by the reflections in water, the vistas of various ones of Washington's buildings through the sprays of blossoms, and even the falling of the dainty petals in little snowstorms, which, when they light by thousands on the surface of the water, form into graceful patterns with the washing of waves.

How could any sane human being conceive the idea of destroying all that beauty, and think that thereby an honor would be done to the great Thomas Jefferson, who was himself a lover of Nature's beauties?

Furthermore, the public parks in Washington are the property of the Nation—the American people. And while planning committees are necessary to decide on improvements, it is not right that the irreparable destruction of so beautiful a section should be suddenly decided and put over before the people know of it. It is only within the last few weeks that the residents have known of the contemplated destruction. The Nation has not yet realized the impending disaster.

Oh, Congress, come to the rescue! Do not allow this desecration.

C. L. WOOLSEY.
Washington, April 17.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Aside from the esthetic and commercial arguments against replacing the Japanese cherry trees with a memorial to Thomas Jefferson, there is an international aspect which has not been stressed.

In the Japanese system of government the Mikado occupies a very unique position which it is probably hard for the American mind to grasp. I quote from chapter 1, article 3, of the Japanese constitution. "The Emperor is sacred and inviolable." A commentary on their constitution gives the following interpretation of the above article.

"The absolute authority of the Emperor constitutes the basis of our national system. It is the foundation on which the nation stands. If there were no emperor there would be no nation. Without him there would be no subjects and our territory would cease to exist. He has the blood of the gods in his veins. He is god of light; he is manifest god. The Emperor is heaven descended, divine and sacred. Authority is vested in a single person. His authority is unique. He is the absolute ruler determined by the divine ancestor."

Inasmuch as the cherry trees were a gift from the Mikado to this government as a token of good will and esteem, to remove them would be a grave act of discourtesy to the children of Yamato. The Japanese are a sensitive and very proud people. The greatest of care should be taken not to insult them. Whether we believe in their ideas concerning the Mikado or not we might at least respect their beliefs.

In order to grasp this rather delicate situation just reverse the position in your mind. Try to place yourselves in the position of the children of Yamato. Suppose the United States had given some rare species of trees to Japan as a gift, a token of good will and esteem, and that after 25 years they were removed in order to erect a memorial to another, how would the people of the United States feel toward Japan?

I feel that another site can be selected for the Jefferson Memorial and that the cherry trees should be permitted to remain where they are now located. IVO DE CAPET.
Washington, April 17.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial on "Good-by Cherry Blossoms" encourages me to write this appeal:

No place has a more exquisitely beautiful corner than Washington. The cherry-blossom-bordered Tidal Basin is already a national shrine and pilgrims from every State choose the spring for their journey to the Capital. Even we, who view the sight annually, walk under the trees in a hushed silence, so marvelous and unreal is their beauty. It has taken years to produce this effect. The body of water is unique and beautiful in shape. The trees are exquisite. Only watchful care of trees and grass is desirable—any other act would be desecration.

The thought of disturbing this lovely place so saddens me that as one who lives in and loves Washington and glories in its beauty, I write this plea for reconsideration of the site of the Jefferson Memorial. Cannot a bridge similar to the Arlington Memorial Bridge replace the outmoded ugly iron one which spans the river between Washington and Virginia? Yearly the parks and planting on both sides of the Potomac are becoming more beautiful and the bridges connecting the parks should adorn and not mar the scene.

What could be a more fitting memorial to the great man than a bridge to be called the Thomas Jefferson Bridge connecting his native State of Virginia to the Capital City? It would give great pleasure to the multitude of people who from the boulevards look on a picture of unsurpassed beauty marred now only by the two antiquated iron bridges.

Washington, April 16.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A new high in civic dumbness has been committed in local and bureaucratic circles, whose only reaction to the public clamor is—as was the case with the tortured parks last year—"let 'em rave. We'll slip 'em the dose anyhow and make 'em like it."

Yes, I refer to the destined Jefferson marble house, which a defendant of the idea said not long ago would be preferable to a stagnant fish pond reeking of malodorous and decadent marine growth. He failed to state how reduction of the size of the basin would solve this situation. But he did offer an idea, if one defense of the scheme is the employment it would provide. For 5 per cent of the cost of the latest brainstorm the floor of the basin could be cleared, destagnated, improved—operations toward which end were under way and abandoned 30 years ago.

One great fear is that this ebullition of demand (excluding the voiceless citizens of course) by the all-knowing committee will be the prelude to some hideous blot on the Ellipse called a stadium-parking amphitheater.

Will Congress signalize this great gift by again reducing the governmental share of Washington's expenses?

Abolition of the whole idea would fit in well with the belated Roosevelt recognition of his budget balance promises and the need of economy. G. A. FARSON.
Washington, April 17.

District Relief.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This is the way that I understand Washington's relief situation.

There was an insufficient relief appropriation last year. Because of this the charity organizations tried to help the needy, but a lack of funds made them limit their help to unemployables (those people who are physically incapable of working.)

A widow and her children would not receive help because the mother was employable. Those families who were lucky enough to be sick received under $30 a month.

This deplorable situation could have been helped. It was predicted at least six months ago. Last October the public assistance division asked the District Commissioners for a deficiency appropriation of $830,000. From the action that this report received I assume that the report was sent to the wrong place. As much could have been accomplished if the report had been addressed to the dead letter office.

The District Commissioners did not assume the responsibility of relief. The Budget Bureau asked for no appropriation in the 1938 budget. The District cannot control its relief.

The least that Congress could do would be to acquaint itself with accurate information on the unemployed. Congress should authorize a certifying agency that would report directly to Congress. This agency would examine the unemployed to see if they really needed help. This agency would then acquaint Congress with the facts and Congress could then act accordingly. As it stands now Congress knows nothing about the situation because of the intermediaries.

OH SAY.
Washington April 17.

Catholic Schools.

To the Edtior of The Post—Sir: It is stated that about 50 per cent of all Catholic children are being educated in parochial schools and that about one-tenth of the school population of the United States elementary and secondary is in the Catholic schools. This involves double taxation for our Catholic neighbors, and the amount involved is far greater than is generally realized. If the public school system were to absorb the children now in parochial schools, it would require about $750,000,000 to erect new school buildings, with an additional cost of maintenance amounting to $300,000,000. Such a change would, for example, increase the cost of public schools in the State of New York alone about $57,000,000 annually.

The State cannot consistently pay the expense of parochial schools, for that would precipitate a religious issue and demands would be made immediately by sectarian and other private schools for a corresponding share of public support. However, credit must be given to the Catholics for the highly commendable sacrifice which they make for their children and the enormous expense which this saves to the non-Catholic taxpayer.

What Is Misrepresentation?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I note that Mr. Alexander Sidney Lanier in his letter to you, published in The Post April 14, views with alarm the effects on the freedom of the press because of its interstate circulation. I should like Mr. Lanier to define just what he means by the "freedom of the press." Does he mean the right of owners of newspapers to print, publish and circulate propaganda to suit the purposes of certain powerful groups?

Does Mr. Lanier believe that newspapers should be allowed continually to misrepresent, twist and color the issues of importance to the great masses of people?

Does Mr. Lanier approve of the newspapers trying sensational murder cases before they reach the courts?

If this means freedom of the press, then the press should be regulated and licensed!

Misrepresentations were so wild and unrestrained just before election that President Roosevelt was compelled to speak of them.

Washington's Floating Wealth.

RIDING at anchor in Washington, Georgetown and Anacostia channels of the Potomac is a vast array of cruisers, launches, yachts, runabouts, comets and dinghies. More than 400 craft belong to the five local yachting clubs and the enthusiastic no-club boating fraternity.

The Corinthian Yacht Club, largest of the Washington organizations, has a membership of 225 and a fleet of 170 yachts. The Capital Yacht Club is the parent association of the sport in the Washington area. It has a roster of 93 members who cruise river and bay in 56 pleasure yachts. The Washington Yacht Club, of the Anacostia Channel; the Eastern Power Boat Club, and the Old Dominion Club, of Alexandria, specializing in rowing, are other alliances, more or less of modern origin, which put on nautical toggery and sail pleasurably and competitively over billowy waves during the boating season.

Soon these water craft, pride of each owner, will be tugging and pulling at their moorings; chugging, sputtering or purring along, as the case may be. They, too, realize the urge and surge of the season. Many will be stream-lined; others, not of graceful contour—each will be essential to the Capital's marine picture of the spring and summer water front.

While never looked upon as one of the yachting centers of the Nation, Washington has valid claims to distinction. In a general survey of the various clubs and boat owners, it developed that there are registered here 321 cruisers, 71 runabouts and about 20 sailing craft of various types.

The aggregation represents an investment well over $2,000,000, and, in addition to these, visiting craft at anchor in the protected waterways of the Potomac at various times add another $1,700,000 to the value of boats floating on the river.

The Potomac has long been an important link in the nautical life of the American people. Far back in history, Georgetown was a port to which ships came from foreign lands, as the old custom house still standing there testifies. Further down the river, Alexandria was another important commercial port. But as time passed and as ships grew larger, these river ports lost out to the cities on the seaboard.

"Yacht," freely bandied about in our every-day American speech, is of Dutch origin—"jagt," a swift vessel.

Ireland is said to be the "father" of the first yacht club—the "Water Club of the Harbour of Cork"—founded in 1720. England forged to the front in 1812, when there was founded at Cowes, Isle of Wight, the "Yacht Club," which still exists as the Royal Yacht Squadron. The first American yacht club was the New York Yacht Club, organized July 20, 1844, mainly through the efforts of Col. John C. Stevens, a yachting enthusiast, and his brother, Edwin.

On October 19, 1892, Washington stepped into line when the Capital Yacht Club was organized, now in its forty-fifth year. It is the oldest local yacht club, incorporated in 1900 and reincorporated in 1926.

Its pioneer officers included John Hoeke, commodore; Leonard Wilson, vice commodore; Allen T. Smith, secretary, and Arthur T. Rauterberg, treasurer. In addition to Commodore Richard S. Doyle, its present staff of officers includes T. F. Schneider, vice commodore, and Daniel H. Fowler, secretary-treasurer.

The Corinthian Yacht Club was organized in 1903 by a group of water-loving youths, with a tiny fleet of sailing craft. Its original anchorage, 34 years ago, was at the old Cumberland boathouse, in Georgetown; later, on the Washington Channel, and subsequently on the Virginia shore at the south end of Highway Bridge. In the fall of 1929, the Federal Government took possession of the ground and harbor as a part of the Mount Vernon boulevard. When the Government needed the ground during the World War the clubhouse was placed on pontoons and floated to Anacostia Park. Fire years later it was moved to its present loction, First and V streets southwest.

Ross L. Fryer was the first commodore, serving in 1903 and 1904. The present officers are Edward Baltz, commodore; J. H. Galliher, vice commodore; Edgar Brauner, rear commodore; L. W. Walker, secretary-treasurer; Warren C. Mitchell, recording secretary, and Edward Baltz, C. H. Claudy and Edgar Brauner, trustees.

In 1926 the Corinthian Yacht Club brought powerful speed boats to Washington to compete in the President's Cup regatta races, for a gold cup, judged as the most beautiful and highly prized of all trophies. With the seventh running of this regatta in September, Washington should be placed definitely on the boating map of the country, alongside New York and Detroit, long famous for their races and yachting events.

* * * *

If there is anyone in the city who does not believe that romance may be discovered in boating on the Potomac River, within a radius of 100 miles or less, just let him buy a boat. More and more each year, Washingtonians who enjoy aquatic amusements and who can afford to run either large or small yachts hear and heed the compelling whisper—the Potomac calls you today!

Legalized Crime.

ONE WAY to abolish crime is to legalize it, and that is what Florida attempted to do with the slot machine racket. That State authorized licenses for the one-armed bandits at the rate of one for every 100 inhabitants, which means that Dade County, including Miami and Miami Beach, was entitled to 1,800 permits.

The license fee was $60 for each bandit, of which the county and State took $30 and the municipality the other half. It was later pointed out that the bandits are not sold but leased through agents or licensees, who leased them, in turn, to the local storekeepers who had taken out the permits for their operation.

So the State courts decided that agents also would have to buy licenses at the same rate. That meant a net of $120 per machine, but this was a trifling matter.

Even in a square machine, the chance of hitting the jackpot is estimated at one in 8,000, and the payoff, even then, ranges between 8 to 1 and 150 to 1. There are bandits in operation which have not been known to give a jackpot all year, for there is nothing to forbid the insertion of a gimmick in the gears to make certain that it never will succumb to a generous impulse.

* * * *

THE MACHINES were set up in stores and saloons all over the place, and the harvest has been incalculable, but one representative of the slots arguing against an injunction said this writ would deprive his clients of $20,000,000 in profits this year in Dade County alone, so it is likely that the rakeoff in the State since the season began last fall has far exceeded the return of the palmiest days of Monte Carlo.

Last fall most of the counties voted by popular referendum to repeal the slot machine law, and Dade County was among them. It was held, however, that the existing licenses must be respected until their expiration next October, and there is no reason to expect serious interference even then.

The bandits will simply return to their old, illegal status; business will continue as usual, and the local statesmen, who lost their private and unofficial licensing powers, will resume their informal but highly lucrative dealings with the racket. Illegality never embarrassed the slots in the days before the law, and the community never was naive enough to believe that the elected officials were in politics for their health or for their official pay.

They have a curious attitude toward graft in Florida. Not even the preachers appear to mind.

This season the slot machine law, through the ingenious interpretation of a gambling house operator from the North, was stretched to permit the operation of roulette and crap tables, bird cages and all the standard devices of the fully equipped gambling house.

* * * *

THE LAW MENTIONED "other devices," and the dealer from the North bought five licenses for five table games, which he defended as "other devices" in the intent of the Legislature. Other operators likewise transferred bandit licenses to their tables, and by attaching a slot to a table and dropping a coin in the slot before each deal the operator complied with the law. The coin could be a dime, a nickel or even a penny. It was nobody's business what it was, and the operator was not bothered to insert a fresh coin each time. The machine was his and he could tap it any time he liked, so he just put a coin in the slot and held his hand under to catch it when it came out.

Next fall, of course, owing to the repeal by popular vote, the protection of the bandit law will be removed from the parlor games, too, but, like the slots, they always prospered and suffered little molestation before the law, so there is no reason to believe they will be harassed unduly next season, provided, of course, that the proprietors make the proper arrangements.

Viewing the joyous open abandon with which the rackets operate in Miami, no practical, worldly person can feel any sense of indignation. The community revels in its utter immorality, and common citizens have no feeling of being betrayed.

Your correspondent's sensation, therefore, is one of awe at the magnificent gall of the grafters, the cocky impudence of the racketeers and the stupendous total of the take both in graft and profit.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The Lure of a Country Store.

("Yes, I meant it the other day when I said my ambition is to run a grocery store. I worked in one when I was a boy and I'm still pretty happy in a first-class grocery. I like the smell of things."—Gov. Wilbur L. Cross, who at 68 became Governor of Connecticut after many years as a teacher at Yale, and who at 75 admits a desire for a third career.)

The classroom has a strong appeal,
As any teacher knows;
Through academic life, I feel,
Great satisfaction flows.
In public service there is fun—
I like it more and more,
But just the same I'd like to run
A country grocery store.

II

For nearly half a century
I taught young bloods at Yale;
It never once seemed dull to me,
Prosaic, dry or stale.
My State's chief post I chanced to win,
And fond of it I've grown—
But let me be a grocer in
Some little country town!

III

Four terms in office I have had—
(They just won't let me out)—
I've had my innings, good and bad,
And learned my way about.
Distinctions of that sort are fine,
But all of them I'd drop
To see above a store the sign,
"Town Market. Will Cross, Prop."

IV

I like the chance to serve my State
And be a friend of man;
The joy of it's been rather great
Since my first term began;
The cheers are pleasing to the ear—
The honor's high—but still
I'd like to run a store and hear,
"A pound of coffee, Will!"

V

I like the smell of village stores—
Of coffee being ground . . .
Of sawdust on the wooden floors
And spices just unbound . . .
Of cinnamon and country cheese . . .
Of poultry, meat and shad . . .
(The Capitol has none of these——
I rather wish it had!)

VI

The cracker barrels in a row—
The flour barrels, too . . .
(I knew them in the long ago)
And green things fresh and new! . . .
The jugs of cider in the fall . . .
Molasses hogsheads . . . boy!
You take State plaudits, one and all—
I know a greater joy!

VII

A country store in Mansfield town—
That's my ambition now;
With goods wrapped up in paper brown—
(And in the yard a cow),
At seventy and five I'd start
That market one-two-three,
If this old State would have a heart
And stop electing me!

Advent Of Social Economics

Butler's I.L.O. Report Reflects Revisions In Labor Ideas.

By Bertram Pickard.
(Special Correspondence of The Post).
Geneva.

ANY OBSERVER of the international scene in general, and the Geneva scene in particular, must have been struck by the fact that, whereas the League of Nations has passed through a series of violent crises, and is very far from being the universal institution intended by its founders, the International Labor Organization proceeds more or less tranquilly upon its appointed way and, apart from Germany, comprises all the great states of the world and virtually all the smaller ones.

Whatever might be said about the utility of the League and the relevance, in the postwar context, of the political philosophy enshrined in its Covenant, it is obvious that the I. L. O. and the social philosophy of its charter have justified themselves in no small measure, in the light of experience and the sight of world opinion.

Albert Thomas First Formalized Philosophy.

THIS SOCIAL philosophy was often emphasized by Albert Thomas, the first director.

In his foreword to "The I. L. O.—the First Decade," the official book which described the origin and development of the I. L. O. during the first ten years of its existence, the late Albert Thomas argued, that the protection of the workers must not, in the last analysis, be subject to the shibboleth of "economic necessity," or to so-called "economic laws," but "must take precedence over the economic factor" and indeed "regulate and guide it."

At that time such sentiments were doubtless regarded in many quarters as wild, and more than a little woolly. It would be commonly assumed that the "economic factor" was in fact the determining one, that "necessity" was "necessity" and that "laws," after all, were "laws."

If Albert Thomas were here today, he would read with avidity what his successor, Harold Butler, has to say about the "Lessons of the Slump," in his report to the twenty-third session of the International Labor Conference, and would relish to the full the confirmation he would find there of his own social theories and policy.

Mr. Butler is not foolish enough to maintain that the Great Slump has been a blessing in disguise. Nevertheless, he recalls the old adage, "It is an ill wind that blows nobody any good," and demonstrates, with chapter and verse, that "the comprehension of social justice and of the economic means to promote it has been strengthened rather than weakened." Moreover, that much unexpectedly valuable experience has been acquired in connection with the problem of unemployment, the place of the social services, wage policy and monetary technique.

Controls Discovered Over Economic Forces.

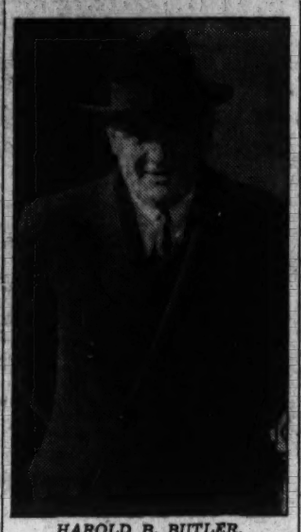
GOVERNMENTS have found through the experience of the depression that man is able to exercise some control at least over economic facts and situations which hitherto had generally been considered "natural forces" or "acts of God' automatically working out their predestined consequences with the inevitability of fate."

This discovery, Mr. Butler suggests, was especially timely and important since "the presence of widespread misery and unemployment no longer appears tolerable in a world which is able to satisfy every human need in rapidly increasing measure."

Consider unemployment, for example. It was formerly assumed that the unemployed were either lazy or unemployable. But such an idea could not possibly survive the experience of 1932 when there were some 30,000,000 workers idle through no fault of their own, the vast mmajority of whom were despreately anxious to find work.

Hence unemployment relief, on a wide scale, was seen to be as morally justified as it was politically necessary. Such public expenditure did not, in fact, prove economically unsound, as many thought it would. On the contrary, Mr. Butler claims, citing the experience of many countries: "State aid to the unemployed has a partial economic justification," since "as a contribution to the general maintenance of effective demand it has a positive as well as a negative value."

A further lesson in this domain, which has a special bearing upon the I. L. O. in the scheme of things, is that unemployment is "no respecter of nations" as Mr. Butler neatly puts it. It is a world-wide disease which hits the richer and poorer nations alike. Thus, its causes being largely international, it follows that effective remedies must be worked out internationally as well as nationally.



HAROLD B. BUTLER.

At first sight it might be thought that an economic blizzard would tend to snow under schemes of social insurance, in view of the strain placed upon existing funds, and the inability, or unwillingness, of business or public authorities to assume new responsibilities.

In point of fact, Mr. Butler is able to show convincingly that "social insurance as an institution has weathered the storm." Indeed, he claims that "the whole conception of social insurance has emerged strengthened and confirmed by the ordeal," and is spreading to many countries which hitherto had remained indifferent to such schemes. Nowhere is this truer than in the United States.

Wage And Monetary Policies Also Amenable.

TURNING TO WAGE and monetary policy, some unexpected things have been happening too.

Wage-cutting was once regarded by economists and captains of industry as the indispensable method for restoring prosperity. "Some economists," writes Mr. Butler, "even tried to demonstrate a direct and universal relationship between the level of wage-rates and the volume of unemployment."

This idea is shown to be quite erroneous when tested by the statistics of the recent crisis from many countries.

Similarly, regarding hours of work, Mr. Butler shows that the old tendency to lengthen hours of work in bad times has given place during the slump to the opposite tendency of shortening them.

The reasons for this are many. They include an attempt to spread employment, a realization that long hours do not necessarily mean higher output and a growing belief that man is not made for work alone, but has a right to reasonable rest and leisure, as many recent enactments in various countries show. (e. g. U. S. S. R., France, Italy and New Zeland).

"This greater leisure movement," writes Mr. Butler, "has been accentuated, not retarded, by the slump. It forms a part of the general demand for a better and wider life, which is the present trend of social progress."

Surprising Revelation In Effects Of Deflation.

BUT THE BIGGEST suprise of all is the revolutionary change in ideas about monetary policy that has resulted through the bitter experience of the slump. "The demonstration that in one country after another the upturn in business and employment coincided not with the reduction of wage-rates, the cutting of costs or the deterioration of working conditions, but with the abandonment of deflation and the adoption of monetary expansion has made a deep impression upon the world."

This experience, Mr. Butler believes, has radically transformed the whole outlook of social and economical policy. But although he doubts "if there is now a single government in the world which could truthfully claim that it practiced a laissez faire policy, or even whether there is a single government which would not repudiate such a suggestion with some indignation," Mr. Butler is careful to point the new complexities that have arisen through the abandonment of a self-regulatory gold standard, and insists that national solutions "must be largely dependent upon international circumstances, however much this inescapable tendency is difficult to reconcile with nationalistic thinking."

In conclusion, there is another aspect of the I. L. O.'s continued existence and evident utility.

The experience of the slump has shown the fundamental rightness of the social assumptions upon which the I. L. O. is based. But may it not be equally true to say that the very existence of the I. L. O. has influenced in no small degree the financial and ecnomic tendencies we have been observing?

Take, for example, the important question of hours of work. Despite the fact that the Washington hours convention never became universal, through insufficient ratifications, nevertheless, those countries which had adopted it were bound to apply it, failing formal denunciation. In contrast, other countries which had not adopted it shrank from the public criticisms that would certainly have been levelled against them in Geneva had they abandoned a standard that was sacrosanct in the eyes of organized labor, and held as morally valid by public opinion generally.

Thus the regular meetings of the I. L. O. in Geneva, notably the series of annual International Labor Conferences, exercised a powerful psychological influence in a given direction, making the path of social reaction an uncomfortable one. More important still, providing a public forum where it could be constantly demonstrated, with factual proofs, that the older orthodoxies were not only socially disastrous but economically and financially unsound, whenever general, as opposed to sectional, interests were considered.

'Social Economics' Now Supplanting Old 'Economics.'

IT IS SIGNIFICANT, surely, that the term "social economics" is now coming to the fore. Once upon a time we talked about "political economy," which gave way to the term "economics" as the idea gained currency that economic law was an absolute, the operations of which could only be observed, and conformed to, by individuals and States alike. Today, that highly impersonal and erroneous conception is rapidly giving way before the "new economics," which are essentially "social economics," based upon the belief that economics were, after all, made for man, and that he can and must control them in his own welfare.

But, if this be an encouraging development, it has to be recognized that social and political controls may be exercised for very different ends. There are planned economies and planned economies. They may be planned for peace and life, or for war and death. In some admirable concluding paragraphs Mr. Butler states that there is "no ultimate conciliation possible between social justice and preparation for war."

"Those" he says, "who co-operate in the attempt to realize the ideals of the I. L. O. are the avowed servants of peace."

Roosevelt Seeks Confirmation of 4 Diplomatic Jobs

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt nominated yesterday four more diplomatic appointees for posts in Europe and Latin-America, including Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, jr., of Pennsylvania, to be Ambassador to Poland.

The executive also sent to the Senate the name of Florence Jaffray Harriman, of the District of Columbia, to be Minister to Norway, succeeding Biddle.

Other nominations were Robert Granville Caldwell, of Texas, to be Minister to Bolivia, and Herbert Claiborne Pell, of Rhode Island, to be Minister to Portugal in place of Caldwell.

Howard J. Klossner, of Minnesota, was nominated to be a member of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation board of directors for the unexpired term of two years, from January 22, 1936.

Other nominations included:

Henry F. Grady, of California, to be a member of the Tariff Commission for the remainder of the term, expiring June 16, 1941.

Raymond S. Patton, of Ohio, to be director of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey for a four-year term, beginning April 29, 1937.

Tenant Aid Bill Delayed to Study Effect on Expense

By the Associated Press.

A $470,000,000 bill to aid farm tenants encountered delay yesterday when members of the House Rules Committee questioned whether it conflicted with recent requests of President Roosevelt for curtailment of Government expenditures.

The committee postponed action on a request of Chairman Jones (Democrat), Texas, of the Agriculture Committee that the measure be sent before the House today for six hours of debate.

Questioned by Rules Committee members about financial angles of the bill, Jones declared:

"The Administration is in favor of this program. The President sent use a message urging it. Since that time we have discussed it with him."

Representative Martin (Republican), Massachusetts, commented:

"Then the President and not Congress would have to bear the responsibility for this expenditure."

Holt Praises Work Of W. Va. Rotary

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 18.—Gov. Homer A. Holt as main banquet speaker tonight praised the "service" work of Rotary International and especially that of the Twenty-fourth District (West Virginia), which opened a two-day annual session in the Masonic auditorium today. A governor's ball followed.

The "keys of the city" were extended to 1,000 Rotarians and Rotary Anns by City Manager Frank J. McAndrews in a welcoming address, responded to by Shirley Donnelly, of Oak Hill, District Governor A. U. Tieche, of Beckley, presided at the business sessions. Special programs were carried out for the entertainment of the visiting Rotary Anns.

Left Of Blum

By Barnet Nover

Party Maneuvers In France.

THE LATEST crisis which Premier Leon Blum has had to surmount came from within the ranks of his own party. But once again he passed the test with flying colors.

As a revolutionary party actually participating in a government whose program is only reformist, the French Socialist Party find itself in a somewhat anomalous position. To achieve certain immediate and realizable aims, M. Blum has been forced to shelve the broader ambitions of his party.

Elsewhere in Europe it has not been an uncommon thing for radical parties to compromise with their basic program in order to govern. It was the case with the British Labor Party in 1924 and again in 1929 when that party, though in a minority in Parliament, agreed to take over the reins of government. It was the case with the German Social Democrats in the first years of the Weimar republic. The Belgian Socialists today are co-operating with Catholics and Liberals and recently joined forces with those bourgeois elements in helping elect Van Zeeland. But this experience is a new one for the French Socialist Party.

Since its formation at the end of the last century, the S. F. I. O., as the party is officially called, has been certain of its members lured away from its ranks by the temptations of office. There was Millerand and Viviani and Briand and in more recent times Marquet and his Neo-Socialists. But the party as a whole held tight. It refused to participate in any government it could not control.

* * * *

THIS SITUATION changed with the formation of the Popular Front of Socialists, Radical Socialists and Communists and the victory of this coalition at the polls last year. Then the Socialists emerged as the largest party and were placed in a position in which, if they could not carry out a thoroughgoing program of collectivization, they could at least put through certain essential reforms, such as the 40-hour week for industry, the overhauling of the Bank of France, the nationalization of the munitions industry, etc.

On this program all the elements forming the Popular Front were agreed and there can be no question that the Blum regime was scrupulous in living up to its pre-election promises. But now that the major reforms have been achieved, M. Blum has seen fit to proclaim a "breathing spell." He felt it necessary to do so in order to stabilize the situation, secure the return to France of large quantities of "hot money" that had taken refuge in Great Britain and the United States and assure the success of a great government loan needed for current expenditures and rearmament.

* * * *

THIS "BREATHING SPELL," has undoubtedly had a good effect on France's internal situation as is seen in the oversubscription to the government loan. But it has irritated the left-wing of Blum's supporters. They regard it as a betrayal and see in Blum a French Ramsay MacDonald.

They are, it is clear, in a decided minority. Most of the Socialists have fallen in line with the Blum program. Yet that minority gave promise of proving a real embarrassment to the cabinet and the premier. Not long ago Blum was denounced by a delegate to the Socialist Youth Congress meeting at Creil during Easter week as a man who had compromised with his principles while, it was charged, the government had become "a barrier to the emancipation of the proletariat."

But the "go slow" policy of the Blum regime has not been the only point in the indictment made against it by the more impatient Socialists. Some insist on a union between Socialists and Communists, restoring the breach made after the war. Others are extremely critical of the government's Spanish policy and demand that France give direct aid to the Spanish Popular Front.

Over the week-end something like a showdown occurred in French Socialist ranks between supporters of the government and its critics. There never was any question but that Premier Blum had the party as a whole behind him. But the dissident element was vociferous if not numerous and its clamors, it was feared, might disrupt the party. One left-wing group looked to the leadership of M. Zyromski. Another, under Marceau Pivert, had organized itself within the party as a "revolutionary left."

* * * *

THE STRUGGLE came to a head with the meeting Sunday of the national council of the party. The session was a violent one. But far from swinging the party organization with them, the Pivert and Zyromski factions were overwhelmingly beaten.

Zyromski, in fact, found it expedient to launch no assault on the government. Instead, he declared that it "continues to merit the confidence and the support of the party and the People's Front." Pivert, while justifying the action of his group, promised to abide by any decision the party might reach. It was actually the government supporters who took the offensive. One of them, Paul Faure, secretary of the party and minister without portfolio in the present cabinet, denounced the insurgents and demanded their expulsion. While this is not likely to occur, the "revolutionary left" organization will probably be dissolved.

In the meantime, the persistent reports that the Radical Socialists, who are much more moderate than the Socialists, are again becoming restive because of their alleged unwillingness to remain any longer in harness with Socialists and Communists, have not been confirmed. It is still far more of an asset than a liability for the radicals to play ball with the other elements of the Popular Front. The same holds true of the Communists, who, while not in the government, have constantly supported it.

The fact must be recognized, however, that the Popular Front is not one party but a coalition of rival parties working together only because, as they see it, France is faced by a threat of fascism. Each of these parties is anxious not to lose its identity; each is seeking to capitalize the government's successes for its own ends. Allied though they are, Radicals continue to compete with Socialists, Socialists with Communists for the support of the electorate.

Yet the struggle between these factions does not mean an immediate weakening of the Popular Front and of the Blum regime. In its eleventh month the present government in France shows no signs of breaking up.

Biography

By William Lyon Phelps

"Two Quaker Sisters."

This is the title of an attractive volume just published by the Liveright Publishing Corporation, of New York, and edited with an introduction by Malcolm R. Lovell. It is dedicated to the grandson of one of the sisters, and his name is Malcolm G. Chace, one of the great lawn-tennis players of the '90s and the best ice-hockey player I ever saw in the last century. He is famous for other things now, but I remember him in the beauty and glory of his youth.

* * * *

These two sisters were Elizabeth Buffum Chace and Lucy Buffum Lovell. And the editor, Malcolm Lovell, is the grandson of Lucy Buffum Lovell, so it adds to the grace of the dedication that one Malcolm salutes the other Malcolm, both grandsons, respectively, of the two Quaker sisters.

One of the finest men in America, Rufus M. Jones, has contributed a foreword. There are 24 illustrations, one of them being a map of Rhode Island made in 1826. Mr. Lovell says with both accuracy and eloquence: "In a day when the Protestant denominations of New England were notoriously bigoted, narrow, and cruel to the members of all sects other than their own, the Friends were distinguished for their liberal thought and kindly bearing toward each other and toward other denominations."

* * * *

In a memorable conversation I had with Dean Inge, in London, he expressed his immense admiration for the Quakers; and when I asked if he did not miss in their services the beautiful ritual of the Church of England, he replied, "The Quakers do not need a beautiful ritual; they carry it in their faces."

Now the importance of this new book consists in the fact that it is composed entirely of diaries, the most satisfactory way of reading history, because we know that we are reading the truth. We have a perfect picture of life in New England 100 ygars ago.

Three Organizations Oppose Tidal Basin Jefferson Shrine

Board of Trade Directors and Two Citizens' Groups Adopt Resolutions; D. C. Architects Split Over Site.

Herewith is the tenth of a series of articles discussing the controversy raging over plans to build a memorial to Thomas Jefferson at the Tidal Basin in Potomac Park.

By Gerald G. Gross

Three organizations last night went on record against the proposed site for the Jefferson Memorial.

The board of directors of the Washington Board of Trade adopted a resolution opposing the removal of the Tidal Basin cherry trees or the changing "in any way of the contours of the Tidal Basin.

The conference adopted the resolution in the belief that "a more suitable location than the Tidal Basin could be found."

Members attending were William F. Mulligan, Fred W. Gast, F. W. Nickel and Judge A. D. Bailey, all of Prince Georges County; Stephen James, J. B. Matre, H. S. Yohe and J. I. Gilbert, all of Montgomery County; William C. Hull and L. L. Bennett, both of Arlington County, and Thomas I. Lodge, Mrs. Elizabeth Sullivan nad Miss Elaine Eppley, all of the District.

Architects Are Divided.

Meanwhile, a telephone survey disclosed that architects are as definitely split into two camps on the issue as Congress, the citizenry and the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Commission itself.

The informal canvass obtained the opinions of men who designed some of the Capital's most handsome structures—churches, office buildings, bridges, institutions, banks, residences, apartment houses, clubhouses, etc. Yes, and memorials as well.

Their comments concerned principally the site, rather that Pope's plans, which provide for a circular building of classical style built of marble and comparable in size to the Lincoln Memorial. The reason for this was not a lack of conviction on the design but a desire not to pass critical judgment upon the work of a colleague.

At least half of the architects whose opinions were solicited remained entirely aloof because of the personality angle. As one of them said: "I went to school with Mr. Pope, so please excuse me."

"The location chosen is absolutely unsuited," said Arthur B. Heaton, who has been practicing here for 35 years.

"The informality of the area in its present condition, in contrast with the formal treatment of the Mall, is beautiful. I am a great admirer of Pope, whom I believe to be one of the world's best architects. All of his works approach perfection.

"That is why I think he is not whole heartedly behind the plan to place the memorial at the Tidal Basin, whose general layout in Potomac Park is as beautiful as it can be made."

Heaton's architectural works in Washington include the National Geographic Society Building, Y. W. C. A., the John Dickson Home, banks, welfare institutions, etc. Last year he was president of District Chapter, American Institute of Architects.

Informality of the cherry blossom zone around the Tidal Basin, so pleasing to Heaton, was the first thing attacked by Harry Francis Cunningham, who is supporting the program of the Boylan memorial commission. Cunningham has been practicing here since 1905.

"The Pope scheme formalizes the Tidal Basin," he said. "I've never been enthusiastic over the present layout because it doesn't harmonize with the formal treatment of the Mall.

"All these monkeyshines in the paper are so much damn foolishness. It is in accordance with my idea of a grand plan for Washington to have a memorial at the Tidal Basin. The proposed plans will give us a better basin and more room for cherry trees.

"Something like this requires confidence in those who are at the head. These folks who write letters to the editor don't know what it's all about. Pope will give us something fine, as he always has."

Francis P. Sullivan, chairman of the A. I. A. National Capital Committee, also lauded Pope, but tacitly criticized selection of the Potomac Park site.

"I have been very much interested in the articles and letters which have been appearing in The Post with regard to the design and site," he said. "I am certain that there can be no reasonable criticism of the selection of Mr. Pope as the architect. He is one of the foremost American architects, a man of outstanding reputation and recognized abilities.

"It has been repeatedly stated that the selection of the site was based on a desire to complete the L'Enfant plan. This is an obvious error. The L'Enfant plan does not contemplate any structure at this point and L'Enfant himself repeatedly stated his purpose of leaving the view of the river from the White House unobstructed."

(Note—Chairman John J. Boylan of the memorial commission has frequently stated, in defending its choice of the site, that Maj. L'Enfant envisaged a monumental structure there.)

Awaits Commission's Views.

"I have never yet seen any official statement of the views of the Park and Planning Commission or the Commission of Fine Arts regarding the monument or its site," Sullivan continued, "and before expressing any views of my own on the subject would certainly wish to be informed of their conclusions.

"They are the recognized and legally constituted authorities on whom the duty of considering problems of plan and design in the City of Washington has been imposed. It is my belief that in all questions of this sort their judgment should be an important, if not a controlling, factor.

"I hope that the agitation that has been aroused in this case may result in a study of the general problem which may have beneficial results when similar questions arise."

Patrol Starts Around Spain By 27 Powers

Europe Acts to Stem Flow of War Materials to Guard Peace.

By the Associated Press.

London (Tuesday), April 20.—Keen-eyed observers of many nations scanned the land and sea frontiers of warring Spain early today, carrying into effect from midnight the control scheme adopted by 27 European countries.

From Gibraltar sailed the British destroyers Vanoc, Acasta, Arrow and Antelope to take up their patrol beats along the southern coast of Spain, between the Portuguese frontier and Almeria.

The British Flotilla Leader Faulknor and four other destroyers were steaming from St. Jean De Luz, France, ready for similar duty along the Bay of Biscay coast line.

These represented Britain's contribution to the cordon whereby the nations of Europe hoped to check the flow of men and munitions to the Spanish theater of war and lessen the danger of that conflict assuming continent-wide proportions.

Ninety observers, including British naval officers, Dutch officers and even a Turkish captain, went on duty at Gibraltar to watch the short frontier between that British possession and Spain.

Eighty British observers supported by a corps of interpreters began supervising the whole Portuguese-Spanish frontier.

Madrid Defies Blockade.

Valencia, Spain, April 19 (AP).—The Spanish government tonight defied the coast control of the European "hands-off Spain" committee.

The ministry of marine and air ordered the government fleet and air force to protect all ships flying the Spanish flag and those of other countries asking protection in Spanish waters.

Such protection, it announced, particularly would be applied to ports on the Mediterranean Coast, where German and Italian ships were assigned for patrol. (Warships of Germany and Italy were assigned to the government-held coasts of Spain.)

Charging that the international patrol was "unjust and contrary to international law," the ministry declared it was virtually a blockade of Spanish ports.

Bilbao Fears Attack.

Hendaye, France, April 19 (AP).—Spanish insurgents tonight pictured northern Bilbao as a city disheartened by lack of food and fearfully awaiting the crash of artillery barrage.

Insurgent Gen. Francisco Franco warned the government defenders of the city that 500 artillery pieces were placed within range of their lines.

Country Expects Figure of $4,250,000,000, With Increased Taxes.

By the Associated Press.

London, April 19.—The British cabinet, surrounded by every precaution against the possibility of a leakage, learned in secret session today how much the government will need to spend next year.

British taxpayers were steadying themselves for bad news in Chancellor Neville Chamberlain's budget announcement to Parliament tomorrow in which it was expected he would ask for $4,250,000,000 revenue.

The special meeting of the cabinet was held in the House of Commons and was strictly guarded lest the scandal of last year, when word of the budget estimates leaked out in advance, be repeated.

Chamberlain's budget speech almost certainly will be his last important appearance before Parliament as holder of the country's purse. The chancellor of the exchequer is universally expected to moved up into the prime minister's seat, succeeding Stanley Baldwin, who has predicted his own resignation soon after the coronation of King George VI on May 12.

Chamberlain was expected in authoritative quarters to advise the House of Commons tomorrow of the need for $150,000,000 in new revenue, necessary for re-armament.

Britain's new 1937-1938 budget has been built against the background of her $2,000,000,000 a year rearmament program. Closely guarded as are budget plans, common sense tells the Briton he is going to pay higher income tax and will have to dig deeper for other direct and indirect taxes.

Goodwill Industries Workers Will Confer

Ernest H. Daniel, general chairman of Goodwill Industries' campaign for $65,000, has called a meeting of all chairmen and workers today at 4:45 p. m. at the Willard Hotel to hear reports on results of the first week of the campaign.

At a previous report meeting it was announced that approximately one-third of the quota had been pledged. Leaders of the philanthropy expect additional contributions from the corporations committee, of which Thomas L. Eagan is chairman. The fund being raised will enable the Industries to employ approximately 100 additional workers selected from the hundreds who have applied for work at the plant at 1214 New Hampshire avenue northwest.

Mrs. Roosevelt Honors Cousin With Luncheon

Mrs. Robinson Is Feted at White House Affair; The First Lady's Schedule for Today Is Filled.

A small and informal luncheon for her cousin, Mrs. Douglas Robinson, of New York, was given by Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House yesterday following her morning press conference. Mrs. Nicholas Longworth was among the guests, as were Representative Nan Honeyman, Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, Mrs. Frederick Brooks, Mrs. J. Blaise de Silbour, Mrs. John A. Hinckley, Mrs. Charles L. Lindley and Mrs. James Roosevelt, jr.

At 2:30 in the afternoon the First Lady received the girls here from the 48 States on the D. A. R. good citizenship trip, and later was guest of honor at a tea given by the Colonial Dames Club at its headquarters on New Hampshire avenue.

Today, after a small luncheon at the White House, Mrs. Roosevelt has every hour on her schedule filled. She will visit the Good Will Industries at 2:30, at 3:30 will return to the White House to receive the Children of the American Revolution, at 4:30 will make an address at the Young Women's Christian Home, and at 5:30 will attend the ceremonies opening the new Police Boys Club at 1200 U street.

Tomorrow she is to be guest of honor at the luncheon of the Seventy-fourth Club, will attend the D. A. R. reception in the afternoon and later receive a small group at tea. In the evening she will give her radio broadcast.

Thursday the Congressional Club is entertaining at its annual breakfast in her honor at the Raleigh.

Friday Mrs. Roosevelt will be in New York for the senior class luncheon at Todhunter School and expects to spend the week-end at Hyde Park. She is to speak Monday in Hartford, Conn., and Tuesday in Scranton, Pa.

Little Sara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt, who has been recovering from a recent operation for appendicitis, was visiting her grandparents at the White House Sunday. Asked if she were "quite well again," she replied with firmness, according to her grandmother: "Not quite but much better, thank you."

Misses Jane and Junia Culbertson Are Hostesses at Cocktail Party

The Misses Jane and Junia Culbertson entertained at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon in their apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue. Miss Junia Culbertson will return today to Philadelphia, where she studies singing.

As usually happens at a cocktail party, everyone stood up in the dining room rather than sit in comfortable chairs in the library and drawing room, which were completely deserted. The table was attractively decorated with spring flowers and, since it was such a hot day, a huge pitcher of orangeade was almost as popular as the martinis.

Among the guests were Mrs. Eugene Carusi, in a gray suit and matching hat; Mrs. Sidney Guest, Miss Florence Harris in a yellow wool frock and a silver fox scarf, and Miss Olga Patterson, daughter of the former Cuban Ambassador, who is visiting the Misses Trucco until early summer, when she will join her father in Mexico City.

Others there were Mrs. William H. Powell, the former Miss Jane Thorpe, in a brown outfit; Mr. Smith Bowman and his brother, Delong; Mr. John Wheeler, son of Senator Wheeler; Miss Carolyn Chantry, Miss Dorothy Tirrell, Mr. John Pratt; Mr. Michael Boudny, of the Polish Embassy, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Snodgrass.

Cuban Envoy Entertains at Embassy For Ex-Brazilian Foreign Minister

The Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga, entertained at a luncheon yesterday at the embassy in honor of Dr. Afranio de Mello Franco, former Minister of Foreign Affairs of Brazil and delegate to the Conference on the Codification of International Law now meeting here.

Several years ago, when former President Menocal of Cuba was in danger of being imprisoned by Machado's followers, Dr. Fraga, then a member of the Cuban Congress, took him to the Brazilian Legation in Havana for protection.

The guests included the Ambassador of Peru, Senor Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander; the Ambassador of Chile, Senor Don Manuel Trucco; the Ambassador of Mexico, Dr. F. Castillo Hajera; Senor Eduardo Suarez, Secretary of the Treasury of Mexico; Senor Max Henriquez Urena, Minister of the Dominican Republic in London; Mr. Bueno do Prado, Charge d'Affaires of Brazil; Dr. Luis Anderson, delegate from Costa Rica to the Commission of Jurists for the Codification of International Law; Dr. Alberto Cruchaga, delegate from Chile to the same commission; Dr. L. S. Rowe, director of the Pan American Union; Dr. James Brown Scott, president of the American Institute of International Law.

Mr. Laurence Duggan, chief of the Latin-American division of the Department of State; Dr. Pedro de Alba, assistant director of the Pan American Union; Dr. Joe T. Baron, minister counselor of the Cuban Embassy; Dr. V. Valdes Rodriguez, counselor; Dr. Roberto Mendoza, first secretary, and Dr. Alberto Muxo, second secretary of the embassy.

Lieut. Horace L. Beall Will Marry Miss Laura E. Julian on May 8

Miss Laura Elizabeth Julian, daughter of Mr. Henry Saint Julian, of Washington, has selected Saturday, May 8, as the date of her wedding to Lieut. Horace Lincoln Beall, jr., U. S. A., son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace L. Beall, of Georgetown. Only members of the two families will attend.

Miss Dorothy Coleman, of Maplewood, N. J., will be maid of honor and Miss Julian's only attendant, and Capt. Charles Keerans, of Fort Hoyle, Md., will be best man. The bride-to-be is a niece of Mr. William Julian, treasurer of the United States.

Czechoslovakia Envoy Will Entertain At Luncheon for Mr. Jan Bata

The Minister of Czechoslovakia, Mr. Vladimir Hurban, will entertain at a luncheon today in honor of Mr. Jan Bata, a leading industrialist of his country.

The guests will include Senator George Radcliffe, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, Senator David Walsh, Senator Royal Copeland, Mr. David Williamson, of the State Department; Mr. Ernest G. Draper, Assistant Secretary of Commerce; Mr. Leon Henderson, Mr. Henry Chalmers, Mr. Frank Dow, Mr. Sam Woods, Mr. J. Fred Essary, Mr. Harold Hinton, Mrs Constantine Brown and Mr. Franklyn Waltman.

Informal Dinner Given Friends By Nazi Counselor and Wife

The Counselor of the German Embassy and Frau Hans Thomsen entertained at a small and informal dinner last evening at their home on Colorado avenue.

Their guests were the Minister and Mme. Prochnik, the Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Henry Frank Heywood, the First Secretary of the Italian Embassy, Prince del Drago; Fraulein Gertrud Luther, daughter of the German Ambassador, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick.

Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom will entertain at a luncheon on Sunday in honor of the Speaker of the House and Mrs. William Bankhead.

Mrs. Brice Clagett will entertain at luncheon in her home in Maryland today.

Mrs. Andrew B. Graham has returned to her apartment at the Briarcliff after spending the winter at the Coronado Hotel in Coronado Beach, Calif., with her son and daughter-in-law, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Lorimer C. Graham. Lieut. Comdr. Graham has been ordered to Honolulu.

Mme. Jenkins Gives Concert.

Mme. Florence Foster Jenkins, of New York, sang at the breakfast given by the Order of the Three Crusades on Sunday at the Mayflower. She also gave a concert for her friends on Saturday at the Washington Club.

Artist's Brother Marries Here

Underwood & Underwood.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT HAMILTON BARCLAY

were married here yesterday in the New York Presbyterian Church with a reception later at the Carlton Hotel. McClelland Barclay, well-known illustrator, was his brother's best man. The bridegroom is regional director of the Federal Power Commission in charge of the New York office. Before her marriage, Mrs. Barclay was Miss Bobbey Elizabeth Timberlake, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David W. Timberlake, of Westfield, N. J. The couple will make their home in New York.

THE MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was among the enthusiastic spectators at the opening of the baseball season yesterday at Griffith Stadium. Wearing a black and white redingote frock and a large black hat with a feather in the front, she was accompanied by Mr. Benjamin Minor, Washington attorney.

President Roosevelt had with him his military aide, Col. Edwin Watson; his naval aide, Capt. Paul Bastedo, and his son, James Roosevelt. Marvin McIntyre joined them in their box, which was occupied entirely by men, including several White House correspondents.

Men far outnumbered the women at the game. However George Marshall who owns the Boston Redskins, a football team, was accompanied by Mrs. Marshall. The former Corinne Griffith looked exceedingly smart in a navy blue wool frock with a three-quarter suede coat in a brick-dust shade, and a hat of this color trimmed with bands of navy blue.

Vice President Garner, who as usual had fun bantering with the press photographers, was accompanied by a group including Senator Kenneth McKellar Senator Charles McNary, Senator Tom Connally, and Senator William G. McAdoo.

Not even a bad fall from her mount, resulting in several broken bones, could change Frau Thomsen's fondness for riding. Practically just arrived here, she has been biding her time until she can once again take up her sport. Now it seems she is on the verge of acquiring a horse of her own and we hear she has been looking at Stellita Stapleton's horse with an eye to buying it.

When she arrived and friends learned of her desire to ride and also of the recent spill, one of thme offered her the use of his horse, whose name most appropriately was Harmless John.

Several weeks ago we spotted a diamond on the correct finger of Betty Mattingly's hand, but were met by an expression of denial as impenetrable as a stone wall—now we are again hearing more concerning this pretty young person and this time we learn that it is true what they say about orange blossoms and Lohengrin and that the lucky chap hails from New York.

Ran into the Sigurd von Numers downtown late one afternoon. She was attired attractively in dark blue with just the proper touch of crimson at the throat. Mme. von Numers is sailing this week with her little son, Johann, for their home in Finland, there to remain until fall—sounds simply marvelous, cannot imagine a nicer place to spend the summer than this pleasant country. Mr. von Numers will tary on a while with his diplomatic duties here before joining his family.

All's well that ends well—thus thinks Johnny Pugh. Several days ago he and Louise Myers, both of whom have been admiring each other's car, decided to do something about it and so swapped motors. The necessary papers were exchanged and the proper authorities notified. Johnny had just dropped the notice and information concerning the transaction to his insurance company (note—the postoffice at Fort Myer where he is stationed had closed for the day), parked his "new" car somewhere, and later upon his return found it gone. There he was, no car and his letter to the insurance people so placed that it could not possibly have the required postmark in order to be of any value in the loss. Needless to say there was much scurrying about and it looked pretty black—but the car was found and safely returned.

D. A. R. Group Will Be Feted

Missouri delegates to the Forty-sixth Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be entertained at the Mayflower Hotel Thursday, at 9 p. m., at a reception and dance. Daughters of the American Revolution residing in the District of Columbia who are members of the Missouri Society will act as a reception committee. Representative Joseph B. Shannon will be guest speaker.

Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark heads the committee. Receiving with her will be Mrs. Clarence Cannon, Mrs. Clyde Williams, Mrs. Milton A. Romjue, Mrs. Richard M. Duncan, Mrs. Julian Friant, Mrs. Thomas J. Dickson, Miss Frances Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Cleveland A. Newton, Mrs. Hugh Smith, Mrs. Earnest Howard, jr., Mrs. Thomas F. X. Callahan, Mrs. L. H. Hannah, Mrs. Sallie Cook Major, Mrs. William W. Badgley, Mrs. Charles P. Keyser, Mrs. Howard Hodgkins, Mrs. Sam Major and Mrs. Howard C. Boone.

Mrs. Henry Clay Chiles, of Lexington, Mo., State regent of the Missouri Daughters of the American Revolution, will head the delegation at the affair. Senator Kenneth McKellar will address the group and Miss Evangeline Tully, dramatic soprano, will sing, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Imlay.

Members of the Missouri Daugnters of the American Revolution will be honored at a tea, from 4 to 6 this afternoon, at the Congressional Club, given by wives of members of the Missouri delegation in Congress.

Other D. A. R. State delegations to be entertained include the Illinois delegates, who will be guests of Mrs. Ralph Church, wife of Representative Church, at a tea this afternoon at her home.

The Alabama State Society will give a reception and dance Thursday evening at the Willard for the Alabama group attending the national congress.

Mrs. Howard Honor Guest.

Mrs. Georgette Ross Howard was the guest in whose honor Miss Watkins, headmistress of St. Timothy's School, Catonsville, Md., entertained at dinner last evening. Today she will be entertained at luncheon by Mrs. Herbert J. Day, wife of Commander Day, of the Naval Academy.

Marine Drill Features Party Given by Holcombs

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

The Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb, who received from 4 to 6 at the commandant's quarters yesterday afternoon, provided for their guests an exhibition drill of the Marines on the parade grounds back of the commandant's home. The Marine Band, its members in their red jackets, led the parade as the guests watched from the porch or the garden below.

If the day is fair when the Commandant and Mrs. Holcomb have their last "at home" Monday, a similar one will be held at 5 p. m.

The familiar words of the song, "I Love a Parade," were repeated time and again by the enthusiastic spectators and became "Oh, and I love a parade," accompanied by a note of disappointment, when those who arrived too late learned what they had missed.

Historic Home.

The commandant's home is the historic old Bullfinch house, built between 1800 and 1803, which was the headquarters of Gen. Ross when the British burned the Capitol and the White House. Marines were stationed yesterday at the gate and at the door to direct guests as they entered to the patio at the back where the Commandant and Mrs. Holcomb and the latter's sister, Miss Dora Clover, received. In the drawing room musicians from the Marine Band Orchestra played during the hours of the tea.

There was a punch bowl on the porch and another in the garden beyond, and guests also were served in the dining room, but the flowers and sunshine outside were so inviting few remained inside. Bouquets of calla lilies, with ferns and palms decorated the porch; besides the steps leading to the garden were boxes of purple pansies, and in the flower beds beyond were tulps and other spring flowers, and at one side, a Japanese crabapple tree in full bloom.

Navy Chief There.

The Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. William D. Leary were among the guests, with Admiral Leahy's aide, Lieut. William Freseman, and Mrs. Freseman, Commander and Mrs. Wallace Lind, Mrs. Hugh Matthews, Capt. and Mrs. A. B. Reed, and Col. and Mrs. Seth Williams also were there, as were Brig. Gen. John C. Beaumont, and his bride, who were recently married in New York and have just returned to Washington from their Wedding trip; Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, Senator David Walsh and Representative Stephen Gambrill.

Mr. Frank Holcomb, son of the Commandant and Mrs. Holcomb, who is rapidly recovering from his illness of last winter, was assisting his father as host and was chatting with some of the younger members of the company, among them Miss Nancy Kittelle, who wore a powder blue frock figured in yellow and a darker blue straw hat with a wide brim, and Miss Frances Brainerd, who was in a frock of navy blue with a wide frill of white at the neck, and wore a small navy blue hat of beret type.

The Holcombs will leave June 1 on a motor trip to California, where Gen. Holcomb will make an inspection of the West Coast.

Honor Is Paid Mrs. Quezon At Luncheon

Mrs. Garner and Mrs. Dern Among Guests at Fete in Mayflower.

Mrs. Manuel Quezon, wife of the president of the Philippine Commonwealth, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given yesterday at the Mayflower by a group of women, most of whom had attended her husband's inauguration in Manila.

Mrs. John N. Garner was the ranking guest, and others were Mrs. George H. Dern, Mrs. Harry B. Hawes, Mrs. Henderson S. Dunn and Mrs. Jaime de Veyra, who is traveling here with Mrs. Quezon.

Senate ladies present were Mrs. Henry F. Ashurst, Mrs. Key Pittman, Mrs. Joseph T. Robinson, Mrs. William H. King, Mrs Gerald P. Nye, Mrs. Carl Hayden, Mrs. James F. Byrnes, Mrs. Matthew M. Neely, Mrs. Warren R. Austin, Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, Mrs. F. Ryan Duffy, Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo, Miss Doris Gibson, daughter of Senator Gibson, Mrs. Edward R. Burke and Mrs. Sherman Minton.

Others were Mrs. Robert L. Doughton, Mrs. Bertrand H. Snell, Mrs. Arthur H. Greenwood, Mrs. Lex Green, Mrs. Lloyd Thurston, Mrs. Lindsay C. Warren, Mrs. Wilburn Cartwright, Mrs. Joe L. Smith, Mrs. R. Ewing Thomason, Mrs. Fred L. Crawford, Mrs. John J. Dempsey, Mrs. Don Gingery, Mrs. George H. Mahon, Mrs. Elmer J. Ryan, Mrs. Karl Stefan and Mrs. Santiago Iglesias, wife of the resident commissioner of Puerto Rico.

Also in the company were Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. Arthur Nachten, Mrs. Leslie Biffle, Mrs. Erwin D. Canham and Mrs. J. D. Hopkins.

Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler and others who were in Manila for the inauguration, but were unable to attend the luncheon yesterday sent their greetings together with a gift to the first lady of the Philippines. They were Mrs. Sam D. McReynolds, Mrs. Henry Ellenbogen, Mrs. Jasper Bell, Mrs. W. Sterling Cole, Mrs. Bert Lord, Miss Louise Snell, Mrs. William Allen White, Mrs. Burrows Matthews, Mrs. Gene F. Huse and Mrs. Walter Karig.

Mrs. Harriman Will Be Guest

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, whose appointment as Minister of Norway came before the Senate yesterday, will be guest of honor April 28, at a luncheon of the Woman's Safety Committee of which she is a charter member. The luncheon will be given in the Sulgrave Club.

Mrs. Harriman is chairman of the committee on parking, a subject in which she is especially interested, and has been active in the work of the organization since it was started three years ago. Mrs. George C. Thorpe, its president, will speak over the radio this afternoon at 5:45 on "The Youthful Driver," in the fifth of the series of safety broadcasts sponsoreed by Mr. Oscar Coolican.

Congressman's Son Weds.

Mr. John Parmenter Cluett, son of Representative E. Harold Cluett, of New York, and columnist for the Brooklyn Eagle, was married here yesterday to Miss Sylvia Seymour, of San Francisco and New York.

Arts Club Will Hear Mountain Teacher

Project Instructor Is Guest Speaker Tonight.

Mr. David Donoho, who is teaching art in the mountains of Kentucky as part of a community project supervised by the board of education of Breathitt County, will be the guest speaker of the Arts Club this evening.

Breathitt County was formerly the scene of numerous feuds. The project is sponsored by the Southern Women's Educational Alliance, of which Dr. Latham Hatcher is president. Miss Leila Mechlin, who is chairman of the education committee of the club, and Miss Nona L. Doherty will be hostesses for the dinner preceding the talk.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, April 19.

IT'S my pleasant privilege, every spring to go up to my alma mater and say a few ill-chosen words to the young women about to be turned out of the Columbia School of Journalism with Dean Carl Ackerman's blessing. Of course, when I say it's an unalloyed pleasure, I'm hedging slightly. It's actually pretty terrifying to go back to the scene of the crime and talk with maids of 22, full of ideas and ardor and actually aching to get out and launch a punch at the nose of this world of men.

ALICE HUGHES

This year, as is my custom, I tottered across the campus leaning heavily on my cane, and quavered a few words on the life of women in the newspaper business, pointing out a few of the pits into which I had fallen headlong. Then, as usual, I asked them a lot of questions, for they can often teach me more than vice versa. This year, I found red-hot enthusiasm for ways and means of pepping up what the trade calls "woman reader interest" in newspapers. It is their idea (and mine, may I whisper?) that the various facets of women's emotional life—husbands, homes, babies—are far too dully treated these days, and that the color and vivacity along these lines displayed by alert modern magazines should also be found in the daily papers.

* * * *

They made speeches and waved their arms at me, while I could only cluck assent. I found that these starry-eyed crusaders had worked out such a "project" as their graduation exercise. I thrilled to it all, but I also sighed when no one was looking. What heart-burnings face these gallant girls! But why not, I suppose. We've all had 'em, and why should our juniors be let off anything?

* * * *

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—If your husband (God forbid!) has just been sentenced to from 15 years to life in the calaboose, you are perfectly free to consider yourself a legal widow immediately and to light out after No. 2, if you desire! At least, our learned Supreme Court Justice Cotillo has so ruled, in decreeing that Mrs. Gertrude Brockman, whose spouse has now done two years of such a stretch, may marry at once if she so chooses. "A person sentenced for life is civilly dead," said the judge, adding that the possibility of a parole does not matter.

* * * *

A great figure of yesterday has come back to live among us again—Emma Eames, years ago a wonder-girl of the Metropolitan Opera, and aunt of the clever actress, Claire Eames, who died untimely some time ago. I was lucky enough to see the diva the other day—a handsome and stately figure.

* * * *

One of the best known dogs in town is the little pup, Handie, who owns Katrinka Roelker, one of our more lustrous girls about the village. You can often locate Katrinka by making the rounds of the night club check rooms, for Handie goes where she goes, and is the intimate chum of every restaurant quarter-snatcher in the Gotham.

* * * *

Secretaries have often become real institutions. I think, for instance, of Pauline Halley, who secretaried the late playwright, Samuel Shipman, for 15 years. And she still works for his spirit, having opened an office to handle the affairs of his bachelor estate. Sammy's last play, "Behind Red Lights," has been running for several months.

* * * *

Lone women here are faced with a mess of terrors, one of the worst of which is the young hoodlum who leaps on the running board of a woman driver alone at night, snatches from the car whatever he can reach, and disappears. Three of these nasty little thugs have just been put away here by a stern judge!

* * * *

Ornamental doo-dads pour from the studios and factories in an endless stream. My friend Lester Gaba, first of the greater soap sculptors, has just designed and marketed a ducky collection of circus jewelry consisting of all sorts of wild beasts in rhinestones and enamel. Has he sent you a set, Mother Gaba, out there in Missouri? I have a zebra.

Pomp and Drama, Coronation-Inspired

By Ethel Ehlen,
The Post Fashion Editor.

Both daytime and evening clothes are showing a distinct regal and gala air, due to the influence of the pomp and pageantry of the coming coronation. Many of the newest evening gowns and wraps are decidedly elaborate; deviating from simplicity for the time being, and going picturesque. Such an ensemble is shown here, designed by Mlle. Marie, of New York and Paris. It is fashioned of black and white taffeta; the gown of white and the hooded cape of black, with a girdle of red poppies for a smart accent. Shirred panels in both the gown and cape, give a dramatic touch to the styling, which undoubtedly was inspired by some belle of the early nineteenth century. An exclusive evening costume for any late spring or summer formal evening occasion!

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Sex Determination.

Whether it would be a good thing or a bad thing for the human race to possess the knowledge of how to produce boy babies or girl babies at will must remain a pure speculation, because in spite of many eloquent assertions of a definite method, none has ever been found to work out.

Certain European investigators put forward the claim that they are able to determine the sex at least of unborn chickens. These investigators, Ludwig and Von Reis, reason that the living body, either male or female, contains both male and female sex hormones, the hormone of the acknowledged sex predominating. When a new body is developing, there is some critical moment when one or the other of the sex hormones comes to predominate the picture, and the sex of the creature is settled then and there.

Experiment on Hens.

If, they said, an additional supply of the hormone of the desired sex is introduced into the developing ovum during the critical period, the sex of the unborn creature can be controlled. They used impregnated hen's eggs. From these eggs, an almost exactly equal division of male and female chickens can be expected. On the fourth day of incubation, they opened the egg up and injected the quantity of female sex hormone into the allantoic (hindgut) vesicle with a hypodermic syringe and fine needle. This allantoic vesicle can readily be located when the hen's egg is held up to the light. Every egg which was injected with female sex hormone turned out a female chicken and these grew into normal hens.

The fourth day appears to be the critical period. Death of the embryo almost invariably occurred in eggs injected earlier than the fourth day, and on the fifth day or thereafter the experiment no longer worked.

They were not able to obtain results with the male sex hormone.

Even if true, this is obviously a long way from being applicable to human conditions, and personally I regard it as far from true. The theory that biologists hold now, which is that sex is determined by the presence or absence of the extra chromosone in the male sperm, is so well established that I do not believe it can be shaken. The mother is never to blame for the sex of the child, poor thing, although she often gets blamed. The sex is determined entirely by the father.

Questions From Readers.

I. J. W.: "Will you please tell me what are the constituents of buttermilk? Is it as rich in minerals and vitamins as plain milk? Is it acid or alkaline forming?"

Answer: Buttermilk is the liquid remaining after the fat has been removed from milk by churning. Since sour cream is usually employed in modern butter making, the remaining buttermilk is slightly acid, a condition which breaks up the curd and makes it more digestible. The acids are of the sort which rapidly turn to alkalis in the body, and it is naturally an alkaline-producing substance. If sweet milk, it is nothing more than skim milk. Commercial buttermilk is mostly made from the residue after the manufacture of butter by taking skim milk, pasteurizing it, then artificially souring it and churning it somewhat to disperse the curd particles. Such buttermilk is just as nutritious as that derived directly from the churn. Buttermilk contains the vitamins of milk except those which are present in the butter fat. It contains about one-half of 1 per cent fat. Protein, the tissue builder, is present in about 3.5 per cent. There is about 4.5 per cent of milk sugar, and all the minerals, such as lime salts, are present as in ordinary milk.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a 3-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Frothy Suds Prolong Life Of Silk Hose

By Carolyn Abbott.

DOES your silk stocking bill cut a large hole in your budget? There's no reason why it should. If you buy silk stockings carefully and follow the rules the experts have laid down, they will give you more than your money's worth.

One way to lengthen the life of silk stockings is to wash them before they are ever put on the foot. Another rule the experts insist on is to wash soiled silk stockings after each wearing, the sooner the better. Perspiration is not only hard on their delicate colors but it destroys the elasticity that enables the fine threads to give under pressure and spring back without tearing. Perspiration and soil also weaken the fibers through chemical action.

The secret of washing silk stockings successfully is to use plenty of frothy suds, and lukewarm water of an even temperature for washing and rinsing. Turn them inside out before washing and do as little handling as possible. If the stockings have stubborn spots on the ankles or are splashed with mud, plunge them into another batch of suds but try to avoid rubbing. Rinse at least three times in lukewarm water and squeeze out as much moisture as possible by rolling for a moment in a Turkish towel.

Never hang silk stockings in bright sunlight or over a radiator. It is best to place them flat on a Turkish towel to dry after stretching gently lengthwise and smoothing out the feet. If you use a wash line or rack for drying, hang them by the feet.

Early Guidance Avoids Sorrow In Adult Years

Teach Children to Face Their Mistakes; Never Prod.

Evanston, Ill., (AP).—Childhood is the time to head off tragic reactions to unsuccessful marriages, business failures and nervous breakdowns, says Dr. John J. B. Morgan, professor of psychology at Northwestern University.

A study of 2,500 children in the university's psychological clinic convinces Dr. Morgan that many mental ailments of adults could have been avoided by proper childhood guidance in the home and school.

4 Aids to Parents.

Dr. Morgan suggests four ways in which parents and teachers can exert "tremendous" influence in guiding children into a normal outlook on life:

Never let the child fail completely. Never emphasize the permanent effects of a mistake.

Teach the child to face his errors but teach him to do it in a way that will prevent a recurrence.

Do not prod the child to confess his shortcomings. Adjustment does not mean a display of all one's weakness to others; it means insight.

Never violate the confidence of a child, especially if he has made a confession to you. If, of his own volition, he confesses a shortcoming, do not punish him.

"At one time in each person's life, the time of helpless infancy, he is a complete egoist," Dr. Morgan explains. "As the child develops society requires that he act differently. Every individual must continue to readjust as long as he remains alive."

Dr. Morgan contends the objective of teachers and parents should be to teach the child to make his own adjustments.

"The discerning teacher analyzes, foresees possible consequences of intricate situations, helps when necessary, and restrains the child on rare occasions," he says.

"We all recognize that success in any struggle requires fortitude. There is much scientific evidence to show that fortitude is a trait largely the result of training. 'Fortitude' is nothing but a name for the habit of success and 'cowardice' for the habit of failure. Both start with the same tendency to meet opposition with extra energy; the difference in result is purely the difference in the degree to which the extra energy is sustained and continuously reapplied and such difference in degree is itself simply the result of difference in training."

Wash Materials Used in Blouses

Paris (U.P.)—Cotton wash materials—pique in particular—will be used for blouses, frilled jabots, short and long fitted coats for daytime. These are shown in white, in plain colors and in prints.

Quite a lot of pique is being used for beach wear, but fewer cotton materials are being shown for evening wear. This is due, no doubt, to the influence of the coronation, which demands more formality than has been seen for several seasons.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Twice-Married Man, Unhappy With Second Wife, Whom He Loves, Asks Whether or Not to Leave Her.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I married a woman almost twice my age but the marriage did not last. I got a divorce from her and married a girl six years younger than I. She is 24 and I am 30. I love her but for some reason she does not have any confidence in me. When we first married I was not in love with her and I was not true to her. But now I love and want her only. She treats me well, but I don't feel that she cares for me. I have never had any reason to question her actions, except that she is very jealous and accuses me of misconduct with everyone, even the friends we visit.

* * * *

I never cared for liquor before, but now I drink all the time. It makes me forget. I come home drunk every night. Do you think that is why my wife distrusts me? I have just about decided to leave Washington, and am planning to leave before the end of April. I am not telling anyone where I am going. I have a good job here and everything one could want, but I feel disgusted and want to start over again some place where I am not known. Please give me some advice. Your answer may change my whole life. Answer by April 20 if possible. Respectfully yours, Y. N.

* * * *

DEAR Y. N.: No reasonable man possessed of average common sense and character would do so childish a thing as you are thinking of doing. That's kid stuff—running away to start life over among strangers because you feel unhappy and misunderstood at home. A real man in your position would have the stamina to stand up to his mistakes and make a lifelong, patient effort to overcome the injury he had done his own happiness and the happiness of the woman he loved. Small wonder your wife does not at present give you that spontaneous love and trust you crave. I think it was Alexander Pope who said, "the truth itself is not believed in one who often has deceived." And you admit you were faithless to your wife in the early days of marriage.

* * * *

That she has continued to tolerate you at all, particularly in view of your recent habitual drunkenness, would seem to indicate that she cares for you too much for her own good, and certainly more than you deserve. Nobody, man or woman, can really trust a drunkard.

* * * *

My advice to you is to sober up immediately, cut out drinking once and for all, go down on your knees—figurately or literally, as you choose—to your wife and tell her you realize what a miserable fool you've been, and ask her to cooperate with you in starting your married life all over again on a brand-new basis of love and trust. If she thinks it best to do so, you might make a clean sweep of all the friends you have had in the past, perhaps by moving to another neighborhood in the same city. Begin now to court her as you did in the beginning. Show her every thoughtful, tender, devoted attention. Send her flowers, urge her to buy new clothes, take her dancing or to shows or out to dinner of evenings, and spend most of your leisure time with her. Do everything in your power to make her realize she is the person of first importance in your life. The pot of gold at the rainbow's end is right in your own home, if you only have sense enough to realize it and the patience and courage to dig for it.

* * * *

You might be helped to get a healthier slant on life by talking with persons on the staff of the Washington Life Adjustment Center, 1464 Columbia road northwest, ADmas 1033. Make an appointment for consultation with the director, Miss Beulah Smith. M. H.

The Eternal Triangle.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: About five years ago I met and promptly fell very much in love with a certain young lady, although we did not at that time become what you might call friends. Shortly afterwards I lost my mother and was called home. While there I was persuaded to marry an old school mate whom I did not love, although I thought at the time I might eventually learn to love her.

* * * *

Still later, I returned to Washington, where I again met the young woman I had fallen in love with at sight. This time we did become good friends and I discovered she returned my love. I would rather spend 5 minutes with her than 24 hours with my wife and son. I love my little son, understand, but I do not love my wife and never shall. I cannot make myself love her. I really love the other woman, and she loves me.

* * * *

What must I do? Must I continue to live with a woman I do not love and never will, or should I get a divorce and marry the other girl? Please help me. C. J. S.

* * * *

Parents' First Duty.

DEAR C. J. S.: This is a matter which your own conscience (if any) must decide. Ordinarily I am no advocate of two persons living together in marriage if their union is not hallowed by mutual love and respect. But on the other hand, neither do I advocate a man's betraying his marriage vows and turning away from voluntarily incurred responsibilities to wife and child, simply because he happens to entertain a so-called romantic passion for some other woman.

* * * *

What does your wife think of the situation? Or have you discussed it with her? If not, you should. If she were convinced that you never have loved her and never would; that you are even now wholeheartedly giving to another woman the profound devotion which should be your wife's alone, I cannot believe that she would insist on holding you. But are you financially able to make a second marriage, inviting the prospect of other children, and continue to support the child of your first marriage?

* * * *

It seems to me your first obligation here is to your child. It has been said the story of every man's life is the story of his pursuit of happiness, and the individual's right to happiness in his personal life is not to be lightly denied, but no man or woman of any character is going to seize personal happiness at the expense of a helpless child for whose very existence he or she is responsible.

* * * *

It is not for me, or for any other person, to assume the burden of making your decision for you in this case. I am convinced, however, that it is a decision which should not be approached from a purely selfish personal viewpoint. And I know that it is possible for two really fine, responsible minded persons to keep their marriage a going concern if, in the absence of mutual romantic love, they must proceed, instead, on a basis of mutual respect, quiet affection and selfless devotion to an ideal of duty. M. H.

Wally Simpson's Spring Wardrobe Nearly Complete

Paris (U.P.).—Wally Simpson's spring wardrobe is just being completed at Molyneux's Paris house.

Most outstanding is the luxurious new silver fox coat which uses ten full, long skins instead of the customary seven or eight. The skins are worked lengthwise from a soft round collar at the neck and the coat comes to just below hip length. This she will wear over afternoon and evening clothes.

Gown Alice Blue.

Alice blue satin was selected for a tailored new evening gown which is made like a fitted sheath to the knees and then flares out slightly to the floor.

She has a spring coat in black wool which is made with a fitted, beltless waist, and a flared swing skirt. Silk cord braiding makes a looped design around the collarless neck, the revers and down the front. Mrs. Simpson will wear with this a black dress of sheer wool, made somewhat like the coat with a collarless neck and small revers edged in a band of white crepe.

Minister Smashes Window of Liquor Store; Sent to Jail

Fort Smith, Ark., April 19 (AP).—Accused of smashing two liquor store windows, the Rev. William D. Gray, 59-year-old Methodist minister of nearby Vesta, Ark., told Municipal Judge J. A. Gallaher today that "a brick was there and I felt the Lord wanted me to throw it."

The minister testified he was "seized with a desire to destroy a liquor store every time I see one."

Deputy Sheriff Otto Kuykendall arrested him at his Vesta Church last night. Gallaher fined the minister $100 for malicious mischief and said he had committed him to jail for failure to satisfy the judgment.

School Strike Ends.

Covington, Ky., April 19 (AP).—Seventy-five pupils of Ludlow (Ky.) High School returned today to classes which they quit last Wednesday after the board of education failed to reappoint Miss Lillian Clift, a teacher. Miss Clift asked them to return as "a favor to me."

Bill Puts Small Courts Heating Up to District

Measure Is Passed by Senate and Sent to President.

The Senate passed yesterday and sent to the White House a bill which authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to furnish heat for the small courts building now under construction in Judiciary Square. The District will pay for the service.

President Roosevelt signed a District bill which increases the authorization for vocational rehabilitation for World War veterans in Washington from $15,000 to $25,000 a year. Provision for the increase already has been made in the District appropriations measure.

Two local bills, identical with measures pending in the House, were introduced in the Senate by Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee.

One makes mandatory the semi-annual inspection of all motor vehicles in the District under direction of the director of vehicles and traffic, while the other amends the code relative to offenses against property by increasing the maximum for petit larceny from $35 to $50 and specifying a jail sentence for all grand larceny convictions.

Senator Copeland (Democrat), of New York, reported as chairman of a sub-committee the District bill to prevent blindness in infants with an amendment striking out a clause exempting faith healers.

Upon request of Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, the Senate passed over a bill to increase the quota of the District for appointments to the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Senator Walsh explained that his bill relating to the Naval Academy was being held up by Senator King for amendment and that he thought both measures should be acted upon concurrently.

Semiannual Inspection of Motor Vehicles Is Proposed.

Vitamin B Cures New Heart Malady

St. Louis, April 19 (AP).—A hitherto unrecognized form of heart disease in the United States caused by malnutrition and a specific treatment for it were described today before the annual meeting of the American College of Physicians.

Dr. Soma Weiss and Dr. Robert W. Wilkins, of Boston, reported that in 120 of their patients, enough to make it "relatively common," the specific form of heart disease was found and traced readily to nutritional deficiency. A "rapid and often spectacular cure" resulted from the simple administration of vitamin B.

Divorcee Pictures Battle With Nerve In Shooting Count

Paris, April 19 (U.P.).—Mme. Madeleine de Fontanges, sultry-eyed Parisian divrocee who says she was Premier Mussolini's mistress for three months, testified today that she almost lost her nerve when she aimed a small revolver at Count Charles Pineton de Chambrun's heart.

The 31-year-old beauty told an examining magistrate she paced up and down the crowded railway platform of the Gare du Nord a month ago "debating with myself whether to shoot the count."

Then, as the 62-year-old diplomat was stepping aboard the Bluebird Express for Brussels, a sudden surge of anger at what she insists was the count's "poisonous" role in smashing her "unforgettable hours of love" with the iron man bolstered her nerve, she said, and she fired without regret

"I'm sorry my pistol jammed after the first shot," the former newspaperwoman and actress said angrily.

U. S. Acts to Equip Scouts at Jubilee

The War Department will provide cots, blankets and tents for American Boy Scouts who attend the World Jamboree in the Netherlands during July and August under terms of a bill signed yesterday by President Roosevelt.

One thousand two hundred cots, 4,500 blankets, tentage for 1,200 Scouts, 25 cranes, 25 sets of commissary storage shelves, 100 pot chains, 100 cook pots, 25 U. S. parade-size flags, 50 fry pans, 50 bake pans, 50 reflector ovens, 200 water pails, 50 tin serving pans and 250 pitchers will be provided by the Secretary of War.

The Boy Scouts will pay no fee for use of the equipment, but will be required to furnish bond for its return.

The law also authorized the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to remit the tax on steamship tickets to bonafide Scouts, and the Secretary of State is instructed to issue them passports without customary fees.

Gentlemen:

I am taking the liberty of writing you in regard to the 1937 60 h.p. Ford V-8 which was purchased on December 21, 1936.

On all of my trips to and from Washington, D.C. the 60 h.p. engine has given me marvelous performance in every respect.

When this car was purchased, the salesman assured me 20 to 24 miles on one gallon of gas. However, on one of my recent trips I have averaged a little over 26 miles per gallon, my wife and my children were in the car. One-third of this trip was city driving.

Again, may I state to you that I am perfect. ly satisfied with my 60 h.p. V-8 Ford and will be glad to recommend it to anyone.

Yours very truly,

John D Shaw

This car will save you money hand over fist—and let you ride in real luxury while you do it! Gas economy is the best ever built into a Ford car. Owners report no oil added between 2000 mile changes. Upkeep costs are rock-bottom. Price is the lowest Ford price in years.

Yet just look at the comfort and smartness and modern features it gives you!

Big roomy 6-passenger body, with seats between the axles where riding comfort's at its best. New easy-acting, faster stopping brakes—with the safety of steel from pedal to wheels. All steel-on-steel construction, insulated against noise, heat, cold—and with rubber "pillows" between body and frame. A big outside luggage compartment. Rich new appointments and upholstery. Safety Glass throughout and a windshield that opens. New effortless steering, silent gear-shifting, easy-acting Centri-force clutch.

And you get a V-8 engine. A fine-car engine, that's fun to drive. A modern engine distinguished by its smooth, quiet response to your every demand.

In fact, you'll agree that you never saw any car like this before. Come in and drive it today!

Bob Burns Says

Copyright, 1937

By Bob Burns.

We all know that nature is pretty thorough in her work, but one of her best points is not makin' things too perfect. For instance, nobody's face is jest alike on both sides. I suppose a face that's absolutely perfect would be right pretty at first glance, but I imagine you'd get pretty tired lookin' at it.

I had one uncle that might have been a wonderful writer if he hadn't tried to be too particular about stickin' to facts. That's my Uncle Wadsworth Dickens Hink. He wrote a book one time and gave it to me to look over. I noticed there was quite a few blank pages in the book and I asked him what the meanin' of 'em was and he says "Well, the hero and the heroine had an argument on page 8 and from there on to page 24 the pages are blank until they started speakin' again."

Police Seek Man Posing As U. S. Aide

Motorist Who Fled Two Officers Claimed to Be Official.

Showed Identification of Justice Department Assistant.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Eighth Precinct police are looking for a motorist reported to be impersonating Brien McMahon, assistant to Attorney General Homer Cummings.

But before the impersonation was reported yesterday, two policemen applied for a speed warrant against McMahon. Authorities withheld issuance of the warrant and promptly investigated.

First, they called Policemen L. H. Gentry and L. O. Olinger, members of an Eighth Precinct scout car crew.

Early Friday morning, the policemen said, they stopped a car for speeding 70-miles-an-hour on Connecticut avenue. The driver showed a Maryland operator's permit and Department of Justice identification card, both in McMahon's name.

They told the accused motorist to follow them to the station house. He suddenly swerved into a side street and led the officers on a 5-mile chase at break-neck speed.

Yesterday, there was a conference in McMahon's office. Gentry and Olinger, accompanied by Lieut. Kelly, their commanding officer, emerged from the meeting to announce:

"He (McMahon) is not the man we want."

Denies Owning Car.

Said McMahon:

"I don't even own a car and have no Maryland driver's permit. Someone is impersonating me."

Before the impersonation first became known yesterday, Rice Hooe, assistant corporation counsel in charge of Police Court, called an official of the Police Department. He directed the speed warrant to be returned without service when and if it reached the Eighth Precinct.

But to questions about application for the warrant Hooe responded:

"I am not in touch with everything that goes on around here. I'm going to be noncommittal."

As told by Gentry and Olinger, the story of the speed incident was:

They stopped a car for 70-miles-an-hour speed near Connecticut avenue and Van Ness street. The driver identified himself with the permit and identification card as McMahon. En route to the station house, with the police car leading, the arrested driver swung suddenly into a side street and "stepped on the gas." The police car pursued.

Police Give Up Chase.

The chase led along a zig-zag course, with the fleeing car traveling mostly on the wrong side of the street. At one point, sparks flew from a rear wheel as the fugitive car scraped the left street curbing.

At Eleventh and N streets northwest, the speeding car barely missed a milk wagon. The policemen abandoned the chase.

The policemen said they were unable to obtain tag numbers of the other car.

When first stopped, the accused driver reportedly told Gentry and Olinger:

"I'm in the same business as you fellows. In fact, right now I'm investigating a tax case."

According to reports, the man was overtaken about 3 a. m. Friday.

McMahon could shed no light on the mysterious impersonator. He said he had neither a Justice Department identification card nor a Maryland operator's permit.

"It's pretty bad when someone goes around posing as a Government official," said McMahon. "I would certainly like to know who it could be."

1 Dead, 5 Hurt.

Five persons were injured in traffic crashes yesterday as police declared the death of William Kettle, colored, 61, 324 Anacostia road northeast, a traffic fatality.

Kettle died in Casualty Hospital Sunday from injuries suffered April 10 when he fell from a wagon on Benning Viaduct after the horse had fallen.

Police said any moving vehicle is classified as traffic. The death raised the official traffic total to 39 deaths this year.

William Butler, 44, 2620 Sixth street northeast, suffered a possible fractured skull when he was knocked down by a Capital Transit Co. bus at Fourth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast. The bus, police said, was operated by Frank C. Moore, 31, Hyattsville, Md. Butler was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Increase Asked By Dr. Stokes To Aid Jobless

Writing as chairman of the citizens committee for the unemployed, Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes yesterday asked Commissioner Hazen to increase the amount requested from the Federal Bureau of the Budget for the relief of unemployed "employables" to at least $150,000. Dr. Stokes points out that the original request for $130,000 was based on the supposition that the Commissioners could transfer about $70,000 from unexpended relief funds for the relief of these 3,000 "employables."

At the same time the committee has not lost sight of the need for an additional $1,000,000 of relief funds to take care of "employables" during the next fiscal year. Dr. Stokes, in a letter, offers the active support of the committee in this effort on the part of the Commissioners, and in obtaining adequate personnel for the Department of Public Welfare to do its work of investigation, social service and certification effectively.

The letter calls attention to the work of the 103 volunteers from the churches working under the cooperating committee of the Federation of Churches and the Council of Social Agencies which already has a list of 3,112 unduplicated cases from among persons who have applied for help to the public and private relief agencies since January 1.

The Citizens' Committee for the Unemployed is an outgrowth of the recent mass meeting held at the First Congregational Church, that authorized the formation of this committee to carry out its mandates. With this idea in mind, Dr. Stokes was elected chairman, with William J. Flather, jr., Coleman Jennings and Joseph P. Tumulty as vice chairmen, and William H. Savin as secretary.

Members to date, in addition to the officers, are as follows: Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, Judge James A. Cobb, David Dixon, Charles C. Glover jr., Woodson Houghton, Maj. Campbell Johnson, Joseph D. Kaufman, Edward Keating, Dr. William McClellan, Eugene Meyer, Newbold Noyes, Mrs. W. A. Roberts, Mrs. John A. Selby, the Rev. Laurence J. Shehan, Corcoran Thom, Walter S. Ufford and Ford E. Young.

Luther at Testimonial Dinner Stresses U. S. Nazi Friendship

A testimonial luncheon was given for Dr. Hans Luther, retiring Ambassador of Germany, in the Willard Hotel yesterday by Lutheran officials, ministers, educators and missionaries from the District of Columbia, Maryland Pennsylvania Illinois and India.

After Dr. Gould Wickey, representing the National Lutheran Educational Conference, had presented Dr. Luther with a dozen books on religious and philosophical subjects and had bade him God-speed, the German envoy revealed he had been making a study of the history of the Lutheran Church in America.

Between the United States and Germany, Dr. Luther said, there are special bridges of friendship. One tie, he said, was that of family and blood relation, and another was the Lutheran heritage. He expressed the wish that this fact of a common religious feeling may prove a strong foundation for a better understanding between the United States and Germany. Too often, he said, relations between nations are based wholly on criticisms made without appreciative understanding of conditions and problems.

Dr. Wickey, who presided at the luncheon, said Martin Luther laid the basis for the religious education of the common people, but that this contribution was not yet fully appreciated.

"One hundred years ago," said Dr. Wickey, "Horace Mann understood the supreme importance of the common school and prophesied that with its expansion nine-tenths of our crime would disappear.

"But Horace Mann forgot Luther's fundamental principle that religion is basic for all schools, and partially as a result of our crime has increased 500 per cent within the last 100 years.

Dr. L. M. Zimmerman, of Baltimore and Washington, offered the prayer of grace at the luncheon, and Dr. E. W. Schuette, president of the Eastern District of the American Luthern Church, gave the benediction.

New B. & O. Train Inspected by 4,000 At Terminal Here

More than 4,000 Washingtonians inspected a new streamlined train exhibited yesterday at Union Station by the B. & O. Railroad.

The chief innovation was a cooling system, which took place alongside standard heating system.

Unique was the club car, with a compact sandwich and liquor bar, lending to the car some of the spaciousness and atmosphere of a hotel lobby.

Drawing rooms and parlor cars were featured by deep carpets and colorfully lined chairs. Sofas, tables, easy chairs, writing desks, floor lamps, etc., transformed average coaches into living rooms.

The B. & O. Railroad, claimant of the title of being the "first" to introduce air-cooled trains, now uses air-cooling in all its cars.

Gypsies Summon Scattered Kinsmen For Tribal Burial

Pete Ely, 42-year-old gypsy, died yesterday in Emergency Hospital, and his kinsmen, who live at 418 Ninth street northwest, were seeking means of notifying the far-flung tribe of his death.

Death was caused by high blood pressure, his kinsmen related. And his death brought gloom to the brightly decked room where Ely's kinsmen tell fortunes and sell gypsy wares.

A spokesman for the family told of how Ely had lived here for ten years—of how he had three sisters, Mary, Sarah and Doka, and of how the family would like to locate another sister so that she might be in Dayton, Ohio, for the funeral services. While the spokesman related this in English, others of the family constantly prompted him in their native tongue.

The body will be taken to Dayton tomorrow. The family is seeking to contact relatives who live in Detroit.

2 More Groups Join District's Walking Strike

The "walking strike," which last week clogged the District's building inspection machinery, spread yesterday to two more municipal departments.

In an ultimatum delivered to their department April 12, building inspectors declared they would walk to their assignments until given expense money for their automobiles. Yesterday Alfred R. McGonegal's plumbing inspectors, and John W. Oehmann's elevator inspectors, joined them.

Commenting on the "strike," H. W. Stewart, of the plumbing staff, said the plumbing inspectors' protest was similar to the building inspectors.'

In 1932, he said, they had been given 50 street car tokens a month to make their inspections. Later, he added, that allowance, after being cut to 30, was totally withdrawn.

Since then, the plumbing inspectors have been using their own automobiles at their own expense.

Plumbing Inspector McGonegal said he had had not been formally notified of the "strike." He will, however, call it to the attention of Director of Inspection Hugh P. Oram.

Oram, it was learned, already has placed the problem before Engineer Commissioner Dan I. Sultan, and he asked that $7,920 be included in the District supply bill to provide automobile expense money for the field inspectors.

Trolley Inquiry Begun After Score Are Hurt in Fire

Latent danger in the Capital Transit Co.'s street cars was being investigated yesterday as a result of Thursday's accident, in which more than a score of persons were injured.

Richmond B. Keech, vice chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, said F. A. Sager, commission chief engineer, and S. B. Miles, an inspector, were making the investigation.

The inquiry was being conducted, Keech said, at some "types" of cars owned by the company. All of its 700 cars will not be examined. It is expected Sager and Miles will soon report back to the commission.

Earlier in the day it was learned that a court order of several years' standing fixing minimum trolley fare rates makes it impossible for the Public Utilities Commission to force resumption of the $1 weekly pass, abandoned by the company.

Though members of the commission would not commit themselves on the subject, it was learned that utilities experts believe that the $1 pass can return only if the company voluntarily resumes the practice.

Speakers Ask Reform in Criminology

Professor Urges Adequate Laws for Criminal Justice.

Dr. Carr Says Educators Should Exert Their Influence.

A salvo of criticism was aimed at the legal treatment of delinquency from two platforms last night as Prof. S. Sheldon Glueck, of the Harvard University Law School, and Dr. William Carr, of the National Education Association, addressed separate gatherings on the subject.

Indicating the legal profession for "lagging behind in support and advocation of laws to meet the crying need of the times," Glueck, world-famous criminologist, told the Washington College of Law Alumni Association that "it is time lawyers took the challenge of society and began to propagate legislation which will improve the administration of criminal justice."

"Men unfitted for their jobs are hindering the progress that should have advanced with that in other fields by their incapacity to deal with delinquents," he said. "In nearly every community, the police force consists of a group of men who believe that crime prevention consists of enforcement of law by the nightstick."

Reform Delayed.

Addressing a group which included prominent lawyers and one district judge, Glueck opened his talk at the college by stating that lawyers had for years been classed as conservative. "They have been so in the light that they have conserved values of civilizatoin, and have bene so in the other sense—conservative in that they have and are holling up reforms.

"It is a fact," he informed, "that from 60 to 80 per cent of men on parole have returned to crime. There is something definitely wrong when such statistics prevail, and were it not for the simple reason that parole probation officers are given too much work, these figures wouldn't be." He said they have been known to have as many as 200 men in their charge "which is humanly impossible."

He pointed out that judges often are not fitted to pass sentence or charge a jury. "They have little or no training in the fields which figure in the trial and sentencing of a defendant."

Urges Proper Background.

"A man should be a student of psychology, psychiatry, sociology, and education before he be allowed to serve in the capacity of judge." He concluded by asking that his criticism be viewed not in the light of an indictment, but more as a plea for reprieve for the law profession.

Dr. Carr told members of the Monday Evening Club, meeting at the Y. W. C. A., that "educators must come to realize and utilize their potential influence in the treatment of juvenile deliquency."

Hollywood, April 19.—Picketing the preview parade:

"THE WOMAN I LOVE" (RKO-Radio). Here's a war picture that would have been a honey five years ago. However, the background of World War aviation makes it seem slightly obsolete today.

Cast is topnotch, with Paul Muni and Miriam Hopkins in the leads and such supporting names as Louis Hayward, Colin Clive and Paul Guilfoyle.

Story, based on Joseph Kessel's French novel, "L'Equipage," is straight triangle stuff, with Hayward as a young observer discovering the girl with whom he is in love is the wife of his pilot and friend, Muni.

War montage and aviation scenes are rather good, many of them having been transposed from an earlier French film. There is, however, not a novel stunt in the lot.

Performances are uniformly good, with Muni standing out. Both Clive and Guilfoyle score heavily, the latter unusually in sympathetic part.

An odd feature is there is not a heavy in the cast, the situation and the war taking care of the menacing.

Other striking bits by Vince Barnett and Sterling Holloway.

"THE GOOD OLD SOAK," (Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer). Wallace Beery, aptly cast for once, makes mild, earthy fun of this Doc Marquis drollery.

The Marquis wit, drier and homlier than the current wisecracking style, doesn't draw many abdominal laughs, but does keep audiences grinning, which is by way of being a relief.

Sharpest effect of the dry era selling is to bring home to adult audiences prohibition has been over some time. The "bootlegger," as demonstrated by Ted Healy, is already a stranger to younger moviegoers.

Drinking scenes are handled with utmost discretion, and for an "Old Soak" Beery is the soberest human eye has ever seen. However, he gets the idea over, saves his son (Eric Linden) from prison, his wife (Una Merkel) from distraction, offends no one and proves himself not such a bad fellow, after all.

"KING OF THE GAMBLERS." (Paramount). Good crime melodrama, vaguely based on the slot machine racket, but featuring the widely exploited "blood thirst" of Akim Tamiroff.

Tamiroff shoots 'em down and throws 'em down elevator shafts with a bland equanimity that is the smoothest thing of its kind on the screen.

Quality that makes the show for Tamiroff is entirely absent from the role of Lloyd Nolan, who is something of a heavy himself. He is cast sympathetically as the reporter who roots out vice and wins the girl, in this case appealing Claire Trevor.

Nolan makes a better bandit, as in "Texas Rangers," or a gangster, as in "Internes Can't Take Money."

Picture is the last for Helen Burgess, young actress who died recently of pneumonia. She plays the second feminine lead, and one of Tamiroff's victims.

Porter Hall plays an editor as if he knew what he was doing. Other good bits for Barlowe Borland, Larry Crabbe and Paul Fix.

Mrs. Woodward Dies Here at 74

Mrs. Lillie F Woodward, 74, formerly of Detroit, died late yesterday after a brief illness at her home at 4817 Thirty-sixth street northwest.

Widow of a Detroit railroad man, Mrs. Woodward came to Washington last Christmas and took up her residence with her son, Clarence M. Woodward.

In Detroit she was a member of the Histrical Memorial Society and the Michigan Authors Association.

Surviving is another son, George R. Woodward.

Virginia College Press Asked to Join Contest

Richmond, Va., April 19 (AP).—The Virginia Interscholastic Press Association sought additional entries today for its college publication contest before beginning eliminations to determine State winners.

S. Frank Straus, Richmond, executive secretary, said the judging would take place here in about two weeks.

The association concluded its tenth annual convention here Saturday after voting to meet in Lexington in October.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

When Horace Heidt and Orchestra Play the Earle An Important Member of the Cast Will Be Missing

'Lobo,' the Wolf, Has Passed to the Happy Hunting Grounds of Canine Actors, or Wherever It Is They Go, Since Heidt Organization Last Was Here—He Will Be Missed; Rules and Regulations for Annual One-Act Play Tournament Available; Lou Brown Back to Town, Vice Ray Bell, en Route to Europe.

WHEN Horace Heidt and His Alemite Brigadiers Orchestra opens on the stage of the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater on Friday, one former member of the Heidt band will be missing. That will be Lobo.

BELL.

Lobo, in case you do not remember, was the dignified and well-trained German shepherd dog that always was an important part of the Heidt stage turn. There were several Lobos, as a matter of fact. I think, altogether, one of the members of the orchestra trained three of these noble specimens of canine understanding of the requirements of the stage to swing his paws in tempo with the music, sit up, and otherwise prove himself a musician and a gentleman.

But after all this sort of thing runs out in time. I do not mean that the dogs run out, but there inevitably comes a time when the patience of the trainer does and he is apt to say, "To pot with the whole annoying business."

That seems to be what has happened in the case of Lobo—the Spanish word for "wolf," if I have my memory on straight, which very seldom happens. Lobo no longer will bring the Heidt act to its peculiarly effective climax in the eyes of dog lovers. The last of the line, I am given to believe, was poisoned, just as has happened to other intelligent dogs whose contributions to the stage and screen have been the object of intense jealousy by other less successful trainers.

We will miss Lobo. He was a grand actor in all of his various editions, if you get what I mean. Not that Lobo and I were very good friends. I recall the first occasion on which I met the first of the line of Lobos. It was at a Press Club luncheon and, fool that I am where dogs are concerned, I made a gesture of friendship toward him and was warned away by his handler. Later on, he was told to come over and shake hands, which he did in most gentlemanly fashion.

I repeat, I shall miss Lobo from the Heidt act, although it will be a genuine pleasure to welcome Horace Heidt back to town, where he and his boys always have been a hit of the first water.

So Lou Brown, in charge of publicity and advertising in Baltimore for the Loew organization, is back in Washington, on half-time, pinch-hitting for Ray Bell—no relation—who is on the high seas and the S. S. Roma en route to Italy and the continent as a reward for his campaign on "The Garden of Allah." Mr. Brown's charming wife, Shirley, will be over here, more or less, during the month of Lou's gratuitous substituting in a field he knows backward—at least in time to attend Maj. Woody S. Van Dyke's "recherche" Wednesday night party at the Mayflower. Welcome home, kids, is what I always say.

The executive committee having in charge the annual one-act play tournament of the District, which will be held in October, now has its rules and regulations ready for entering and participating in the tournament. These rules should be applied for by competing drama groups at the earliest possible moment, in order that all those wishing to enter for the first, second, third and fourth cash prizes that are offered may be fully appraised of the requirements they will be expected to meet. Applications should be addressed to the home office of the Community Center Department of the Public School System in the Franklin Administration Building.

This years' tournament will be under the active chairmanship of Denis E. Connell, noted for his many fine performances, both as actor and director in local resident theatricals, with Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peeples as chairman ex-officio.

Not more than 20 plays will be accepted for the one-act play joust this year. The preliminaries will be held in Roosevelt Auditorium between the dates of October 11 and 21, with the finals scheduled for October 23.

The Maud Howell Smith medal will be awarded for the best individual acting in the preliminary tournament, in addition to the money prizes given the winning groups of players.

The drama desks of the local press have more fun! The latest contribution to their spare hours, when they are not covering previews, interviewing visiting stars and directors, getting out their daily columns or their Sunday sections, is a game called "Socko," which comes to hand in a neat box—not yet opened—with a friendly note from John J. Payette, zone manager of the Warner interests in the Washington territory. I have not the slightest idea what this latest adjunct to the gayety of nations may be all about, but I will find out in time—I hope. In the meantime, thanks for another distraction.

Seats for the return engagement of Jane Cowl in "First Lady" will go on sale at the box office of the National Theater on Thursday of this week. The mail orders, so one is led to believe, have been so heavy that there will not be much left when it comes to the cash-on-the-line transactions. However, there will be enough desirable seat locations left to insure some compensation for being present in line when the box-office opens.

"First Lady," incidentally, is a pert and pat travesty on feminine official life in the National Capital that no resident who knows the ropes can afford to miss.

Due to the fact that the Washington Civic Theater will hold its next production through May 4 at the Wardman Park Theater, the talk by Fred Taylor Wilson on the subject of "The Constitution and Its Makers" will be presented on Thursday evening, May 6. Mr. Wilson, who is being presented under the management of the T. Arthur Smith Concert Bureau, is a well-known lecturer, author and historical authority.

Lenore Ulric, who comes to the stage of Loew's Capitol Theater on Friday, has not been seen on a local rostrum since her appearance at the National Theater in "Her Man of Wax."

As has been said here many times before, this was a much better comedy than it was given credit for being when it reached Broadway. Emmett Corrigan, motion-picture director, played Napoleon in this exhibit and, while he offered an impersonation something under the general level of merit of Maurice Evans' in "St. Helena," still did a chore that deserved infinitely more than it received at the hands of the "death watch." It will be interesting to observe what Miss Ulric has to offer this time.

Lieut. Joseph Heil Funeral Is Today

Funeral services for Lieut. Joseph Heil, U. S. N., reitred, of Indianhead, will be held today at 10:30 a. m., at the Ryan undertaking establishment, followed by mass in Fort Myer Chapel at 11. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Entering the Navy as an enlisted man, Lieut. Heil rose rapidly because of his gallantry and attention to duty. He was with Admiral Dewey at the Battle of Manila Bay, and served in the fleet during the Boxer Rebellion in China. At the outbreak of the World War he was stationed at the Navy Yard here.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. M. E. Heil; two sons, Capt. John Joseph Heil and Thomas Cornelius Heil, and three daughters, Anna Theresa, Mary Frances and Margaret Heil.

Deputy Freed on Bond After Fatal Shooting

St. Charles, Va., April 19 (AP).—Frank Lee, deputy sheriff of Lee County, was at liberty under bond today, pending a hearing Friday on charges in connection with the fatal shooting late Saturday of Millard Tankersley, 45, of Big Stone Gap.

The police chief said Lee told him that he boarded a gondola car in the wildcat section and attempted to place Tankersley under arrest. Lee said that Tankersley reached for something in his pocket, whereupon Lee shot him in self-defense. Still said two gallons of whiskey were found in the gondola.

Soviet Flier Lands At Arctic Outpost

Moscow, April 19 (AP).—The world's northernmost habitation, Rudolf Island, 2,500 miles from Moscow and about 550 miles from the North Pole, reported the safe arrival here today of P. G. Golovin, noted Soviet flier making an ambitious aerial survey of the Arctic regions.

When Golovin left Moscow for his flight March 23 it was reported he might test the feasibility of establishing an air base at the North Pole.

Cyclist Slays Occupant Of Horn-Blowing Auto

Chicago, April 19 (AP).—A youthful cyclist stabbed a motorist to death today because, police said, he objected to giving an automobile right of way. Squads began a search for him.

Peter Valenchian, 41, of Cicero, was stabbed fatally while riding in an automobile driven by W. M. Balman, 40. Police quoted Balman as telling them he sounded his horn at a bicycle rider preceding him in the street. The cyclist, police said, dismounted, walked to the car, slashed Valenchian and then pedalled away.

Paris Movie Strike.

Paris, April 19 (AP).—Premier Leon Blum began today efforts to negotiate an end to the Paris movie strike which continued to affect almost half the city's 500 amusement houses.

Sings With Casa Loma Orchestra

a gifted and beautiful young specialist who comes to the stage of Loew's Capitol Theater this week with the Casa Loma Orchestra, under the conductorship of Glen Gray. This band has been on the same stage during a previous engagement and acquitted itself with glory. Miss Green aids the cause this week.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, April 19.—Well, for gosh sakes let me get up my fists! Now, come all who will. For here I sit wading through a stack of letters containing growls from amateur photographers who want nothing less than my scalp. The scalp is all they can get; I worried the hair off long ago.

PRESTON FOSTER.

Amateur lens artists are cracking down on me because of my snarl about candid cameramen who have recently snapped pictures of stars in uncomplimentary poses. Most of the letters protest my suggestion that cameras should be muzzled. The writers claim 'freedom of the camera."

* * * *

As a newspaperman accustomed to freedom of the press, I certainly think photographers are equally entitled to liberal use of their cameras. But Hollywood candid cameramen often abuse the privilege. I have no respect for a newspaperman who reports that a star has false teeth or wears a toupee. And I have no more respect for a cameraman who uses a lens to reveal the same faults.

* * * *

Here's my viewpoint: Personal beauty is an actress' tool of trade. She goes to great expense and effort to be pictured at her best. When she is tired, and wants to let down her hair and play like other mortals, it is not fair for a cameraman to sneak a photograph of her at her worst, and thus tear down an illusion she has spent years to create.

* * * *

To amateur photographers who have written to me (and to others who did not bother), I make this comparison: Beauty is as important to an actress as a lens to a camera box. It is just as unjust to destroy the actress' beauty as it would be to break the photographer's lens.

* * * *

Preston Foster did not like the dialogue for a love scene in his new picture, so the scenario writer was summoned to make alterations. Pres tried to avoid hurting the fellow's feelings by saying, "The idea of the scene is fine, old man. But, be honest—would you have used such phrases to propose to your wife?"

And the writer flabbergasted Foster with the simple reply, "I did."

Jimmy Gleason (who argues that I am a sissy because I spell my name with an "ie," which he terms effeminate), delights in telling this story on himself: When he and his wife were in vaudeville, they played a comedy skit in which Jimmy (a burglar) entered the bedroom of a woman (played by his wife). The woman screamed.

* * * *

Moving from one middle West town to another, they were up all night making train connections, and arrived at the theater just in time for the curtain. Jimmy made his usual entrance, but from the semi-darkness of the stage, there came no scream. Only snoring Gleason tried to awaken his wife by making noises, but the audience began to titter.

Finally Jimmy shook Mrs. Gleason, and it was then that she uttered the line that canceled their act. "Hurry to bed, Jim," she said. "I'm getting cold."

* * * *

Director John Ford's handkerchief-chewing habit is a tradition in Hollywood. It is his custom to sit gnawing on a kerchief when he directs. As he bites holes, it is a rather expensive habit. So just before his last picture, Mrs. Ford ordered twelve dozen cambric handkerchiefs, which she substituted for the linen ones in John's bureau. Thinking, of course, he would not notice. Then she began missing her own handkerchiefs. Her husband, it seems, has an appetite only for Irish linen.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

A Highly Successful Opening Lead.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	2 ◇	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
3 N T	Pass	Pass	Pass

West pondered over the bidding and then selected the only card that could have defeated the contract, namely the diamond King. After that declarer was helpless. He could make a very few tricks without knocking out the heart Ace, and West proceeded to run off six good diamonds.

Here is West's own reasoning concerning the lead: "South had shown reluctance to bid notrump—with two diamond stoppers he probably would have bid two notrump instead of three hearts over North's first spade bid. North, with a rebiddable spade suit, finally let the contrate rest at notrump which indicated some assistance in stopping the diamonds. I could be sure that my own partner did not hold the diamond Ace, but if either he or North had the single Queen the lead of the King could not lose and might gain terrifically. If North had the guarded Queen there was nothing I could do about it. Of course, it was very lucky that I dropped the Queen and ten in one shot."

Considering the fact that any other lead would have resulted in game for the opponents, West's reasoning was lavishly rewarded.

Simpson Romance Topic of Debaters

Did the British newspapers have any right to suppress news of the Wallis Simpson-King Edward romance?

This will be one of five international questions to be debated by two American University boys who leave Washington today for Great Britain to meet the leading debating teams of the British Isles as representatives of the National Student Federation of America.

The five questions were made public last night by Dr. Orville A. Hitchcock, debates coach at the university, at a dinner in farewell to the debaters—Sidney Sachs and William Powell, both of this city. They are:

Resolved, That newspaper publishers should not withold vital information from the public.

Resolved, That this house (meaning the audience) wishes that its ancestors had emigrated to America.

Resolved, That Parliament should legalize mercy death.

Resolved, That Congress should be empowered to fix minimum wages and maximum hours for industry.

Resolved, That the United States should not permit itself to be drawn into a European war.

Coronation Season Opened in London With Verdi Opera

London, April 19 (AP).—Jeweled tiaras sparkled tonight as social leaders descended on Covent Garden Market for the opening of the coronation season at the Royal Opera House.

Many left their cars some distance from the opera house and hurried on foot through traffic in order not to miss the opening strains of Verdi's "Othello." They recalled that Sir Thomas Beecham, director, last year ordered doors locked as the overture began. Giovanni Martinelli appeared in the title role of the inaugural coronation opera.

Opening of the opera season and gathering of turbaned visitors from the East and others from far corners of the earth brought Britain's elaborately planned coronation time closer to reality for Londoners. Rulers from India—rajahs and ranees, maharajahs and maharanees—gathered in the capital for the May 12 ceremonies.

Robber Flees as Gems Are Strewn in Street

London, April 19 (AP).—Jewels valued at $100,000 bounced along fashionable Regent street today when a robber attempted to hold up a jeweler's messenger.

The gems, including coronation tiaras and heirlooms left for alteration, were being brought from a bank safe. The messenger was knocked on the head by his assailant. As he fell, his bag burst, scattering the jewels along the sidewalk. The robber escaped. All the jewels were recovered.

Ninth Body Recovered From Farmhouse Blast

Muskego, Wis., April 19 (AP).—A six-man coroner's jury poked through debris today in an effort to learn what touched off an explosion that killed a mother and eight of her ten children.

The ninth body was recovered today in the wreckage of the two-story frame farmhouse, blown to bits last night while the John Waszak family sat in a living room listening to the radio. The body, that of 2½-year-old Raymond, was found near the spot where a quantity of dynamite, used for blasting stumps, was stored.

Wounded Robber Slain To Save Hospital Bill

Peiping, April 19 (AP).—Dragged from a hospital bed by police executioners, Liu Yung-Ho, notorious Chinese robber, was shot and killed today.

Liu was wounded last month in a gun battle with police. Although condemned to die, he was permitted to enter a hospital for treatment and his execution delayed. His recovery was slow, however, and authorities eventually decided they could not pay his hospital bills indefinitely.

Starts Slaying Term.

Los Angeles, April 19 (AP).—Helen Wills Love, "horror coma" slayer, went to the women's prison at Tehachapi today to begin serving seven years to life for shooting her secret husband.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, April 19.

WEALTH: A columnist who returned from Hollywood recently was at the Paradise sitting with Nicky Blair. Blair spied another newspaper man entering and started to go to his table. "I'm going to sit with a guy who's got one million, two hundred thousand," Blair stated . . . "Then keep on sitting here," the columnist urged . . . "No," Blair insisted, "I want to sit with a guy who's got one million, two hundred thousand." . . . "Say what're you talking about?" the columnist asked . . . "Circulation," Blair explained . . . "Oh, then go ahead," the columnist replied. "I thought you meant dollars."

DEFEAT: Six weeks ago a magician secured a job in a major cafe on West Fifty-second street. "I can do amazing jumping tricks," he had told the proprietor. "Look—I make four rabbits jump out of four ordinary chicken eggs. I make four flower pots jump out of four ordinary hats." . . . And so for six weeks he did these amazing jumping stunts—until Thursday evening . . . when he was arrested and returned to York, Pa.—for having jumped $500 bail.

TRAGEDY: Robert Stroud, who committed three murders, is serving time at Leavenworth. He lives in two cells, sleeping in one and breeding canaries in the adjoining cell . . . Stroud has almost 300 canaries there. When John Edgar Hoover visited the prison, he inspected the cells and discovered Stroud's work. "I like that canary," the G-man said, pointing to one of the birds, "How much?" . . . "Ten dollars," Stroud replied. Hoover paid the money, took the canary to his home, where, even to this day, the bird hasn't emitted a single musical note!

FOOD DEPT.: George White was in Lindy's and ordered "Jumbo Shad Roe." . . . When the food was served him, White complained and asked: "Are you sure this shad roe is Jumbo?" . . . "Say, what do you want," Lindy replied, "d'ya want Billy Rose's name on it?"

TRAVEL DEPT.: Maxie Rosenbloom fought Roscoe Toles in Detroit and received $3,600 for his efforts . . . As usual, Maxie immediately purchased a car—for $1,800, but had to leave Detroit before it could be delivered to him. Maxie now can't get the car, for nobody will drive it to his home in California—and shipping it would cost $110, which is exactly the amount he saved by purchasing it in Detroit . . . Rosenbloom, however, solved this problem. He agreed to fight Toles again—in Detroit!

* * * *

SPORTS DEPT.: The people residing near the Madison Square Garden Bowl in Astoria petitioned the Garden to install lights over huge advertising sign . . . The Garden officials, heeding the plea that the sign otherwise isn't readable at night, installed huge arc-lights . . . The real reason for the plea concerns the discovery by the neighbors that the sign made an excellent handball wall. With the installation of these lights, they now can play handball there at night!

THE I. T. & T. just received this report. In the town of Taxco, in Mexico, the utilities company strung wires in that vicinity and then sent salesmen to induce the natives to avail themselves of this newfangled electric light service. "Imagine your homes lit up at night," was the spiel. "It makes daylight in the night time" . . . The first prospect's answer was completely expressive of apparent doom. "At night," he shrugged, "we sleep."

THE INTERNATIONAL GENEVA SOCIETY, the organization of chefs and head waiters, met at the Astor. Before the ceremonies began, some one put up a Nazi flag, which remained there all evening.

THE INTERNAL REVENUE DEPT. is looking askance at a $50 deduction claimed by Ezra Stone of the cast of "Brother Rat." Stone deducted that sum for treatments at a ladies' beauty parlor. To get the job in the play he had to dye his hair and eyebrows blond —and preserve that color!

* * * *

A FRIEND of George White's phoned him from Hollywood to borrow $1,500 to pay a two-week hotel bill. "$1,500 for two weeks at the hotel? You're nuts," White told him. "I was there for seven weeks and it didn't cost me half as much" . . . "I know, George," was the reply, "but you don't live the way I do!"

"DRIFTWOOD," the seven-times-postponed play, was scheduled to open. A young lady who conducts theater parties as a profession had arranged to purchase more than $1,000 worth of tickets. After the fourth postponement she became jittery and spoke to the producers. When they assured her everything was okay, she arranged to purchase additional tickets . . . After the sixth postponement she again appeared to protest. A compromise was effected. They made her co-producer!

Phillies Beat Bees Twice, 2-1, 1-0, to Lead League

11th-Inning Homer Wins Opening Tilt

By the Associated Press.

Boston, April 19.—Although generally consigned to last place in the National League, the Phillies cleaned up both games of a holiday opening bill today by defeating the Bees 2-to-1 in the forenoon contest and coming back to administer a 1-to-0 shutout in the afternoon. A crowd of 10,000 turned out for the morning game and 25,000 saw the second contest.

An eleventh inning home run by Morris Arnovich broke up the morning hurling duel between the veterans Guy Bush, of the Bees, and Sylvester Johnson, Phillie right-hander. Johnson held the Bees to four hits while the visitors were rapping out eight off Bush. Johnson was replaced by Wayne La Master in the ninth inning, after the Bees put two men on bases with one out. La Master pitched hitless ball until Arnovich's game-winning circuit smash.

Bucky Walters celebrated his twenty-seventh birthday in the afternoon by turning in a four-hit pitching performance at the expense of Danny Macfayden to shut out the Bees, 1-0.

Only in one inning, the fourth, were the Bees able to advance a runner beyond first base. Eddie Mayo and Vince DiMaggio opened the inning with successive singles, but Frank McGowan hit into the first of three double plays completed by the visitors. Tony Cuccinello ended the inning by striking out.

The Phils' winning marker was registered in the fourth. With one out, Atwood reached first base on Warstler's miscue, took third on a single by Norris and scored when Cuccinello juggled Scharein's slow grounder.

Macfayden fanned eight of the Wilson clan and made one of the four Boston singles. Wally Berger, slugging centerfielder, fractured a finger during the afternoon's pregame practice and was forced to the sidelines.

Berger Sold

Washington Boy Goes to Chisox; Tribe Gets Kroner From Hub.

Cleveland, April 19 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians announced today the sale of Lou Berger, utility infielder, to the Chicago White Sox for cash.

The Indians last week acquired Joe Kroner, also a utility infielder, from the Boston Red Sox.

Berger is a former Tech High School and University of Maryland athlete who grew up on Washington sandlots. Signed by the Indians immediately after graduation, he was shipped to New Orleans for schooling in the Southern Association, and brought up to the American League two years ago.

Nats Talk Great Game, Aided By Mr. Fitzgerald—Still Lose

By Lewis F. Atchison.

The Nats' 1937 coming out party wasn't the doleful failure you might suspect from that 4-3, 10-inning defeat they absorbed from the Athletics. Actually they broke even on the day, handing the A's one of the fanciest verbal shelackings a team ever listened to. The king's English was handled a little uncouthly in the process, but it served the purpose.

Master Stanley Harris, jr., sounded the keynote of the afternoon, observing with a sagacity that belied his nine years, that "On a big day like this you cannot be conscious of your audience." Evidently taking this at its face value, the Nats completely forgot the record throng of 32,000 fans scattered about the premises in venting their spleen on the visitors—vocally, of course.

Red of face from much batting and running—in practice—Mr. Shanty Hogan eased his sylph-like 235 pounds onto the bench, wrapped his beet-colored neck in a heavy Turkish towel and remarked: "The bell has rang."

Mr. Fitzgerald Speaks.

This was the signal for Mr. Handsome Fitzgerald, secretary of the bench and a reformed ball-player himself to unloose a barrage of vituperate phrases in the general direction of the A's. But those flannel-eared (as Mr. Fitz called 'em) Philadelphians, didn't hear or were too busy playing ball to listen. Mr. Fitz batted around the A's lineup at least seven times and retired in grandiose triumph with a complex-compound note of contempt for a "knock-kneeded Philadelphia sandblower."

Washington's inability to get going was blamed on the pre-game "festival" by Mr. Frankie Baxter, assistant trainer.

"What do you think of these festivals," he asked Mr. Maurice Enright, of the clubhouse staff. Enright finally straightened him out on the difference between festivals and festivities.

The Nats didn't shift into high-gear patter until it was apparent that Mr. Mack's bush-leaguers were serious about winning, and then the jockeying was at a fast and furious pace. Bill Werber's appearance on the mound for a conference with the Philadelphia pitcher evoked some choice phrases.

"A Lotta Brains."

"There's a lotta brains out there now," yelled Joe Kuhel. "Get a toe plate, Werber," "Tell 'im to run with the ball," "I wish Eddie Moore (Atlanta manager) was here. I don't know what to do now," "Turn the shower on boy, I'ma comin'," were a few of the better ones.

Cheer leader for the boys was Ben Chapman, an old college man with experience in this line. "Come on," he said, "let's get these guys." Then, pointing at the Philly pitcher, "Watcha gonna do now, pinhead. You got about as many curves as a warped board."

But the gents had their serious moments, particularly late in the game when the going got bumpy. Manager Bucky Harris watched an outfielder play a hit rather clumsily and, grinding his spikes on the cement floor, groaned, "Hell, he looks like he's picking up a rattlesnake."

The concluding act featured Pitcher Joe Cascarella, who didn't relish the idea of losing the opening game. He tore Umpire Bill Dineen's character down from its 5-foot, 11-inch frame, and left it standing,—a little unsteadily—knee-high to a blade of grass. Mr. Dineen, in short, was a mighty poor excuse for an umpire, especially with Joe pitching. Dineen couldn't hear, which was not surprising to the Washington players, who accused him of being blind in the bargain.

It was a tough game to lose, especially after such eloquent vocal effort, but, as Mr. Fitzgerald philosophically observed:

"Well, even the best has to lose now and then, but it's too bad we have to associate with bums like them guys."

Congress Sees Game.

By the Associated Press.

Congress, with one eye on the clock, knocked off work before 2:30 p. m. yesterday.

There was no official mention of the reason. Neither was there any official doubt. The first ball game of the American League season was played here yesterday afternoon.

Coronation of King Baseball Proves a Colorful Spectacle

30,000 Subjects of Ancient Monarch Pay Tribute in Festivities at Griffith Stadium; 'Premier' Roosevelt Bestows Official Blessing.

By Bill McCormick.

The coronation of King Baseball MCMXXXVII was held with impressive ceremonies and regal feasting on hot dogs and pop at Griffith Stadium yesterday afternoon.

Jousting between the Washington Nats and Philadelphia Athletics followed the crowning of the new ruler of the sports domain.

Some 32,000 subjects—most of them loyal minions, a few attending purely for reasons of state—rent the air with mighty huzzahs as Premier Franklyn Delano Roosevelt bestowed the royal sceptre.

With the crow of the cock, subjects from all corners of King Baseball's domain began converging on the scene of the coronation. Long before noon, hungry lines of humanity had gobbled up the 16,000 bleacher seats made available in the morning.

As the early arrivals made merry—and tummyaches—began the inevitable hustle and bustle of preparation for the crowning.

Frowning radio engineers darted thither and yon—mostly yon—setting up microphones into which they bleated silly 'Woof-woofs" and counted "1-2-3-4, 1-2-3-4," in the age-old manner of radio engineers testing equipment.

As humanity continued to mass on the focal point of the sports domain, the band of Meyer Goldman burst into regal airs to please the public fancy.

The Nats, one troop of the Royal Guards to His Majesty this day, came dashing onto the jousting field to warm up the mighty arms with which they will battle for their ruler until King Baseball MCMXXXVII dies a natural death or is abdicated by Representative Raymond J. Cannon. The populace became hysterically exultant.

Their fitness demonstrated, the white-uniformed brigade of the guard retired to it's quarters and the Athletics paraded onto the field for their period of warming up.

Connie Mack, venerable chieftain of the Athletic jousting squad, and Bucky Harris, young and dashing leader of the Nats, strode arm in arm across the field and the cheers grew deafening.

Before the flag-draped throne from which Premier Roosevelt was a few minutes later to bestow the royal scepter, in the form of a baseball, Chieftain Mack and Chieftain Harris, still arm in arm, were halted before a battery of photographers. Like a firing squad armed with noiseless instruments of destruction, the photographers riddled the two leaders with pictures.

Connie and Bucky then were turned around and riddled from another direction by nother cordon of picture snappers. They retired undamaged, thus proving to the people their courage and invincibility.

Hirohito Saito, an ambassador of good-will from Japan, entered his box. He was saluted by the camera squad, which quickly discovered Senator Pat Harrison and District Commissioner George Allen. They became targets.

The Goldman Band forces folded their piccolos and tubas and retired from the field, completely out of wind. With an impressive blare, the United States Army Band came

Notes on the Nats' Opener

The President is protected even more carefully than appears on the surface when he goes to Griffith Stadium. Not only is a living wall of Secret Service men thrown up around the Chief Executive, but his bodyguards are above and below him also.

The runways on the upper stands yesterday were patrolled by Secret Service men and the pick of Maj. Ernest Brown's Metropolitan Police were stationed at each end of the runways to shoo away possible trouble.

Under the President's box another flock of S. S. operators were stationed. And that's not all—occupants of all boxes near his are carefully hand-picked, then kept under constant surveillance as long as the Chief Executive is present.

Baseball players wives are never seated together at affairs such as yesterday's opener. Once upon a time Major Domo Griffith had a special box for the ladies. He found that by the end of the third inning, nobody would be speaking to anybody else. Each wife would blame her husband's shortcomings on some other wife's husband and the tension was terrific.

Now Griff scatters the fond wives all over the stadium and peace and contentment reign supreme.

The procedure of throwing out the first ball was being explained to a society reporteress.

"And then the President throws out the ball and there is a fine scramble among the players to get it," she was told.

"Oh, how interesting!" she thrilled. "And does getting the ball entitle the team to play first?"

("It's all right, Dudley Harmon; we're laughing with you, not at you. Maybe we'll use the wrong spoon at a tea party you're covering some day. Then you can have your fun.)

Reporters, many of whom for years and years have been covering activities on the field and around the President's box, found themselves stymied yesterday. Expecting to breeze onto the holy ground by producing the usual credentials, they learned that only those wearing a special kind of arm band would be allowed near the Chief Executive.

It was all arranged very satisfactorily, however, when Secret Service men started issuing the little red arm bands to those who passed scrutiny and proved they needed them in their work.

No sooner had Buddy Lewis snared the ball tossed out by Franklin D. Roosevelt than little Frankie Baxter, the Nats assistant trainer, hied himself with the ball over to the President to have the pellet autographed.

Of course he got it.

A reunion was held in the press box yesterday. Stanley Rose, C. B. S. engineer, was working with Arch McDonald, who did part of the broadcast of the game. Ted Tusing, who worked with Arch, came into the press box and that marked the first time Ted and Rose had seen each other since 1925.

Rookie Catcher's Double Wins Opener as Freshman Hurlers Check Griffs With 7 Safeties

first to the plate and Philadelphia won the ball game.

Cascarella lapsed also to the extent of walking Newsome immediately after Brucker's blow, but Buddy Lewis, spearing Cissell's line drive with a one-hand catch that elicited the applause of the President, avoided further difficulty.

Mack Shifts Hurlers.

The plain, unvarnished reason for the tremendous turnout, the ball game, eventually began of course. It began with the 32,000 registering amazement as the venerable Connie Mack, in a last-minute surprise, produced as his pitcher the rookie Smith, whose big league career dates back only to September, 1936.

As the Nats took the field amid a wild roar of anticipation by the bleacherites who were far removed from the ceremonies around the Washington dugout, and thus were slightly impatient for the competition to start, the absence of Cecil Travis from the Nats' shortstop position was seen to be a fact.

With no apparent qualms, Manager Bucky Harris had replaced the ailing Travis with that hardy perennial of Washington infields, Ossie Bluege.

Grim-faced, black-haired Joe Cascarella strode to the pitching mound for the Nats calmly surveyed Lou Finney, the A's lead-off man, nodded assent to big Shanty Hogan's first sign, curved a slow ball over the plate for a called strike and things had, indeed, begun.

Cascarella Starts Well.

Out of the pitching hand of Cascarella spun a teasing assortment of slow curves and Finney and Werber were routine outs. But Wally Moses interrupted the calm of the first inning proceedings with a drooping single to left and Cascarella was in trouble which ended happily with Stone's catch of Roy Johnson's line drive for the third out.

There was no score for the Nats, either in that first inning, but there was a thrill for the fans, notwithstanding. Ben Chapman, after coaxing a walk from Rookie Smith and languishing on first while Buddy Lewis popped out, suddenly struck out for second base on his own and with a magnificent slide beneath Catcher Brucker's throw made a clean steal of the base. But there he perished as Joe Kuhel swung futilely at a third strike and Al Simmons was victim of Shortstop Newsome's throwing arm.

Without warning, the A's bounded into a 2-0 lead in the second inning with an uprising against Cascarella inspired by First Baseman Chubby Dean's stinging single over second base. He moved first to second then to third while the Nats were getting Brucker and Newsome out and then he moved home very brusquely on the impetus of a ringing two-bagger into rightfield by Bill Cissell who this year has reappeared in the big leagues after a season with Baltimore.

Myer Makes Error.

That made it 1-0 and a moment later Buddy Myer made it 2-0. As 32,000 gasps left 32,000 throats because Myer with Pitcher Smith's meek grounder bounding tamely toward him permitted the ball to trickle through his legs for an incredible error and Cissell raced home from second base.

Young Smith got a cruel break in the luck when the Nats got a run back in the second inning. He seemingly had Johnny Stone retired on a routine pop foul behind the plate, but Rookie Catcher Earl Brucker, running several directions at once finally lost his bearings completely and the ball, too. It was a reprieve for Stone who promptly showed his gratitude by pounding a solid three-base hit into the leftfield corner where the gendarmes were posted in great numbers.

With Stone in scoring position, the veteran Bluege answered the pleas of the gathering with a push shot into rightfield for a single and the Nats had their first run. The lower end of the batting order couldn't get Bluege past first base.

Mack's athletes replied to that outburst by the Nats with a run of their own in the third inning, a very simple affair. With two out, Bob Johnson simply bashed one of Cascarella's pitches against the coal company sign in right centerfield and galloped all the way to the plate for an inside-the-park homer, before the ball could be relayed back to Hogan at the plate via Stone and Chapman.

With that 3-1 lead of the A's staring them in the face, the Nats found help in their half of the third inning—help from Smith, the rookie pitcher. The young left-hander, who had displayed no shyness of control after walking Chapman to start the game, suddenly lost his control, the A's lead and his own place in the A's line-up.

He walked Chapman again and then was delivered from trouble momentarily when Moses backed up to the rightfield fence to catch Buddy Lewis' bid for an extra-base hit, but there was trouble when Kuhel popped a ball over the infield.

Relief Hurler.

Rookie Catcher Brucker finally stumbled beneath it and was about to make the catch when First Baseman Dean in his own eagerness to take the ball bumped it out of Brucker's mitt. It was a cheap single for Kuhel.

Smith's pitching then deteriorated into something pretty horrible. He walked Simmons to fill the bases and then he walked Stone to force in a run. He got Bluege on a pop in front of the plate, but then fell into his earlier habits by passing Myer with the bases still filled and the usual results.

Frantically Coach Earl Mack waved to the bullpen for a relief pitcher and big right-handed Almon Williams, late of Atlanta, answered the call. Dejectedly young Smith made his way to the dugout to get a paternal and comforting pat on the back from Connie Mack. Williams confined the uprising to two runs when he disposed of Hogan on a pop fly.

Then the ball game settled down into a duel between the slow-ball Cascarella, who occasionally brought the Athletics up sharply with his fast one, and Big Williams, whose arm is built for speed and who used it to the exclusion of all else.

The monotony of the proceedings

Yanks Picked as 'Biggest Boom Since Ruth' Gets Under Way

7 Contests Will Be Seen By 200,000

By Alan Gould.
Associated Press Sports Editor.

New York, April 19.—Earmarked apparently for its biggest boom year since Babe Ruth was the No. 1 man on the firing line, major league baseball tomorrow will complete the flag-waving, band-playing gestures involved in "going over the top" for the 1937 campaign.

The roar of the crowds, in seven big league cities, will echo today's opening salute to the national game in Washington and Boston. Upwards of 200,000 fans, it is estimated, will witness the second half of the getaway festivities.

The big league club owners look forward to as melodious a turnstile tune this year as anything likely to be heard on tomorrow's program of musical accompaniment. Closer pennant races, in the American as well as the National League, with a majority of the clubs conceded championship chances, combine with such special added attractions as the phenomenal pitching prospects of Cleveland's Bob Feller to indicate a continued revival of popular interest and, in consequence, better financial times.

Yanks Face Nats.

The Yankees, even-money choice against the American League field, go to the post against the Washington Nationals considerably handicapped. The champions have not yet come to terms with their right-handed pitching ace, Red Ruffing; their stellar young centerfielder, Joe DiMaggio, may be lost for a month. On top of that, "Iron Man" Lou Gehrig, although scheduled to play his 1,809th consecutive game in his usual spot, has a painfully sore finger.

The Yankees survived some bad "breaks" last year to win the pennant by a margin of 19½ games. Even their most enthusiastic followers, however, feel they will be unlikely to repeat without Ruffing taking a regular turn in the box.

Indians, Tigers Better.

Cleveland and Detroit, generally picked as the teams most likely to challenge the Yankees, appear much stronger than a year ago. Thus any loss of Yankee strength, offensively or defensively, may find last year's gap quickly closed and the league race turned into a real scramble.

With Manager Joe Cronin back at shortstop, the Boston Red Sox have hopes of atoning for their dismal 1936 showing.

The Senators, along with the Chicago White Sox, also aim to confirm their first-division ratings of last year by annoying the pacemakers, if, in fact, they do not set some of the pace themselves.

For reasons not quite backed up by the facts, the Cardinals have remained the 8 to 5 betting choices in the National League as well as the pick of a big majority of baseball writers to oust the Giants from top place. The St. Louis team looked none too impressive in training and reports indicated Dizzy Dean's younger brother, Paul, had not recovered from an ailing salary arm. Men close to the Cardinal club doubt the team has enough pitching or infield class to set the pace.

Reds May Surprise.

In Broadway Jack Doyle's betting book, the Cubs rate as 2 to 1 second choices, with the Giants no better than 5 to 2, but it's difficult to reconcile these odds with the obvious evidence of improvement in the New York Club. The Giants offer a much faster line-up, a spectacular defensive outfit and a pitching staff, headed by the renowned Carl Hubbell, that shapes up as the best in the League.

If the big bat of Centerfielder Hank Leiber delivers more punch, John McCarthy and Lou Chiozza plug the infield gaps left by Terry and Travis Jackson, they will distinctly be "the club to beat."

Chicago's Cubs, despite some pitching worries, figure to be very much in the race. Pittsburgh looks stronger, in every department, and Cincinnati's hustling Reds, impressing all who have seen them this spring, may make it a five-club race most of the way. It's a habit now among National League clubs to give their followers heart failure.

Yanks Spill West Point, 19-4; Henrich Hitless

West Point, N. Y., April 19 (AP).—The New York Yankees walloped the West Point Cadet nine, 19 to 4, this afternoon in their annual spring exhibition game. Jack Larocca, rookie hurler, pitched the distance and held Army to eight hits, while the Cadets used five pitchers.

Bluege Steals Second on Catcher's Wild Throw in Opening Game

Connie Mack Calls Roosevelt 'Wonderful;' Still Thrills on Opening Day After 54 Years

Yesterday 'Finest' Opener, Says Manager of Athletics, 74.

By John R. Vosburgh.

The thin old man in the high stiff collar watched the black touring car bearing the President of the United States roll into Griffith Stadium.

Connie Mack, sitting alone on the bench of the Athletics, glued his eyes on the car. Then he murmured quietly, "a wonderful man."

Connie Mack, a professional ball player when Franklin D. Roosevelt was a little tot in rompers, rubbed his chin reflectively.

"There's something about Opening Day," he said, "something about it that always thrills you. No matter how many years you've been at an Opening Day, it's the same way."

The 74-year-old dean of all baseball managers exhibited all the enthusiasm of a boy going to a circus. A few moments previously he had been sitting in a box back of the A.'s dug-out—sitting on the edge of his seat. When it came time for him to go to the bench, he bade good-bye to Mrs. Mack as if leaving on an important mission. He knew he was to meet the President in a few minutes.

Mr. Mack clambered over a couple of railings to the field and looked at the crowds streaming into the stands.

Finest Day Yet.

"This is certainly a fine day," he said, "the finest opening day I've ever seen. And I've been in this game a long time. Yes, young man," he added after a pause, "this is my fifty-fourth year in baseball and I've never seen as fine an opening day as this."

Those 54 years of baseball, however, seem no half-century to Cornelius McGillicuddy, the Massachusetts boy born during the Civil War.

"It's funny," he said. "It really is. But it doesn't seem like a long time. In fact, it seems only a short time ago when I came here to catch for Washington. And that was in 1884. The Nationals played on North Capitol street then. Time passes fast when you like a game or a business. And I like this game."

Watch My Knee!

Connie Mack took off his topcoat and hung it on a hook in the dugout. Then he placed a player's jacket over it. Some photographers came up and pleaded with him to pose for a picture on the other side of the field. The old man asked to be excused. He had a bad knee, injured by a hard-hit ball.

"Anyway," he said, "with the President here, you wouldn't need a picture of me."

A little boy asked to have a baseball autographed. Connie Mack slowly got out his glasses, put them on and painstakingly inscribed his signature in green ink.

Now and then a player would speak to him, calling him Mr. Mack. Coach Lena Blackburne called him Boss. The black-browed coach yelled at the squad, "There's something wrong with any of you guys if you don't get a thrill out of opening day."

Good Luck, Connie!

Suddenly a stout individual and a companion bore down on the dugout, bursting in with loud salutations. Mr. Mack apparently didn't know them at first, although they called him Connie. They turned out to be a pair of Philadelphia Congressmen. After much well-wishing and back-slapping they made their way back to the stands.

By this time, the teams were lining up for the flag-pole march. The A's manager was unable to make the hike to centerfield because of his knee, so he sat on the bench and laughingly remarked at the rather spotty marching tactics of the Athletics, led by his son, Earl Mack.

Greeted By Fans.

Mr. McGillicuddy remarked that he thought he had a number of more opening days in his system.

"As long as I feel as well as I do now," he said, "I'll be out here at every game."

Clark Griffith, leaving Vice President John N. Garner at home plate after the trek to centerfield, came toward the A's dug-out and beckoned to Connie Mack. The old man walked across the field to meet the President and the stands roared their approval.

When it was all over, Connie Mack strode back to the dug-out and hung his brown felt hat on a hook. He pulled his score card out from under the chest protector he was sitting on. He didn't say a word, just studied the score card intently.

New Orleans Club Sold for $155,000

New Orleans, La., April 19 (AP).—A deal was closed here today for sale of the New Orleans Southern Association baseball team to Gov. Richard W. Leche, Mayor S. Maestri and a group of business men for $155,000. The franchise and grounds went with the deal.

The sale was brought to a sudden negotiations stage by an announcement by Alva Bradley, of Cleveland, that the Indians would not train here next spring because Baehr had shown no interest in continuing the major league farm agreements.

The new management announced that Cleveland spring training would continue.

Dollins Leads Golf.

was broken in the fourth by Bill Cissell's futile single with two out, and in the sixth when Cascarella walked Bob Johnson, pitched a single to Brucker and walked Newsome, but Johnson's ill-starred attempt to steal second deprived the A's of a run and maintained the score at the 3-3 level.

Washington meanwhile, was finding the Williams gentleman very, very tough. For a stretch of four innings, the only hit the Nats made off Williams was Chapman's vicious single to center with one out, but a force play nullified that wallop.

Cascarella, too, was turning in a stretch of scoreless innings marred only by frequent bases on balls, and in the seventh it appeared that the Nats would reward him with a run when Kuhel walked and immediately raced into second base on an attempted steal.

But in this emergency, Al Simmons struck out to the undisguised disgust of the 32,000. Stone drew a walk and then the Nats hopes were lightning struck by an electrifying double play. Williams, after unloosing a pitch to Bluege, suddenly found the ball back in his glove. He held on to the line drive and with a throw to Dean doubled Stone off first base.

Reds Sell Herman To Tigers for Cash

The Cincinnati Reds announced his sale in a strictly cash deal to the Detroit Tigers of the American League. The amount involved was not disclosed.

Herman, who drew $14,000 two years ago, had declined to accept an offer of $5,000 for this season and the Reds' general manager, Warren C. Giles, declined to boost the offer.

John Nance Garner, lieutenant premier entered a box adjacent to the banner-bedecked throne under an imposing hat. With him were Senator McAdoo, Representative Tom Connelly, Senator Kenneth McKellar and Leader of the Senate Joe Robinson.

Behind the Roosevelt box sat Mrs. Clark Griffith and her party, which included Speaker of the House William B. Bankhead. In front of the Garner box a young lady lights a very small and very feminine looking, albeit very dark, cigar.

More hocus-pocus from the photographers and newsreel cameramen, who lined up the Nats, then had them come runnin' out on the field at a given signal. The running was recorded safely for posterity and attention turned toward the box of Premier Roosevelt.

A daring cameraman was sent cajoling and pleading past the cordon of tight-lipped Secret Service operatives, who had very quietly been studying every face and form near where Mr. Roosevelt will go through his part of the ceremony in a few seconds. Once in Mr. Roosevelt's seat, the photographic stooge held his arm aloft as though ready to toss out the first ball. the cameramen adjusted their gadgets and the crowd jeered derisively.

A tremendous swell of noise begins to creep into the stadium from the outer portals. The White House party is nearing and the coronation ceremony is about to be consummated!

A long, sleek pheaton pokes it's nose onto the field and the din grows deafening. Flanked on one side by a medal-bedecked military aide and on the other by an impressive looking naval aide sits Franklyn Delano Roosevelt. With him is his son, James, and his secretary, Marvin McIntyre. Other members of his party slide into the box inconspicuously.

Baseball Fan Roosevelt takes his seat and Owner Griffith, of the Nats; Vice President Garner the military aide—Col. Edwin B. Watson—and the naval aide—Capt. Paul Bastedo—march across the field to a distant flagpole, followed by the Army Band and members of both jousting teams.

At the flagpole the United States Flag is hoisted to the "Stars and Stripes Forever" and cheers and screams from the populace. The cavalcade returns and the players line up before the Roosevelt box.

Franklyn Roosevelt is chatting cheerfully with Jimmy Roosevelt when the son's eyes light on an object that does not belong there. His face becomes serious. The expression is transferred to his father's face. Directly in front of Mr. Roosevelt someone has placed a microphone, or what is made to look like a microphone!

Follows much hustle and bustle, a Secret Service investigation, and it develops the "mike" was placed there by newsreel cameramen. It is removed in a hurry and the ceremony continues.

Connie Mack and Bucky Harris are on one side of Mr. Roosevelt. On the other side of the chief official is Clark Griffith. Mr. Roosevelt is handed the scepter and Griffith draws back to give him room to wind up for the pitch of the first ball.

The Roosevelt pitching arm is held aloft until one and all have finished photographing the epic event, then the ball is sent plopping into the maddest scramble ever you did see over who shall obtain possession of the prized pellet.

Young Buddy Lewis, the Nats' third baseman, comes up with the prize, an ear-to-ear grin and several scratches.

Sande Horses Run Well in Derby Drill

Louisville, Ky., April 19 (AP).—Sceneshifter, one of the two colts Earl Sande is training for the Kentucky Derby, ran the mile at Churchill Downs today in 1:43 and earned the plaudits of backstretch observers for what they termed the best workout in the spring season.

The Maxwell Howard colt did the time handily, and it was that fact rather than the time that impressed railbirds.

The other Howard candidate, Fencing, kept up for three-fourths of the distance, but was driving hard to the finish one length behind at 1:43 1-5. Sande announced today that Jockey Jimmy Stout would ride Sceneshifter in the derby May 8.

Open Golf Trial Play Is Listed On 33 Courses

Chevy Chase Club to G Local Trials; Five New Districts Added.

The United States Golf Association yesterday announced five ne districts for sectional qualifyin rounds for the National Ope bringing the total to 33. Local a pirants will qualify June 1 ov the Chevy Chase course instead of at Baltimore. Entries close at 6 p. m. on Tuesday May 18.

The open will be played over the Oakland Hills Country Club, Birmingham, Mich., June 10, 11 and 12. New qualifying points are Little Rock, Ark., New Orleans, La., Salt Lake City, Utah, Grand, Rapids Mich., and Huntington, W. Va.

The first 30 and ties of last year's event, 32 in all, and successful entrants in the trials will make up the capacity field of 170 players.

Wiffy Cox, Kenwood pro, will fall under the exemption class, since he finished sixth in the 1936 event.

Virginia entrants will qualify in Richmond over the James River Course. This was a new point last year but justified being retained on the basis of 21 entries.

Men Past 40

Many men at 40, in perfect health, without an ache or pain, wonder why they aren't as strong and as vigorous as they were 5 or 10 years ago. Mental and physical failure is the cause in the majority of cases. Fortunately this condition can be helped by the use of a recently discovered hormone. This hormone stimulates the glandular system to greater activity—helps build up lowered vitality.

This hormone is now available, together with other valuable ingredients in Zo-ak Tablets (Blue Box for men—Orange Box for women) and are sold and recommended by Unity Drug Stores and all chains. Zo-ak is the formula of a well known American physician so you can take it with confidence. It contains no nux vomica (strychnine) or any other harmful drugs. A booklet called "For Men Who Want to Live," will be sent in a plain sealed envelope by Zo-ak Co., 56 W. 45th St. N. Y.

Walter Young, of Canada, Wins Marathon as Kelley Falters

Kelley Runs 2d After He's Hit With Nausea, But Continues to Run.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, April 19.—After dogging Johnny Kelley, of Arlington, the favorite, for 23 miles, Walter Young, 24-year-old Canadian marathoner, made his supreme effort during the former's "haunted mile" and gained a decisive triumph today in the fortieth running of the famous Boston A. A. distance classic.

Young raced over the 26 miles 385 yards of hills and dales that stretch from Hopkinton to the Back Bay district in 2 hours 33 minutes and 20 seconds, a time that was 5 minutes 42 4-5 seconds faster than Kelley's performance, but 2 minutes 18 2-5 seconds slower than the course record.

Every time Kelley has attempted this famous marathon, he has suffered mishaps during the twenty-fourth mile, which he describes as his "haunted mile." He became ill at that point of the race in previous years, but today Young, who had swapped the lead with him 16 times, waited until they reached that stretch of pavement to cut loose with a blistering spurt that broke Kelley's magnificent spirit.

Pawson Is Third.

Leslie Pawson, of Pawtucket, R. I., who set the record in 1933, finished third in 2.41:46. Fred Ward, the New York veteran, followed him over the finish line about a minute later and Dave McCallum, of Toronto, was fifth. The others in the starting field of 169 to place in the first 10 were Hugo Kauppinen, of Brooklyn; Gerard Cote, of St. Hyacinthe, Quebec; Joseph Plouffe, of Worcester; Johnny Semple, of Beverly, and tenth, Leo Giard, of Brockton, who placed fourth, just ahead of Kelley, in last year's race.

Young, now unemployed, hopes that his triumph will result in an appointment to the police force in his home town of Verdun, Quebec, near Montreal. It crowned his fourth marathon attempt, the first of which came in the 1935 marathon when he finished thirty-third behind the then victorious Kelley, and the second time here was last year, when he finished twenty-sixth.

"I knew that Kelley was the only one in the field I had to watch nad that's just what I did from the start until I pulled away from him the last time," Young explained.

Nausea Hits Kelley.

"I ran at his shoulder until we struck the Newton Hills, where he pulled away from me because he took them much too fast. I refused to keep pace with him on the upgrade, because I knew it would kill him off.

"After the twentieth mile I saw he was tiring and after we jockeyed the lead a few more times during the next 4 miles, I knew I had him. I felt fresh all the way and I could have run 15 more miles if I had to."

Kelley, who recently defeated Young in a 20-mile race at Medford, was affected with nausea twice while speeding up the Newton hills. The second time was after he accepted several white pills from his trainer, who trailed him in an official car.

"I felt bad from start to finish," the 1935 victor said. "The weather was much too hot for me and my legs were too heavy. I guess I didn't train hard enough during the last week." He is also unemployed.

There were seven former winners among the starters and the only one to drop out before the finish line was Paul DeBruyn, of New York, the 1932 victor, who pulled a leg muscle at the 18-mile point.

Michell to Get Dope Charge Hearing Soon

Miami, Fla., April 19.—The State racing commission today granted Bert S. Michell, prominent trainer, a hearing on charges of artificially stimulating one of Mrs. Emil Denemark's horses, for which he recently was ruled off the turf.

The hearing will open Thursday at offices of the commission here. Chairman Joseph Stein said it would be private and the commission would issue no statements until it announces its findings. He said the commission merely would hear what evidence Michell might present and that no further testimony would be taken to uphold the charge. Stein expected the hearing to last several days.

Attorney Dan Chappell, former gubernatorial candidate who is representing Michell, returned with the trainer from New York. Mr. and Mrs. Denemark are expected later.

Chappell declined to discuss the result of his investigations in New York last week except to say he found enough evidence to convince him beyond all doubt Michell is innocent."

Virginia Using Brood Trout for Restocking

Stony Run, Near Luray, Is Newly Stocked; Swift Run, South River, Rapidan Filled With Large Brood Fish; Two New Laws.

By Bill Ackerman.

Virginia is now stocking some of its streams with brook trout.

Stony Run, one of the streams on the eastern slope of the Blue Ridge, has been stocked as usual and should supply the good fishing again this year that it has in the past. Go to Luray and turn right.

Here is a break that anglers often hear about but seldom get. The Virginia Fish and Game Commission stocked during the last week Swift Run, South River and the Rapidan, not with the usual hatchery fish of 7 and 8 inches, but with large brood trout, that because of a shortage of room at the hatcheries it was thought they would be better released than summered under crowded conditions.

ACKERMAN

Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania has signed a bill permitting fishing in that State on Sunday. It will benefit local anglers because of the better fishing on Maryland streams, and it can't help affording Pennsylvania fishermen a lot of satisfaction to be able to fish their own streams. In the past, any Sunday during the open season has seen the well-known watershed streams of Frederick County crowded with these anglers, who have traveled many miles to enjoy their sport on the only day that they have free.

2,000 Perch Released.

Two thousand yellow perch have been released in the streams of St. Marys County, Md., by the local association in conjunction with the State Fish and Game Association. Records show that last year in this section there were not enough yellow perch caught commercially to be recorded.

Vermont has a new three-day tourist license that costs the nonresident angler but $1.65. Also one good for 14 days for $2.35. The regular non-resident annual is $5.15. Here is excellent salmon and trout fishing in surroundings beyond comparison. The season opens May 1.

Two New Measures.

The Maryland Legislature, seemingly not content with refusing to pass a very desirable no sale black bass bill, almost at once passes one (House bill No. 430) providing for the bass season in Washington County to open June 15.

Why only Washington County? When it is bound to result in bass shermen for miles around ganging up in this small section for the last two weeks in June, with resulting detriment to streams and fish alike. A probable final result will be the county asking next year for a county nonresident fishing license.

The real harm will come in allowing anglers to take a fine sporting fish at a time when, due to their desire to protect their nests they will strike at anything. Many fish are not through spawning and there is no doubt that the young have not gone on their own.

It is to be hoped that Gov. Harry Nice will veto this bill as asked by the Maryland Fish and Game Protective Association.

Next week at Miami there will start a two weeks' fishing cruise, unique in that it requires ownership of a Prigg boat, those fast able creations of Paul Prigg, that in the past few years have made a real name for the designer.

The trip will cover about 600 miles and go through the heart of a country that is fast becoming known to sportsmen everywhere. Fishing rodeos will be held at Bahia Hunda, Sharks River and Lostmans River, and entry will be made in the tarpon tournaments in progress at Boca Grande and Fort Meyers.

The return route will be through the new canal to Lake Ochechobee and back to the east coast by way of Stuart. It is here that the fresh water fishermen will have their innings.

The nets at Oregon Inletare daily lifting blues and channel bass. Any day now will see them start to taking a trolled lure. The boats are in good shape and expected to try the bass out on Sunday.

Sports in Brief

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 19.—Selection of a training camp for James J. Braddock will be made tomorrow. Joe Gould, manager of the champion, favors the Golfmore Club, near Michigan City, Ind.

The Departmental Tennis League will meet today at 5 p. m. in Room 211, Interior Building, new National Capital Parks Permit Office. Teams interested should attend.

The District A. A. U. yesterday announced a series of trial runs to build up runners in the National A. A. U. marathon here June 12. The annual A. A. U. track and field meet will be held May 31. The D. C. 10-mile run is scheduled on July 4.

Chicago.—The Chicago White Sox, as a last-minute precaution against infield trouble, today obtained Louis Berger from the Cleveland Indians for straight cash. Berger, who is 26, will be employed in a utility role.

Rochester, N. Y.—Monarchs Beer five, of Chicago, popped into second place in the Women's International Bowling Congress here tonight with a total of 2,545, 37 pins short of the leading Camels, of St. Louis.

Pittsburgh.—Duquesne University will play the University of Detroit Titans in a Thanksgiving Day football game this fall.

The Georgetown freshman tennis team swamped Central High, 7 to 0, yesterday on the Hilltop courts. Only two matches took an extra set.

Officials of the Bankers League, which opens the local sandlot season today on the Ellipse, announced yesterday that Marriner Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, will be unable to attend. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency, will throw out the first ball at 3:45 p. m.

Austin, Tex.—Gov. James V. Allred intimated strongly today there would be a special session of the Leigislature unless the current general session acted on a bill to outlaw betting on horse racing.

New York—Andrew Ponzi, former champion, defeated Irving Crose for his second straight win in the round-robin play-off for the world pocket billiard title tonight, and needs only one more victory to regain his crown.

Toronto—The Wembley Lions, English National Hockey League champions, took a long lead in the international round-robin series here when they defeated Winnipeg Monarchs, Canadian junior champions, 4-2, tonight.

St. Louis—Paul Dean was not among Cardinal baseball players who boarded a train tonight for Cincinnati where they open the season tomorrow. Dean is suffering additional trouble with his pitching arm and remained in St. Louis.

Augusta Beats Fishburne.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Staunton, Va., April 19.—Despite six errors and some very poor baseball, Augusta managed to stagger through a 7-to-5 victory over Fishburne here today for the local Cadets' sixth straight win.

Gallagher, McDonald Fight Draw

Young Texan Holds Edge; Judges Split on Decision.

William Martin Gallagher, a 2-to-1 favorite, was held to an official draw by young Sandy McDonald, of Texas, in a give-and-take 10-round feature at Turner's Arena last night.

Most of the disappointingly small crowd of 1,500 thought McDonald had galloped home ahead, but Referee Charley Reynolds and Judge Charley Dunn voted the result a stalemate. Dr. O. U. Singer, the other official decider, balloted for McDonald.

The Post scoresheet showed McDonald 2½ points in front at the finish, but they aren't paying off on newspaper tallies this year.

Gallagher started slowly, but wound up in a burst of glory. That burst almost blasted McDonald from the ring, but in the opinions of most it came too late to earn William Martin even a draw.

Gallagher Outsmarted.

In the third, the 196-pound Texas heavyweight landed the first shot from his big guns. He shook Marty to the heels with a right to the head, then bombarded his midriff with two more shots from the right hand to the Gallagher tummy.

Marty tore from his corner with fire in his eye and knockouts in his fists in the fourth. Sandy promptly doused the fire and removed the knockout threats by almost sending Gallagher to the floor with a terrific right to the chin. McDonald stalked Marty until the end of the round, landing one right-hand pot shot after another, but he could not drop the doughty veteran. One of these pot shots opened a cut over Gallagher's left eye and Marty returned to his corner dripping blood.

McDonald Lands Right.

Throughout the fifth McDonald landed one deliberate right hand after another, but once again he could not quite drop Gallagher. The cut eye was ripped even more wide open and a boxing commission doctor examined the wound at the finish of the session of fisticuffing. Marty was pronounced fit to continue and answered the bell for the seventh to find a tiring opponent before him.

From then until the finish McDonald continued to tire, but not until late in the ninth was Gallagher able to take advantage of Sandy's weakness. Then he almost dropped Sandy with a staggering left hook to the head, but the bell sounded before he could follow up.

Gallagher's moment came in the final round as he landed one left hook after another on the head. McDonald reeled about the ring like a punch-drunk pug on a bender, but Gallagher himself by this time lacked the steam to apply the finisher.

Substitutions Poor.

A series of substitutions wellnigh ruined the supporting card. Vincent Serica, a New York middleweight, failed to show up for a scheduled semifinal against Al Lowman and no substitute was available. Joe Green and Bobby Dechter, a pair of local lightweights, were tossed in the ring in place of the middleweights, with Dechter taking a split decision.

Jimmy DeShong, a Baltimore lightweight who had been scheduled to box Jimmy Clifton, of Washington, also failed to appear. Jerry Beadenkopf was offered as a substitute, but Clifton decided his name was too long, or something, and refused to work against him. There was no substitute bout available for this one.

Simmons Tells SEC of His Stock Deals

Al Simmons, the Nats' new outfielder, told the Securities Commission today he lost $1,100 on a transaction in Atlas Tack Corporation stock in the fall of 1936.

Simmons, recently acquired from the Detroit Tigers, was called as a witness at the commission hearing on charges against W. E. Hutton & Co., of manipulating Atlas Tack stock. Slouching in his chair, this morning, Simmons recited details of his purchase of 200 shares of Atlas Tack in late 1935 and early 1936.

He said he bought the securities upon receiving a letter from Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers.

Commission Counsel Jacob Gruber attempted to show that Cochrane had been advised to buy Atlas Tack by Jerry McCarthy, customer's man in the Hutton Detroit office.

Asked by Gruber why he had received information about Atlas stock from Cochrane, Simmons asserted that "Mickey and I had been teammates for years—whenever he had a tip which might make us a few dollars he passed it on to me, and I did the same."

Simmons testified he bought 100 shares of Atlas Tack at 19¼ and 100 shares at 21⅛. He sold his total holdings, he said, at 18¼.

Boy Hit by Baseball Still Plays, Later Dies

Corning, Ark., April 19 (AP).—George Knotts, 18, was injured fatally yesterday when a baseball struck him on the head while batting in a sandlot game.

Pitcher Howard Pierce, 19, hurled the ball that knocked the youth to the ground. Apparently unhurt, he ran to first base. He did not finish the game, but remained on the field.

Good Hands, Flexible Wrists and Smooth Handling Essential to Good Horsemanship

By Fritz C. Kleemann.
(As Told to Bill McCormick).

(This is the third in a series of riding lessons by an acknowledged master of the subject. Mr. Kleemann, a graduate of the School of Equitation, Bielfeld, Germany, and a student of the University of Muenster, Westphalia, is at present in charge of equitation at the Arlington Hall School for Girls.)

Yesterday we left our pupil properly mounted, but having no more idea of what to do with his hands than a bashful apple knocker in his first tuxedo. That is exactly the predicament in which about 50 per cent of the riders one sees every day find themselves.

Proper use of the hands is so important that practically all the larger shows have "good hands" classes, usually for children. These classes often are sponsored by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to encourage children in the development of consideration for a horse's mouth.

Not only is improper use of the hands cruel, it is ruinous to a desire to become a good rider. One may have a good seat, strong legs and courage, but if he hasn't good hands he has nothing, so far as becoming a good rider is concerned.

Use Snaffle Only.

All but experienced riders should be mounted on horses requiring only the snaffle bit, which is manipulated with a single rain. Beginners also should ride with both hands at all times, never with the reins in one hand.

In riding with the snaffle the thumbs should be kept up at alltimes. The reins are run around the outside of the little finger and between the thumb and first finger. With the reins thus arranged, the hands should be held about three or four inches above the horse's withers and about six inches from the body, not rubbing the stomach, as though assuaging indigestion.

The reins form a telegraph line to the horse's brain through the mouth. At all times keep contact through that line. Neck reining, or allowing the horse to take the lead on loose reins, as is done in polo, is ugly and highly improper in anything but polo. Neck reining places the rider in the position of being a mere passenger instead of the pilot and master of all he surveys.

A Pair of Hands Being Properly Used

These hands are being properly handled by an expert horseman. Note the position of the reins and that the hands are not tightly clenched.

Never jerk or pull on the reins. This gets the signals to the horse all balled up and is not conducive to good temper in a mount. How would you like it if someone placed a hunk of iron in your mouth, then jerked it around with reckless abandon? That's exactly the way the horse feels about it.

Flexible Wrist Essential.

If it is found necessary to shorten the reins, do so by pulling on the loose end with the other hand, never by thumbing the reins tighter. This permits smooth handling and eliminates jerking.

A flexible, movable wrist is essential at all times. Some clench the hands tightly on the reins, but this ruins the flexibility of the wrist. If the thumb is properly placed on the first finger, the hands may be held practically open and the reins won't slide.

The hands may act, resist or follow, but at all times their actions must be co-ordinated with the movement of the body and the weight, which is another "aid" in equitation.

The importance of co-ordinating these three "aids"—legs, weight and hands—cannot be stressed too much, as we shall see.

Now that our pupil knows what to do with his hands, the horse may be set in motion, which is quite a trick in itself. Well-trained horses are not equipped with self-starters, nor is it necessary to build a bonfire under them to get them moving. The proper method is to signal to the horse for action.

This signal is conveyed by slightly, ever so slightly, increasing tension on the reins and applying slight pressure with both legs. Just how slight the leg pressure must be to stir the animal into action depends entirely upon the horse. Some horses are sluggish and require a gentle kick, others will start with the slightest movement. Knowing just how much it takes to stir up a mount comes with closer acquaintance with horses.

Diagonal Aids.

A horse's natural movements are diagonal, from one side to the other, and most simple "aids" or maneuvers to control mounts, are accordingly diagonal. There are lateral and parallel aids which come under the heading of more advanced equitation and will not be dealt with here.

Once the horse is in motion, the subject of turning becomes important. Of course, one could ride all day in a straight line, but where would that get you but farther from home?

The right-hand turn also demonstrates very clearly what is meant by a diagonal aid. To make the turn, increase the tension on the right rein, keep the inside—or right—leg close to the girth and place the outside—or left—leg about three inches behind the girth and close to the horse's body.

Increase the pressure on the outside—or left—leg—or kick slightly, depending upon your mount's temperament. With a few days of actual riding, one will learn to spot differences of temperament almost on sight. A left turn, of course, is executed in exactly the opposite fashion.

Do you get the idea of diagonal control from the turn? In that maneuver it is simply leg control on one side, rein control on the other. So simple, and yet how many riders jerk a rein in the direction in which they wish to turn, without bothering about the legs! That is like shifting gears without throwing out the clutch.

Tomorrow we will deal with the halt and proper position and balance while in motion.

Wilson Plays Central Nine In Series Tilt

Game at Central Today Decides Cellar Confinement.

The cellar-dweller of interhigh baseball will be determined today when Wilson High and Central uncork their hits, runs and errors against one another in Central stadium. The game starts at 3:30 p. m. and the loser will slide into complete possession of sixth and last place.

Both Wilson and Central have succeeded in losing their opening games, which makes them very much due for a victory today. Wilson lost a heart-breaker to Tech in ten innings last week after Kilmer Bortz had kept the Techmen in control for eight innings only to yield six runs in the ninth.

Central's defeat was by a more impressive margin, 10 to 2, to be exact. Western took care of this lesson, performing it on Central's own field. Wipe out the second and third innings of that game, however, and you have a Central victory.

It was in the second that the champions scored four runs and the third which brought the other six. All of them were collected off Bill Noonan. Central's relief pitching was of higher quality. Dick Rozelle and Jonesie Jones allowed four hits and no runs apiece.

Who will pitch for Central is more a mystery than who will pitch for Wilson. Kilmer Bortz will probably be in there for Coach Carl Heintell but Coach Jack Ray, of Central, has Rozelle, Noonan, Jones and a couple of others ready for action.

Texas' Governor Fights Betting Law

Austin, Tex., April 19.—Gov. James V. Allred said today he was "prepared for an all-summer fight, if necessary," to repeal the horse race betting law.

His remarks added weight to previous indications he would call a special legislative session if the Senate fails to vote on repeal at the current session.

Senate advocates so far have been unable to obtain floor consideration of the repeal proposal, which was approved by the House by a large majority.

Barnett and Hollebaugh's 66 Wins Season's 1st Pro-Amateur

Chevy Chase Pro Also Leads Sweepstakes With 69, Bass Shoots Par 71.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Bob Barnett, fiery-thatched Chevy Chase professional, shared top honors with Russ Hollebaugh, Kenwood amateur, in the first Middle Atlantic G. A. pro-amateur of the season, yesterday at Indian Spring.

Barnett won the pro-sweepstakes with a sub-par 69, two strokes ahead of Johnny Bass, Clifton Park pro, and paired with Hollebaugh to shoot a best ball of 66 over the Four Corners layout.

The Chevy Chase pro paired with Ralph Quinter to tie for runner-up honors with a best ball of 67, tying George Diffenbaugh, host pro, and Maury Fitzgerald, Kenwood, and the Clifton Park duo of Bass and Henry Eser.

A five-way tie for third existed between Barnett and Robert Stead, jr., Chevy Chase; Bass and Spencer Overton, of Hillendale; Bass and Meyer, of Clifton Park; Al Tredor and J. A. Pratt, of Manor, and Leo Walper, driving range pro, and Walter McCallum, Washington, all with net 68's.

George Diffenbaugh, host professional, three-putted the last green to finish a stroke behind Bass in the sweepstakes with a 72. Charlie Betschler, Hillendale mentor, shot the first nine in par 35, as did Leo Colliflower, of Catoctin, but the tricky greens on the second nine mounted their scores.

Johnny Bass, young Clifton Park pro, returned to the scene of his top performances since turning pro to save the Baltimore contingent from a whitewash. His performance marks him as the chief dark horse contender in the P. G. A. trials, to be held over the same course a week from Thursday.

Al Houghton, Chamberlin Country Club pro, Old Point Comfort, Va.; Leo Walper and Cliff Spencer, of Beaver Dam, hit the ball well, but the slick and deceptive greens took their toll.

Yesterday's performances of the local pros bears out the statement of the wide-open battle that will exist for the three places among an expected field of 40 for the trip to Pittsburgh.

Bootless Wins 'Graw Feature; Jockey Morris Is Suspended

$251 Paid To Double Wagerers

Rider Set Down for the Rest of Meeting for Rough Tactics.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Havre de Grace, Md., April 19.—The green and white of Col. E. R. Bradley were seen in the winner's circle for the first time this year when Bootless, backed into favoritism won the McHenry Purse, feature of today's program at this turf plant. The gelded son of Black Toney had a margin of two lengths over Mrs. R. H. Heighe's Brown Twing at the conclusion of the mile and a sixteenth contest. Another length back came T. H. Somerville's Treford to account for third money. Her Reigh, Genie Palatine and Black Boo were shunted into the "also ran" column.

Having shown a promising race here last week, the bettors among the 8,000 customers present rustled their bills into the window with such vigor that the mutuel department had to provide extra tickets. When all was said and done, Bootless backers collected at the rate of $5.20 for each $2 investment.

The race was run over a fast track and under a blamy spring sky. Bootless' time was 1:47 2-5.

Morris Suspended.

Jockey Jackie Westrope had the mount on Bootless and he took the gelding away from the starting gate carefully. In fact, Bootless had drifted to last as the field swung into the first turn. Her Reigh and Genie Palatine were battling for the lead just ahead of Treford.

Along the back stretch, Westrope gradually let out his grip and Bootless responded by going to the leaders. Genie Palatin, Her Reigh and then Treford threw up the sponge in order and Bootless went on to the top. However, Brown Twig then gathered momentum and staged a rush down the stretch. Westrope saw this new menace over his shoulder and went to the whip to hold his advantage to the end.

Jockey R. Morris was suspended for the remainder of the meetnig by the stewards for rough riding in the second race. Morris had the mount on Small Change, one that was out of the money.

Under balmy skies and over a fast track, maiden juveniles opened the program and from a group of 11 emerged Stage Beauty, owned by Admiral Cary T. Grayson, to win at a $17.50 mutuel. The daughter of Strolling Player forged to the front at the break and always led, defeating Heraldic by a length and a quarter. The well-fancied Low Cuts was third. Jockey C. Griggs rode one of his few-and-far-between winners and the victorious filly stepped the four and a half furlongs in 0:55 1-5.

Bally Bay, veteran son of Happy Time and seldom a success during recent years, scored a front-running victory in the second race, a sprint of six furlongs. Earl Porter rushed Bally Bay into the lead in the opening eighth and then kept him there to the end, having a margin of a length and a half over Wandrel. Third money was garnered by Trostar. Bally Bay, owned and trained by H. Kerr, was overlooked in the betting and paid a $47.70 mutuel, while running the distance in 1:14 1-5.

Lady Maryland Wins.

Mrs. R. H. Helghe's Lady Maryland, making her first start of the 1937 season, scored a smashing victory in the third race, another six-furlong sprint. She managed to cling to a slight advantage gained at the stretch turn and defeated the favored Care For by a half length, with My Elsie third. This trio ran almost as a team from the start, with Lady Maryland on the rail. The winner paid her backers a $19.90 mutuel and was clocked in 1:14 4-5.

Earning a photo decision by a brilliant rush in the final eighth, Flying Dere, veteran mare running in the colors of Jay McNamara, took the fourth purse of the day after a test of a mile and 70 yards. Icy Wind was the loser in the nose-and-nose finish, with third money going to Felwyn, a neck behind the first-place battle. The winner, posting time of 1:45 4-5, was a $6.80 betting proposition.

Selections at Havre de Grace.

Dear Al:

Perhaps I should forget this. However, I was boasting to Clocker Mike about the versatility of this column and he had such a good comeback that I can hardly pass it up. In the five years that I have been filling space in The Post with this bulky paragraph I have received some "honeys" in the form of requests, etc, I have obtained the Army serial number of a Virginia mountaineer. I have tried to get a widow a winner so she could pay the rent and I've tried to predict for a New Jersey fan the exact date that the cherry blossoms would be out. So I was telling Mike about a Benningite from one of the East's rather prominent mental hospitals who sent me a puzzle that he could not solve and asked me to send him the answer. I worked myself into a frenzy about the puzzle and by checking and double-checking finally came to the conclusion that I had beaten the thing. It was with a feeling of duty well done that I mailed the solution to the man. After I finished talking, Mike asked, "So you received the puzzle, you worked it and sent him back the right answer?" I admitted guilt on all three charges. Mike stuck his hand out and said, "Good-by, Bill, I'm going." I grabbed him by the arm and asked, "Where you going, Mike?" And he came back with "I'm going to the hospital to see who that guy likes in the first race tomorrow. And besides, you're nuts."

BILL.

First Race—Abaddon appears to have a lock and key on this maiden race. Turned in a fine effort behind star horses and needs only the right ride. Any price will be a good one. Abbot's Hour and Muscatine should get into the picture.

Second race—Dark Flyer of the H. R. Bain entry raced greenly, but did fairly well here last week. I expect winning effort tomorrow. The Vanderbilt entry of Irresolute and Bojangles should be close. Shalako, a first-time starter, could surprise.

Third race—Trauwina is recommended by good trials and light weight. Breaks off the rail and may not be headed. Jinx's last was a beaut. Early Broom got no help from rider last out. May upset these.

Fifth race—Scatter Brain easily defeated a somewhat similar field last out and deserves the call here. Pepper Patch was poorly handled last out. Little Argo may go well at the route.

Sixth race—Flagstone, winner of two in a row, will be hard to stop in this. Irish Vote and Eudes to take care of the place and show awards.

Seventh race—Jim John appears to be reaching top form and may take care of this kind of a field. Lady Carrot is being primed for a killing. Sumac, with feather weight and a good last try, is a threat.

Best bet—Flagstone.

Frey Leaves Reds In Release Protest

Cincinnati, April 19 (AP).—Benny Frey, veteran Cincinnati Reds pitcher, was among the missing today.

Instructed to report to Nashville, Frey, who is 31, protested. When the Reds boarded their train Friday at Charleston, W. Va., he was not there.

Jackson, Mich.—Benny Frey, at his sister's home, declined to comment. "I may have something to say in a day or two, after I hear from the Reds," he said.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADY MARYLAND, $19.50, $5.80, $4.00; CARE FOR, $3.00, $2.40; MY ELSIE, $3.70.

LADY MARYLAND, off alertly, was steadied along in close attendance of CARE FOR and MY ELSIE, rallied when placed to a drive while saving ground at the stretch turn and stayed gamely under energetic handling. CARE FOR raced between the winner and MY ELSIE throughout and closed willingly. MY ELSIE was forced to race on the outside all the way and showed a good effort. AERO saved ground throughout. SWEET ELSIE moved up on the swing for the stretch, but hung. GRACEFUL FLIGHT wheeled at the start and was left.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:15. Off at 4:18½. Winner, Jay McNamara's b. m. (7), by Flying Ebony—Muriel Von Der. Trained by Jay McNamara. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:48 4-5, 1:14 4-5, 1:42 1-5, 1:46 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLYING DERE, $6.80, $4.10, $2.70; ICY WIND, $5.70, $4.10; FELWYN, $4.10.

FLYING DERE, rated along while within striking distance of the leaders, came with a belated rush in the final eighth and barely got up. ICY WIND, hard ridden throughout, took command going to the first turn, shook off challenges from KALEIDA and FELWYN and hung gamely in the final drive. FELWYN fought it out willingly. GOLDSPRAY, probably best, was forced wide at the first turn, came between horses to enter contention and tired gradually through the stretch. KALEIDA had good speed for a half. TIANA was shuffled back at the break. SUNDROPS had a flash of early speed.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200. The Fort McHenry. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:51. Off at 4:51½. Winner, E. R. Bradley's b. g. (4), by Black Toney—Mary Eloise. Trained by W. Hurley. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:49, 1:13 4-5, 1:40, 1:47 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOOTLESS, $5.20, $3.30, $2.50; BROWN TWIG, $4.00, $2.70; TREFORD, $2.90.

BOOTLESS, not hurried in the opening quarter, went to the outside for racing room while bettering his position along the backstretch, circled the leaders to take command, but had to be placed to punishment to hold BROWN TWIG safe. The latter gained sharply approaching the stretch and then came with good courage in the final drive to show an excellent effort. TREFORD tired after reaching the top early in the stretch run. HER REIGH was used up setting and forcing the pace with GENIE PALATINE. BLACK BOO trailed throughout.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:21. Off at 5:24. Foreign Sales Advance Wheat 4⅛c a Bushel

Chicago Jump Follows Rise in Liverpool and Buenos Aires.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 19.—Big export buying of Canadian wheat, together with sharply reduced estimates of available supplies in Argentina, swept world wheat values skyward anew today.

Speculative traders, who last week were anxious to throw their wheat holdings overboard at any price, rushed excitedly today to repurchase, and values here soared 4⅛ cents a bushel maximum. The rise of the wheat market in Chicago followed jumps of 7 cents or more both at Buenos Aires and Liverpool, with Rotterdam quotations skyrocketing in excess of 9 cents.

Profit taking on a large scale led to wheat price reactions here at the last, with the close 1 cent to 2⅛ above Saturday's finish; May, 1.33⅜@1.33⅝; July, 1.21⅜@1.21½; September, 1.18⅜@1.18½; corn ¾ to 3 cents up; May, 1.27¼@1.27⅜; July, 1.17½@1.17⅝; September, 1.08⅞; oats 1 cent off to ⅝ advance; May, 43⅝@49½, and rye showing ¾ to 1¾ bulge; May, 1.10½. Provisions results were unchanged to 15 cents higher.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

Foreign currencies were generally a little higher against the dollar in quiet dealings yesterday.

Washington reports Government financial experts were studying ways of checking hold imports were helpful interest to currency traders but the market seemed to be waiting more concrete developments.

The British pound held near its recent peak, trading at $4.92⅝, up ⅛ of a cent. In London the dollar had closed earlier at 4.92 to the pound, off ¼ of a cent, compared with the New York Saturday closing at $4.91⅞.

The French franc was up .00⅜ at 4.47¼ cents and closed in Paris at the equivalent of 4.470 cents compared with 4.469 cents in New York at the week-end.

Belgium and Swiss currencies also were a trifle higher. The Holland guilder was unchanged at 54.76 cents. The Japanese yen moved up .02 of a cent at 28.70 cents.

Bonds and Stocks Show Firm Tone in Slack Trading; Wheat Higher.

New York, April 19.—Firmness in bonds and stocks in mild dealings and strength in some of the recently depressed commodity markets made a good beginning for the week. Stock turnover was nothing to alarm the anti-inflationists, for it was only about 850,000 shares, the smallest since last September. Sterling reached a new high quotation for the year and francs also advanced on the dollar. July wheat rose 1½ cents to close at 121⅜ cents a bushel at Chicago.

Stocks and bonds hardened in price and the tone was firm, but dealings were only moderate. A stand of hopeful waiting was taken, particularly by Government bonds, on the subject of Government finance. Stocks, which last week seemed to be a trifle uneasy over the breaks in commodity markets, but which nevertheless did not join in a general decline, probably were heartened a little by the sharp rally in most commodities today.

Wheat, which had tumbled so heavily, came back briskly and other grains followed. Cotton also worked higher and the minor commodities, as rubber, were buoyant in spots, their improvement being reflected in the prices of stocks for companies directly affected. How much influence is being brought to bear on speculative markets by, first, the reports that warlike spirit in Europe is simmering down, and, second, by the assertion today that Germany, for one, is willing to join in a world economic conference, is difficult to say. Wall Street, as a rule, takes such matters in its stride, but trading from abroad may have improved on even nebulous hopes of removal of trade barriers.

Rails Harden.

Stocks were not given much to group movements, aside from some of the commodities, as textiles and rubbers. In the late trading the rails hardened a little, but for the most part the stocks to attract attention were those which had the benefit of first quarter earnings statements.

American Chain extended its rise for the past week to more than a dozen points with a gain of more than 2 points. The preferred jumped a half dozen points on a few sales to yield less than 3½ per cent. Bendix dipped nearly 2 points to a new low price, but other airplanes were firm. Acme Steel continued to reflect its sharp increase in earnings with a rise of over 3 points. International Printing Ink, selling ex dividend, opened up 3 points.

Improvement in the rails followed immediately the news received in the last hour that the Interstate Commerce Commission had granted rate increases on a number of commodities, which it was hoped would restore some of the revenue lost when the freight surcharges expired a few months ago.

Economy Prospect.

The financial district awaited the President's special message on the relief budget and engaged in speculation over some of the possibilities. The theme clearly was that, regardless of figures that might be presented, no uncompromising stand on economy likely would be taken by the Administration. So long as more is spent than is taken in, or so longs as efforts are directed only toward securing more revenue without reduction of the outlay of borrowed money and of taxpayers' contributions, the day of an inflationary reckoning will be hastened.

It now appears that the deficit for the fiscal year to end June 30 will tital at least $3,000,000,000—or approximately the average for the mid-depression deficits. It is furthermore safe to predict in advance of the President's budget figures that no balance of the budget, even on paper, will be proposed for the 1938 fiscal year. Postponing of the balance, year by year, is not only becoming somewhat monotonous, but the point has now been reached when such dangerous Government finance has little justification from an economic standpoint.

Midamerica.

Negotiations for the purchase of control of Midamerica appear to be held up pending a decision on the legality of the George and Frances Ball Charitable Foundation's title to the stock. Figuring the more than 2,000,000 shares of Alleghany Corporation stock at $4 (which is under today's market price) and throwing in the nominal $1 value of Midamerica's other holdings, more than $8,000,000 would be involved in the purchase of the Midamerica holdings of the foundation. It would take a pretty good gambler to risk that amount of money on a deal where the stock title is not legally clear, and where, if the right of option is upheld and some of the former Van Sweringen interests exercise option rights, the interested syndicate might find themselves saddled with partners who entertain drastically different opinions as to the operation of the vast Midamerica holdings.

Steel Production Passes 1929 Peak

New York, April 19 (AP).—A new production record for the steel industry in this country was announced today by the American Iron and Steel Institute. It reported operations for this week advanced to 91.3 per cent of capacity from 90.9 per cent the previous week, equivalent to a tonnage output of 1,196,000 tons for the week. This topped the May, 1929, peak of 1,193,284, the institute said.

Bank Auditors Assemble Here For Convention

Annual Meeting of 5th Eastern Area to Start on Friday.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Ralph Endicott, assistant treasurer, Washington Loan & Trust Co., will be a speaker at the fifth Eastern regional convention of the National Association of Bank Auditors and Comptrollers opening Friday at the Wardman Park Hotel. Mr. Endicott wil lalk on "Educational Developments in Bank Accounting and Auditing" at the opening session of the conference.

Delegates to the meeting will be wlecomed by H. H. McKee, chairman, District of Columbia Clearing House Association, and William E. Westman, assistant cashier, Webster & Atlas National Bank, of Boston, will respond. Other addresses for the first session will be "The Banker's Problem," by Robert O. Bonnell, president, Morris Plan Bank of Baltimore, and "The Bank Commissioner's Problems," by John D. Hospelhorn, deputy bank commissioner of Maryland. At a luncheon, T. R. McKeldin, of the law firm of Moylan, McKeldin & Smith, Baltimore, will be the guest speaker.

At the afternoon session addresses will be made on the following subjects: "Comparative Costs and Operating Efficiency," John Driscoll, Driscoll, Millet & Co., Philadelphia; "Branch Bank Accounting and Control," James E. Potts, auditor, First National Bank, Boston; "Correlating Trust Audits with Examinations," John A. Reid, trust examiner, Federal Reserve Bank of Boston. An exhibitor's hour will follow. On Friday evening there will be two groups of informal round-table discussions. One of these, of interest to large institutions, will be led by Arthur K. Schulz, assistant comptroller, Chase National Bank of New York. Of interest to smaller banks will be a second series led by W. T. Vandoren, vice president and cashier, Liberty National Bank of Washington.

Addresses for Saturday morning are: "The Relationship Between the Directors, the President and the Auditor," by Chester W. Hoyt, comptroller, State Bank of Albany, and "Bank Frauds and Defalcations," by L. R. Pennington, special agent accountant, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Department of Justice. In the afternoon delegates will be conducted through the Federal Bureau of Investigation. There will be an informal dinner and entertainment in the evening, with Strickland Gillilan as toastmaster. Edward Stone, economist, chief, community organization and maintenance section, management division, of the Resettlement Administration, will be the guest speaker.

Life Insurance Club.

At the recent annual election of the Life Insurance Club of Washington Graham E. Wilson was named president of the club. Mr. Wilson is identified with the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co., where he has been acting as Army and Navy representative of the Washington agency during the last 10 years. He has been a member of the club for the past seven years and is also a member of the Life Underwriters Association of Washington.

W. Ford Harvey, of the Crowley-Marr Penn Mutual Agency, was elected to the office of vice president. He has been with the Penn Mutual in Washington for the past six years, and is a member of the underwriters' association.

Francis M. Brotherhood was elected secretary-treasurer for the coming year. John E. O'Brien was named a director. Both of these members have been connected with the Connecticut Mutual agency in Washington for the past five years. They are active in the work of the local life underwriters.

The Life Insurance Club of Washington has completed 11 years of work, during which period constant efforts have been made to help life underwriters of this city and promote greater efficiency among them. The club is composed of members from practically all of the insurance agencies in the city and is distinctly an agents' organization.

Cost Accountants.

G. Howard Knapp, of Newark, N. J., will deliver the principal address at the April meeting of Washington Chapter, National Association of Cost Accountants, tomorrow evening at the Hamilton Hotel. There will be a dinner at 6:30 o'clock and the speaking will start at 8.

Mr. Knapp, who is vice president and controller of Waitt & Bond, the Congress Cigar Co. and the Puerto Rican American Tobacco Co., is also national director in charge of chapters in the National Association of Cost Accountants. His subject will be "Distribution Costs." His treatment of this problem will be very practical, and he will discuss what is actually being done by a business organization concerning a specific product.

Proper determination of the cost of distribution is a factor which gives promise of much discussion in connection with the Robinson-Patman act. That law presumes that if differentials in prices are made they must be based on actual differences in cost. A manufacturer or a distributor who wishes to give a preferential price to a part of his trade, must be able to support the reduction of price by evidence that cost is really less because of the size of order or method of delivery.

C. Milton Clark, president of the local chapter, invites wholesalers and jobbers and their accountants to attend the meeting and take part in the discussion.

Bank Women's Club.

At the recent annual meeting of the Bank Women's Club of Washington the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Miss S. Winifred Burwell, National Metropolitan Bank; vice president, Miss Mildred Woodcock, American Security & Trust Co.; corresponding secretary, Miss Florence Gardner, National Metropolitan Bank; recording secretary, Miss Mildred O'Donnoghue, Riggs, National Bank; treasurer, Miss Helen Healy, National Savings & Trust Co.; historian, Mrs. Grace Bromley Bailey. In addition to the above officers, the board of governors includes Miss Mary Craven, Hamilton National Bank; Miss Florence Kelley, McLachlen Banking Corporation; Mrs. Myrtle P. Lewis, Liberty National Bank; Mrs. Vera Rhine, Morris Plan Bank; Mrs. J. M. Buck,

Jobless Total Drops 17.3% From Year Ago

43,881,000 Employed in February, 7.2% Under 1929 Average.

New York, April 1 .—The total number of unemployed workers in February, 1937, was 8,914,000, according to estimates of the National Industrial Conference Board, made public today. This is a decrease of 203,000, or 2.2 per cent, from the revised estimate for January, 1937, and a decrease of 1,865,000, or 17.3 per cent, from February, 1936.

Employment in all types of enterprise in the United States in February, 1937, was 43,881,000 workers. This was an increase of 252,000 workers, or 0.6 per cent, over January, 1937, and an increase of 2,457,000, or 5.9 per cent, over February, 1936. The number of workers employed in February, 1937, was 3,395,000, or 7.2 per cent, below the average of 47,276,000 workers employed in 1929.

From January, 1937, to February, 1937, the increases in employment, by industrial groups, were: Manufacturing 233,000; service, 49,000; transportation, 29,000; construction, 20,000; trade, distribution and finance, 17,000; mining, 6,000, and public utilities, 1,000. The only decrease, amounting to 113,000, was found in agriculture.

Compared with February, 1936, employment in February, 1937, increased 13.4 per cent in manufacturing; 7.7 per cent in trade, distribution and finance; 7.5 per cent in transportation; 5.7 per cent in the public utilities; 5.4 per cent in mining; 5.2 per cent in the service industries; 1.7 per cent in forestry and fishing, and 0.9 per cent in agriculture. The only decrease, amounting to 13.2 per cent, was found in construction.

S. Bleichroder Forms N. Y. Firm

New York, April 19 (AP).—The coming to this country of a historic German banking name was disclosed today with the announcement of the formation of the new firm of S. Bleichroder, Inc. It will act as New York correspondent of the Berlin House of the same name, founded in 1818, which attained a world-wide reputation as early as 1821 when it first acted as correspondent and collaborator of the various Rothschild Houses.

The connection has continued to exist for more than a century. The New York firm will also act as correspondent of another noted German banking house, Gebr. Arnold, Berlin, which along with S. Bleichroder, Berlin, has done for years substantial business with this country.

Paul J. Vorr Schwabach, a partner of Bleichroder, Berlin, will be a member of the board of the new corporation.. W. L. Schoenheimer has been named president and August Ulrich, vice president.

Installment Buying Rises To Record High

New York, April 19.—One factor making for inflation since 1932 has been an increase in the amount of funds borrowed to finance purchases on the installment plan, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute today.

While complete figures on installment buying are not available, retail automobile financing throws considerable light on the situation. Such financing in 1936 amounted to $1,716,000,000 as compared with $1,616,000,000 in the predepression year 1929, an increase of 6.2 per cent. The year 1937 started off with automobile financing running at an annual rate of $1,977,000,000, or 22.3 per cent more than in 1929.

Since the national income in 1936 was 24.5 per cent lower than in 1929, there is considerable evidence that the debt incurred through installment purchases is approaching an amount which cannot be greatly expanded. The curtailment of installment buying in 1930, 1931 and 1932 was accompanied by a deflation of the national income notwithstanding the inflationary influence of Government borrowing.

Curb Narrow In Light Trading

New York, April. 19 (AP).—Price changes were for the most part mixed and narrow today in the quietest curb market trading since last August 26. Losses, most of them fractional, outnumbered gains. A few shares, however, swung widely. Aluminum Co. of America lost 4 points at 154, Newmont dropped 2½ at 116½ and United Light & Power preferred "A" yielded 1⅜ at 50⅛.

On the upside were Lake Shore Mines at 51, up 1¼; New York Steam 3, up 2½, and Franklyn Rayon, up ⅞ at 12⅞. Other fractional gains included Sunshine Mining, Teck-Hughes Gold, Pennroad, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Gulf Oil and Creole Petroleum. Transactions totaled 209,000 shares, compared with 290,000 last Friday.

By virtue of a decree of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia in Equity Cause No. 63618, the undersigned trustees will sell at public auction, subject to ratification by the court, at the front door of the Court House of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia on

MONDAY, MAY 24, 1937,
AT THREE O'CLOCK P. M.

Lot number thirteen (13) in Edson Bradley's Combination of part of Square numbered one hundred and thirty-eight (138) as per plat recorded in the Office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber 43 at folio 65, together with any and all buildings thereon and all other property so attached thereto as to constitute part of the realty, all in the District of Columbia. Said property is to be sold subject to the following liens and possible inchoate right of dower, namely:

(A) An existing deed of trust dated December 31, 1930, appearing for record in Liber 6520 at folio 487 of the Land Records of the District of Columbia in the office of the Recorder of Deeds, securing a certain promissory note of Joseph J. Moebs in the sum of $1,350,000.00 with interest at the rate of 5½% per annum. (The Trustees are advised that maturity of this deed of trust has been extended to December 31, 1938, and is of a present unpaid balance of $1,274,100.00, bearing interest at the rate of 5½% per annum, payable monthly, and that principal payments of $4,200.00 a month, payable monthly, are required.)

(B) An existing deed of trust bearing date of January 7, 1931, appearing for record in Liber 6520 at folio 465 of the Land Records of the District of Columbia in the office of the Recorder of Deeds to secure the payment of certain notes dated April 11, 1932, made by Joseph J. Moebs in the aggregate principal amount of $400,000.00 payable on or before five (5) years after said date, with interest at the rate of 5½% per annum. (Said deed of trust contains a provision that the release thereof may be obtained upon the payment of $50,000.00, with respect to which prospective bidders are referred to the recorded instrument. The Trustees are advised that the deed of trust has matured and interest thereon at 4% per annum is overdue from October 11, 1936).

(C) Such inchoate right of dower as Bertha J. Moebs, the former wife of Joseph J. Moebs, had and may still retain in said property.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third of the purchase price to be paid in cash and the balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years from date of sale and to be represented by the promissory notes of the purchaser, bearing interest at the rate of 6% per annum, payable semiannually, and secured by deed of trust on the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. The property is to be sold subject to the above encumbrances, interest thereon, said inchoate right of dower and taxes unpaid or accrued. A $5,000.00 deposit shall be required of the purchaser at the time of said sale.

MONDAY, MAY 24, 1937,
AT THREE O'CLOCK P. M.

Lot numbered forty-seven (47) in Moebs Combination of Lots in Square 217 as per plat recorded in the Surveyor's Office in the District of Columbia in Liber 55 at folio 1000, together with any and all buildings thereon and all other property so attached thereto as to constitute part of the realty, all in the District of Columbia. Said property is to be sold subject to the following liens and possible inchoate right of dower:

(A) An existing deed of trust dated December 31, 1930, appearing for record in Liber 6536 at folio 483 of the Land Records of the District of Columbia in the office of the Recorder of Deeds, securing the payment of 120 certain promissory notes of Joseph J. Moebs in the aggregate amount of $900,000.00, all payable on or before five years after date, with interest at the rate of 5½% per annum. (The Trustees are advised that said deed of trust is now overdue and in default, the unpaid balance being $400,000.00 with interest at 4% per annum from October 11, 1936.

(B) A certain lease dated December 9, 1933, made by Joseph J. Moebs to the Arlington Hotel Company, Inc., lessee, covering the property above described for a period of ten (10) years ending December 31, 1943, further particulars of which, and the assignment thereof by the lessor, to be given at the time of sale.

(C) Such inchoate right of dower as Bertha J. Moebs, the former wife of Joseph J. Moebs, had and may still retain in said property.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third of the purchase price to be paid in cash and the balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years from date of sale and to be represented by the promissory notes of the purchaser, bearing interest at the rate of 6% per annum, payable semiannually, and secured by deed of trust on the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. The property is to be sold subject to the above encumbrances, interest thereon, said inchoate right of dower and taxes unpaid or accrued. A $5,000.00 deposit shall be required of the purchaser at the time of said sale.

TERMS APPLICABLE TO BOTH SALES—All conveyancing, notary fees, recording, revenue stamps and examination of title to be at the cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within thirty (30) days from the approval and ratification thereof by the Court, otherwise the Trustees reserve the right to resell at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser after five (5) days' notice by advertisement of the resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust duly recorded in Liber No. 5834, Folio 583 et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will sell at public auction, in front of the premises, on FRIDAY, THE THIRTIETH DAY OF APRIL, A. D. 1937, AT THREE-FIFTEEN O'CLOCK P. M., the following described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being Lot 86 in Square 2941 in the subdivision made by Shapiro-Katz Realty Co., as per plat recorded in the office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber 84 at Folio 91. Subject to the right of redemption by the maker of the aforesaid deed of trust, her heirs and assigns, within a period of sixty days from date of sale, not excluding Sundays and holidays, as provided in said deed of trust.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase money to be paid in cash, balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years, with interest at 5½% per annum, payable semi-annually from day of sale, secured by first deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. A deposit of $300 will be required at time of sale. All conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within ten days from expiration of redemption period, otherwise the trustees reserve the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust duly recorded, in Liber No. 6840, folio 517 et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will offer for sale by public auction, in front of the premises, on FRIDAY, THE THIRTIETH DAY OF APRIL, A. D. 1937, at TWO-THIRTY O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being lot 99 in square 3313 in Luther A. Swartzell's subdivision of square 109, "Petworth Addition to the City of Washington," as per plat recorded in Liber County No. 23, folio 129, of the records of the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia. Subject to the right of redemption by the maker of the aforesaid deed of trust, her heirs and assigns, within a period of sixty days from date of sale not excluding Sundays and holidays, as provided in said deed of trust.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase money to be paid in cash, balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years, with interest at five per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, from day of sale, secured by first deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. A deposit of $500.00 required of purchaser at sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within ten days from expiration of redemption period, otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell the property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustees may avail themselves of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

Radio Receiver To Print News, Lohr Predicts

Pictures of Events Will Be Flashed Into Homes, Trade Board Told.

A day when your radio receiver will print your newspaper in your home, bring you actual pictures of events and reproduce sounds with absolute fidelity was predicted last night by Lenox Lohr, president of the National Broadcasting Co.

Speaking before the Washington Board of Trade at the Hotel Mayflower, Lohr declared that all three developments—facsimile broadcasting, television and ultra-high-frequency sound broadcasting—are workable and are definitely out of the laboratory stage.

He forecast, however, that it would be "at least a year" before any of them could come into general use.

Constant Changes.

The NBC head scouted the reasons popularly given for television's failure to come into the Nation's daily life. The real reason that television sets aren't on the market, he said, is that changes and improvements are being made constantly and that sets would be made not only obsolete, but "inoperative" a short time after their purchase.

He explained that in television, unlike sound broadcasting, transmitter and receiver "fit together like lock and key." Thus any change in transmitting methods or equipment would necessitate a corresponding change in all receivers.

Before out of town newspaper correspondents and local newspaper officials gathered to attend the Trade Board's annual "press night," Lohr was careful to point out that the newly developed "facsimile broadcasting," while capable of producing a complete illustrated newspaper in the home, would in no way compete with the newspaper industry.

Static Eliminated.

At present, he said, the facsimile broadcasting doesn't do such a good printing job as do newspaper presses and is, also, tremendously expensive. He added that even if these two handicaps should be overcome, the newspaper would still have to gather and assemble the news.

Lohr declared that ultra-high-frequency sound broadcasting isn't in general use today because there are few receivers capable of picking up such broadcasts. He praised the development, saying that ultra-high-frequency receivers had perfect fidelity and were entirely free from natural static.

The speaker said that his company is now conducting nightly television broadcasts, but that all receiving sets were in the hands of company engineers. He emphasized the danger of "freezing the art" by allowing thousands of sets to be sold to the public and thus blocking scientists from making further improvements.

Other obstacles in the path of television, Lohr said, are the great expense—which presumably will have to be borne by advertisers—and the difficulty of "networking" programs. Television waves, unlike radio sound waves, cannot be relayed over telephone wires but require either special cables or short wave transmission relays. Experiments are being made with both possibilities, the N. B. C. president said.

800 Gain in Membership.

Other speakers were Lloyd B. Wilson, chairman of the Greater National Capital Committee, and Willis Robertson, Representative from Virginia. Edgar Morris, retiring president of the Board of Trade, presented his annual report and said that the Board's membership had increased by 800 in the past year.

New directors of the organization, elected before the meeting, are Dr. Arthur C. Christie, Fred A. Smith, W. W. Everett, George W. Offutt, Ralph L. Pollio, J. Harry Cunningham, Odell S. Smith, Theodore W. Noyes, Granville Gude and Edgar Morris.

At a meeting of the directors yesterday afternoon the board went on record as opposed to asking an additional $1,000,000 for relief in the District, saying that since employment has increased appreciably here in the last year there should not now be greater need for relief than there was at the bottom of the depression.

Rites Held for Boy Kept Alive a Year By Medical Skill

Funeral services for 2-year-old Bobby Fowler, whom medical science kept alive for a year after he scorched his throat with lye, were held last night at 3034 M street northwest. Burial is to be in Hillsboro, Va.

The child, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tyrus S. Fowler, of 319 B street southeast, died in Providence Hospial Sunday morning a few hours after doctors had performed a final operation intended to restore him to normal health.

Increase Sought In Visiting Nurses

Complete plans for an effort authorized by the Community Chest to obtain more visiting nurses to meet the District's demands were formulated by a special meeting of the Instructive Nurses' Visiting Society, in session yesterday.

"I feel there are many men and women in Washington who would help up if they understood more about the work which our nurses do to prevent illness and to help the sick," asserted Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, president of the group, last night.

Mrs. Emory Scott Land, chairman of the nursing committee, said frequently persons who are given nursing care in the home under the family physician avoid the expense and care of hospitalization later on.

Two D. C. Doctors Elected Fellows

Ninety-two physicians of the United States and Canada were elected to fellowships in the American College of Physicians, and 119 were named for associate memberships.

The session was held in St. Louis. Associates are admitted to membership after being proposed by a fellow or master of the college, and elevation to fellowship is made by the board after an associate has been qualified and has submitted proof of his active medical work.

Among those named to fellowships were Dr. Ridgely Waters Baer, of Frederick, Md.; Harry Saul Bernton and Charles Lewis Ecker, both of Washington; Charles Pehl Archambeault, of the Navy, and Horace Page Marvin, of the Army.

Georgetown U. Band In Musical Festival

Georgetown University's second annual musical festival featuring the 45-piece university band, will be held at 8 o'clock tonight in Gaston Hall.

Marlin S. Reichley, director, has arranged a varied program, including old melodies from Victor Herbert's and Sullivan's operas. There will be several guest artists, including Robert Sheehan, barytone. The program is open to the public.

50,000 Chinese Die Of Famine; Plague Claims 1,000 Lives

Shanghai (Tuesday), April 20 (U.P.). Famine, fire, and disease today ravaged China, claiming thousands of lives.

More than 50,000 were dead in famine-stricken counties in Szechuan, Honan and Kweichow provinces and official reports indicated that the death toll will be far larger if the drought continues.

In addition the national health administration in Nanking announced that more than 1,000 persons were dead of bubonic plague sweeping the east coast of Fukien Province. Dispatches from Kweiyang, capital of Kweichow Province, said 3,000 children had died of diphtheria and typhoid fever attributed to drought conditions.

Nine Societies Seek Court Plan Parley

New York, April 19 (AP).—Representatives of nine patriotic societies tonight sent a telegram to President Roosevelt asking an audience with him, to acquaint him directly, one of them said, with their opposition to any reorganization of the Supreme Court.

Others included Louis Durant Edwards, chairman of the committee of 100,000 for the preservation of America; Theodore Roosevelt Pell, secretary of the St. Nicholas Society; Harold G. Murray, secretary of the General Society of Mayflower Descendants; H. D. Griffith, executive vice president of the New York Board of Trade; Elihu Church, governor of the Society of Colonial Wars of the State of New York; John L. Ketcham, of the General Society of the War of 1812; C. M. Penfield, secretary of the American Defense Society, Inc., and Roger Conant, of the Founders and Patriots of America.

Merchant Freed Of Attack Charge

A statutory charge against John Henry Burns, 35, of the 1800 block of Adams Mill road, was nolle prossed by State's Attorney James H. Pugh, of Montgomery County, in Rockville last night.

Burns, who operates a fruit store on Eighteenth street, was charged with attacking criminally a 26-year-old Washington girl, after inviting her for an automobile ride.

He went on trial last autumn, but the jury was hopelessly deadlocked. Burns was freed on $15,000 bond, and the case was prepared for the grand jury again. Lack of sufficient evidence was said to to have been the cause for the nolle prosse.

Red Convictions Here Dismissed

In a ruling handed down yesterday, Justice Harold M. Stephens, in the U. S. Court of Appeals, dismissed a conviction of distributing handbills of a communistic tendency against John Thomas and Margaret Adams.

The pair were arrested handing out circulars in June of last year and charged with violating the police ordinance forbidding the distribution of circulars or cards. The arrest occurred on Georgia avenue.

Ruth Robinson To Pitch First Ball at Game

New Tribute Set for Fair Fans on Ladies' Day This Friday.

Members of the Business and Professional Women's Club and many other baseball fans among the clubwomen will have a special interest in the ladies' day game, Friday, April 23, when the Washington Nationals will play the Philadelphia Athletics. Ruth Robinson, president of the National Business and Professional Women's Club of the District of Columbia, will pitch the first ball.

For many years Miss Robinson has entertained an ambition to pitch a baseball at some ball game bigger than those played by neighborhood boys in vacant lots.

Clark Griffith, having long recognized the very great interest and loyalty Washington women have for their ball team, saw that the ladies' day game, too, should have an official opening ball pitched out by one of their own sex, and so it was decided when plans were being made that in addition to the official opening of the season, at which the President of the United States pitches the first ball, there also would be an official opening of the season for ladies' days. And so to Miss Ruth Robinson Griffith extended that privilege.

The presidents of other local clubs have been invited, photographers will be there, and Arch McDonald will broadcast the game.

Miss Letitia Walker and Miss Peggy Walker have loaned their apartment at 2440 Sixteenth street this evening for a small card party for the benefit of St. Mary's Church, Lonaconing, Md., of which the Rev. James C. Murphy, formerly attached to St. Peter's, Washington, is pastor. There will be a prize for each table and punch will be served.

Chapter J. P. E. O., met at the home of Mrs. R. A. Parsons, 314 North Barton, Lyon Park, Va. Mrs. Maxwell was guest of the evening. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. William G. Finn, 821 Quackenbos street northwest. The Misses Myrtle and Edith Norbeck have charge of the program on "Historical Homes in Washington."

The League of American Pen Women will meet Thursday. The fiction group will meet at the studio in the Grafton Hotel at 8 p. m. Thursday, under the direction of the chairman, Helen Orr Watson. Members are asked to study pupil magazines and to bring some particular type for discussion; also any of their own stories.

On Saturday the District of Columbia Branch will broadcast over WJSV at 10 a. m. on the Civic Forum program.

The monthly business meeting will be held Monday, April 26, at 8 p. m., at the studio. The new president, Marguerite Merigold, will preside.

The Alpha Chapter of the World Caravan Guild will hold its next meeting at the Raleigh Hotel tonight at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Charles Moser, of the Department of Commerce, will speak on Japan. Prof. A. Curtis Wilgus, of George Washington University, will preside as director.

LoyalistsRetaining Faith, Clerics Find

There is "a strong anticlerical movement but no anti-God movement in Spain," according to the report of a group of leading British churchmen who visited the war-torn country in February. The report has just been made public by the Washington office of the American Friends of Spanish Democracy.

The group, which included A. S. Duncan Jones, dean of Chichester; Francis Underhill, dean of Rochester; Henry Carter, Percy W. Bartlett, Philip Usher and Henry Brinton, limited its inquiry to territory under Loyalist rule, no invitation having been extended them by Gen. Franco to visit the parts of Spain now under his control.

"We found no evidence," the report sets forth, "of an organized God-less propaganda, such as has existed in Soviet Russia. We are unable on inquiry to hear of any caricatures of God, of Christ or of the Virgin and saints, such as have been features of anti-God propaganda in other countries. On the other hand, members of our party found copies of the Scriptures offered freely for sale on street bookstalls."

Strikers Reject Oshawa Truce In G. M. Tie-up

refused to let "the tail wag the dog."

"What one cent have you received?" he asked. "What if the plant here doesn't reopen until next September?"

Again he was stopped by boos.

"All right," he shouted. "But these are the things you are thinking down deep in your hearts and haven't the guts to say so. Take damned seriously what I'm saying."

Tonight's action left all peace maneuvers absolutely at a standstill. Hepburn's two endeavors to get together representatives of the company and the strikers failed when the premier refused to allow "foreign agitators" to have anything to do with the negotiations.

In Washington, officials of the Lewis-affiliated United Automobile Workers deliberated a proposal to call a strike in General Motors' United States plants to force settlement of the Oshawa walk-out.

They reached no decision and deliberations will continue tomorrow.

Martin declined to make a statement on the proposed sympathy strike, but indicated the matter had not been disposed of definitely.

There were indications, however, that the proposal was not being looked on favorably by a majority of the board of 12 members. Three vice presidents and the secretary of the union were meeting with Martin and the board.
